Khomeini Swept Home On Wave of Bloodshed

Times News Services

TEHRAN — Resistance to Iran's new revolutionary government by the armed forces of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi has ended, causing successful supporters to riot thoughout the country.

Thousands of armed youths roamed Tehran threatening symbols of the monarchy and its foreign allies. Three generals were reported slain.

Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, the Shiite Moslem leader of the anti-shah rebellion, appealed to his followers for order and the surrender of thousands of looted weapons.

Khomeini's 14-year fight to convert Iran from a monarchy to an Islamic republic succeeded Sunday after two days of bloody street fighting in the capital. The turning point came when the armed forces chief of staff ordered all troops back to their barracks and declared his support for the 78-year-old Khomeini.

With the army no longer behind him, Prime Minister Shahpour Bakhtiar was reported to have delivered his resignation to Mehdi Bazargan, Khomeini's nominee to head a provisional government. Bakhtiar dropped out of sight, though one highly-placed source said he is under guard for his own protection. There had been unconfirmed rumors that Bakhtiar had fled the country or committed suicide.

Some 11,000 prisoners, including Americans and Europeans, hacked and clawed their way out of Iran's largest prison during the chaos in Tehran — the largest recorded prison break in history.

"I feel excited. I'm sweating all over. I can't believe it," John Yunoski of Ottawa said as he staggered out of his cell after two years of imprisonment.

Some 11,000 other prisoners — convicted murderers, political prisoners, burglars and pimps — streamed out of the battered prison.

Many jumped to freedom through windows whose bars had been forcibly bent and wrenched aside.

Others rode trucks and cars abandoned by prison guards who scampered out of the sprawling complex when armed supporters of the ayatollah closed in and threatened to storm the prison.

More than 200 persons were reported killed in Tehran, 150 in the northeastern city of Tabriz and 44 in the southern city of Shiraz.

Khomeini condemned "arson, destruction and cruelty" and said those indulging in such "savage acts" are "disobeying Allah's orders and are traitors to the Islamic movement."

The "provisional operational staff of the revolution" in a broadcast on Radio Tehran said: "All Iranian armed forces have laid down their arms and declared their total solidarity with the revolution. There is not the slightest resistance by the armed forces."

The announcement called on the revolution's supporters "to stop surrounding barracks and government centres and not to use their weapons, except against the enemy."

An army spokesman said Gen. Abdul-Ali Badrei, a former commander of the Imperial Guard, was shot

Camp David II Begins Feb. 21

WASHINGTON (AP) — The next round of Israeli-Egyptian peace treaty talks will begin Feb. 21 at Camp David, Md. It may be the last U.S. attempt at driving the two sides into removing obstacles to completing a Middle East agreement.

Acceptances to invitations have been received from Egyptian Prime Minister Mustafa Khalil and Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan.

U.S. State Secretary Cyrus Vance will be host for the talks at the snow-capped Catoctin Mountain site where President Carter and leaders of the two Middle East states last September hammered out two framework agreements.

With the negotiations deadlocked over the Palestinian and other issues, Carter has suggested that unless a treaty is quickly completed, U.S. diplomatic efforts will shift to other world trouble spots. This might mean tossing the conflict into the lap of the United Nations or trying to set up a broader peace conference involving other Arab countries and perhaps the Soviet Union.

U.S. officials, announcing the starting date, could not predict how long this round of negotiations will last. Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin said Sunday there will be a recess so Dayan and Khalil can consult their governments, indicating the talks will last longer than the three or four days originally planned.

Egypt wants to link the treaty with Israel to concrete steps establishing Palestinian self-rule on the west bank of the Jordan River and in the Gaza Strip. Israel has resisted, while insisting that Egypt allow the treaty to take precedence over its military ties with other Arab states.

U.S. officials, cautious about the prospects for success, are hoping the turmoil in Iran will influence both Egypt and Israel to settle their differences and restore an element of stability to the region. One outstanding queston is whether Saudi Arabia will feel compelled by the Iranian situation to lend its support to Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's peace drive.

POT SMUGGLERS GET 10 YEARS

Two former Newfoundland residents were each sentenced to 10 years in jail today in connection with the largest marijuana seizure in Canadian history.

Judge Reg Moir of Kelowna, sitting in Victoria provincial court this morning, sentenced 30-year-old Patrick Joseph Murphy of Limerick, Ireland, and 28-year-old Garrett Ronald O'Brien, also known as Phillip Stanley Ward and Edwin Floyd Terry, a Canadian who lived in Charlottesville, Va.

As the judge was leaving the courtroom Murphy asked, "Is that it?"

O'Brien, who asked to speak with his girlfriend sitting in court and was refused permission, cocked his fist as if to strike a deputy sheriff but did not throw a punch.

O'Brien, who also had 1975 Toronto charges waived in and pleaded guilty to possession of cocaine and hashish for the purpose of trafficking, was given an additional nine months consecutive on those charges.

Moir said the nine-month sentences would be concurrent with each other but consecutive to the 10-year term.

The seizure took place near Shelter Inlet, 32 kilometres northwest of Tofino, and involved police forces of two countries and two Canadian Armed Forces vessels.

Levi, Wallace Get Nod

Two sitting NDP members of the provincial legislature won nominations during the weekend to run in the next provincial election and the mayor of Port McNeill got the call for the Socreds in the new North Island riding.

Former provincial cabinet minister Norm Levi was nominated Sunday as the NDP candidate in the new provincial riding of Maillardville-Coquitlam.

Levi, who was human resources minister in the NDP government between 1972 and 1975, defeated Larry Whalley at a constituency meeting.

Levi now represents one of two seats in the Vancouver-Burrard riding which was wiped out by redistribution.

In Duncan, Barbara Wallace was nominated by acclamation to run for the second time for the NDP in the Cowichan-Malahat-The Islands riding.

Further up Island, Gerry Furney, mayor of Port McNeill, defeated two other contestants in his bid for the Social Credit nomination for the riding of North Island.

He defeated Dave Storrie and Norm McLaren, who was unsuccessful in his bid for the Comox seat in the 1975 provincial election when he ran for the Liberals.

Meanwhile, Socred MLA Ray Loewen told a regional party convention Saturday he is not seeking re-election in Burnaby-Edmonds riding.

Energy Shortage Despite the Rains

Recent rains in the Pacific Northwest have done little to ease the energy shortage in Washington State, power officials said today.

Fred Adair, acting chief of the Washington State Energy Office, said from Olympia that higher temperatures and increased precipitation over the past week have eased the situation only slightly.

"Our energy demand has been reduced substantially because of the warmer weather and the increased precipitation is helpful, but one week isn't going to bring about much of a change. The long-range situation still remains."

Adair said about three weeks of rain would be needed to make a significant change in Washington's energy problem.

B.C. Hydro information officer Dave Robertson said the situation has changed little here. Hydro is still uncertain it will have enough surplus energy to meet Washington's continuing needs

"If we have a lot of rain between now and the end of spring it would help, but the snow pack is the important thing."

Washington relies on B.C. for extra power but the province will halt exports if there is a shortage here.

He added that although it has been raining steadily in Victoria for the past week that's little help.

Even in the most favorable conditions there isn't enough power produced on Vancouver Island to satisfy local needs.

Hydro's export power, and the extra power needed by the Island, comes from the Peace and Mica reservoirs in the Interior.

54 Dead In New Rhodesia Air Crash

SALISBURY (UPI) — An Air Rhodesia Viscount turboprop airliner crashed Monday shortly after take-off from the northern resort town of Kariba killing all 54 people aboard, an airline spokesman said.

Eyewitnesses reported that the plane veered to the right soon after it took off from Kariba en route to Salisbury and then crashed at the site of last September's downing of another Air Rhodesia Viscount by black nationalist guerrillas.

The Air Rhodesia spokesman said "it has been confirmed by combined operations that there are no survivors" among the 49 passengers and five crew members.

Asked if the plane was shot down the spokesman said: "We cannot comment at this time."

On Sept 3, 1978 another Air Rhodesia Viscount was shot down with 56 people aboard during a flight from Kariba to Salisbury. At the time Rhodesian guerrilla leader Joshua Nkomo declared that his Patriotic Front forces had been responsible for shooting down the plane. Thirty-eight persons were killed in that crash.

ROE ROW is one way of describing this lineup of applicants waiting outside the Canada Employment Centre at 2653 Douglas today, seeking employment at the Oakland Industries plant for the herring roe season about to get under way. About 150 had applied by mid-morning and a CEC spokesman said there was less of a crush than expected because the company itself had taken close to 1,000 applications. Although only about 800 jobs will be available, Oakland reckons to sign on more than double that number because there's a high turnover of workers. The CEC office will also accept applications Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

400 Flee Exploding Oil

WHITING, Ind. (UPI) — A spectacular fire exploded through part of a large oil refinery south of Chicago early today, forcing evacuation of a 10-square block area of homes.

No one was injured and firefighters had the blaze contained within five hours.

Authorities said no one was in the vicinity of the original explosions and fire at the Amoco Oil Co. facility.

Fire officials said about 400 persons were evacuated as a precautionary measure. First estimates said 1,000 or more were moved out of their homes.

The officials said some residents would be permitted to return home later today. Others living near the refinery remained with friends, relatives or at the Whiting Community Center.

None of the homes near the refinery was damaged.

The blaze began in a four-storey gasoline processing unit where a series of explosions were reported. The fire later spread through pipelines to two of five oil storage tanks, which erupted with flames darting 100 feet or more into the air.

About 200 firefighters employed by Amoco fought the blaze, while fire departments from Whiting, East Chicago and Hammond stood guard on homes in the area.

The fire was contained by 4 a.m., according to Bill Overmiller, a spokesman for Amoco.

"The fire is contained with no additional danger," Overmiller said. "However, the fire continues to burn in the two tanks, one containing 15,000 barrels of oil and the other 10,000 barrels."

Firefighters applied foam to the burning oil but it was almost impossible to smother the wide surface of the petroleum.

Overmiller said it was not known how long it would take for the fire to burn itself out. Some estimates were as long as two days.

The refinery, once one of the world's largest, was the scene of another spectacular explosion and fire in the mid-1950s.

Gunman Holds Police At Bay

There were no overnight developments in the incident which started Sunday afternoon. Police have been negotiating with the unidentified gunman since then.

The gunman telephoned radio station CHTM, Thompson, Sunday and said, "We have a hostage," but did not give any details.

HEAVY FIGHTING ERUPTS IN CHAD'S CAPITAL CITY

KHARTOUM, Sudan (UPI) — Heavy fighting broke out today between military forces of Chad President Felix Maloum and troops loyal to his Prime Minister Hussein Habri, the Sudan News Agency reported.

The SUNA agency reported the fighting in a dispatch from Ndjamena, capital of the central African nation of Chad.

It said the fighting started at 10 a.m. (7 a.m. PST) and "is still going on around the radio station and the residence of the prime minister.

"Artillery and machine guns are being used in the fighting while two helicopters are flying low for reconnaissance over the city," SUNA said.

The agency reported that the Chad national broadcasting station has gone off air.

"The streets of the Chad capital are empty of people and cars and people are seen running towards their homes," the Sudanese dispatch said.

It said Maloum's forces have taken up positions in the capital and gasoline stations and banks are being heavily guarded.

The fighting broke out apparently as the result of a policy dispute between the two leaders.

It followed a statement broadcast by President Maloum Sunday night calling for an immediate meeting of a political and military committee composed of Sudan, Libya and Niger, formed to "safeguard national reconciliation in Chad."

Herring Talks Open

VANCOUVER (UPC) — Negotiators for west coast fishermen will bargain for higher prices for herring roe today in contract talks with herring companies, the president of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers says.

UFAWU president Jack Nichol said Saturday the union will ask for minimimum prices of $2,000 a ton for gillnet-caught herring and $1,200 a ton for seine-boat crews when negotiations begin today.

Under the current contract gillnetters get a minimum $430 and seiners $220 but by the end of last season the companies were paying gillnetters $1,050 a ton while cash buyers were paying $1,400, he said.

The higher prices reflect shortages of herring in Canadian waters, which supply the large Japanese market, Nichol said.

"These demand prices represent a healthy increase to the minimum prices negotiated last year but reflect rather accurately the value to the fishermen of a ton of herring," union officers said in a report at last week's annual UFAWU convention.

The herring season begins the first week of March and lasts about five weeks.

'VICIOUS' BEATING: 42 MONTHS

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — A Chilliwack man who left another man lying in a pool of blood after beating him with a pool cue has been given a three-and-a-half year prison term.

County Court judge Stewart McMorran told Larry Allan Bourdon, 26, that the public has got to be protected from "this kind of viciousness and violence."

Bourdon attacked Clarence Ned of the Kilgard Indian reserve near Abbotsford, B.C., after the two argued over an unpaid heroin debt.

Crown Counsel Lothar Kiner said Indians on the reserve, who generally feel they have been given short shrift by authorities, were watching the case closely.

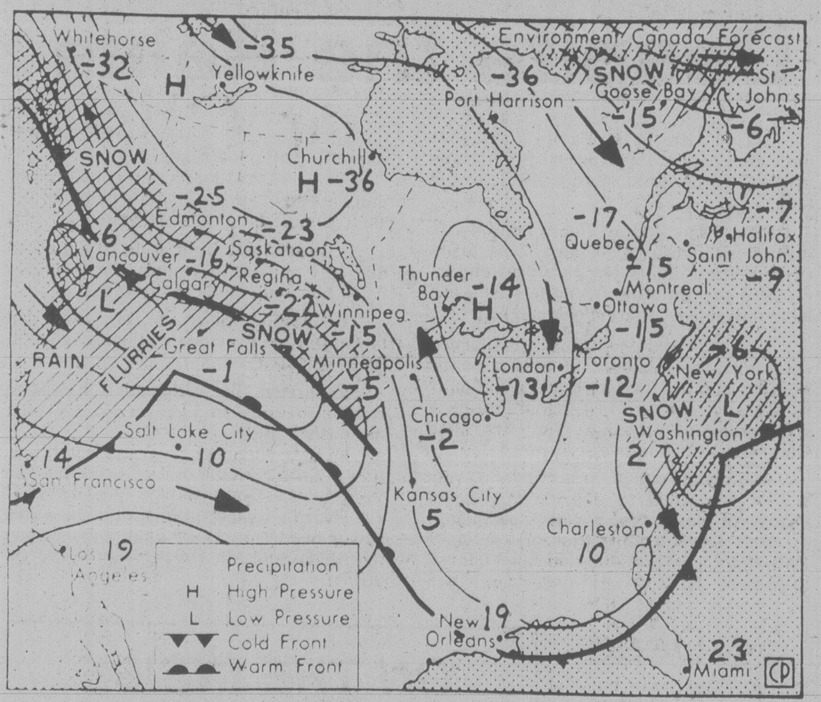

Map valid until noon Tuesday

An intense low pressure area off the U.S. coast continues to move towards the south coast of B.C., bringing mild, moist Pacific air. The southern interior will also feel the effects of the system later today as a band of rain and snow spreads inland towards the Rockies. Meanwhile, the central interior continues in the grip of a cold Arctic air mass with temperatures hovering close to -20. Unsettled conditions will prevail over northern sections with a little snow in the central interior and showers of rain and snow on the north coast.

They Still Pray At the Golden Shrine

By HUMPHRY DAVY,
Times Staff

Joss sticks are still lit and burned on the golden shrine of the Victoria Chinese Freemason Society on Johnson Street.

And prayers are still said to five Chinese saints who have watched over the ancient land of Cathay for thousands of years.

Now and again, an elderly man will place some fruits on the altar, an offering to the creator of all things.

The shrine with its intricate carvings is of some significance to many Chinese people. It's a monument to members of one of China's great secret societies which flourished in Victoria more than 50 years ago.

The work of this once-powerful organization came to light when documents were presented to members of the Chinese community at a dinner Sunday at the Peking restaurant.

The papers dealing with the mortgage of the now-demolished Chee Kung Tong building, formerly at 615-621 Fisgard, near the police station, were presented to the community by Deregulation Minister Sam Bawlf.

Dr. David C.Y. Lai, associate professor in the geography department of the University of Victoria, recalled that the building was mortgaged to B.C. Land and Investment Agency for $12,000.

It was mortgaged to raise money for revolutionists who were finally sucessful in overthrowing the Manchu Goverment in 1912, he said. Dr. Sun Yat-Sen was their leader.

"The documents contain the names of Chinese citizens who mortgaged the building," he said. "They were members of the Chee Kung Tong, better known to Victorians as the Chinese Freemason Society."

Lai said the English name of the society was just a cover-up for one of China's great secret societies. It had nothing to do with European Freemason societies.

The money raised in Victoria was sent to China to purchase arms and on April 27, 1911, revolutionists struck at the headquarters of the viceroy of Kwantung. The uprising failed and hundreds of people were killed in the fighting or later executed.

But a few months later the revolution overthrew the Manchu government.

Lai said the documents which lay for years in the provincial Land Registry office also revealed some interesting things about the Chee Kung Tong. It was formed after the Manchus defeated the Ming Emperor and conquered China in 1664.

"It was a blood brotherhood known in English as 'Triads' and dedicated to ousting the Manchurians from China," he said.

"They considered the Manchus foreigners. They refused to compromise their national principles and went underground."

He said the society was partially responsible for the T'ai P'ing rebellion which lasted from 1850 to 1864. When that failed many had to leave China. Some went to San Francisco and others to B.C. where they formed branches of the society, first at Quesnel and later in Victoria.

The society's code was strict, Lai said.

"Members from different districts identified themselves by using various words and signs. For example, holding a teapot a certain way was one of many signs that the holder was a member of the society."

"They had to be careful," he said. "In the 18th century thousands died in a bloody inquisition."

Lai said after China became a republic, the society reorganized itself into a political party now known as Min Chee Tang.

"It's no longer a secret society, he said. "But the shrine still remains, including its English name and some original members, now getting on in years."

Lai, along with two Uvic students, Raymond Candy and Kim Forster, who are researching Chinese history financed by a B.C. government grant, hope to uncover more about the society and its members who lived in Victoria during the 19th century.

BATTLE OF THE INTERSECTIONS

City Drivers Going Color Blind

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Victoria drivers are fairly decent towards pedestrians but murderous towards other drivers at busy intersections, says Harris Bredavs, local director for Young Drivers of Canada.

"More and more drivers are going through on amber lights. They are even starting to go through on red. It is becoming very dangerous," he said in an interview.

His organization, which carries out driver training on a non-profit basis, will conduct a survey this spring to find out how bad the light-running is.

"We will work in co-operation with Victoria police, who are also concerned about this trend."

The survey will be taken as secretly as possible in order to get an accurate picture of driving habits.

The association will follow the survey with an educational program on avoiding going through amber lights.

"People coming to Victoria from other cities report we are terrible drivers in some ways. Going through on a red light is a flagrant example. Also we tend to turn without regard to lanes.

"We turn from the wrong lane and turn into the wrong lane. Some visitors say they have never seen driving this bad any place else."

But Victoria drivers are not totally hopeless.

A survey by Young Drivers of Canada from Dec. 1 to Dec. 7, Safe Driving Week, showed Victoria motorists were among the most polite in the nation when it comes to yielding to pedestrians.

In Victoria only 25 per cent of the drivers failed to yield to pedstrians when they should have. Across Canada the failure rate was 48.5 per cent.

Highest failure rate was in West Island, Montreal, where not a single motorist stopped for a pedestrian during the week.

In B.C. there was a 86 per cent failure rate in Richmond and a 96 per cent failure rate in Port Coquitlam.

"Victoria drivers are far from perfect but they are better than on the Lower Mainland. In Richmond one elderly lady tried several times to cross but no one would stop for her.

"By contrast, also in Richmond, a policeman had no trouble getting cars to stop when he tried to cross.

"The elderly woman should have worn a police uniform or else not tried to cross streets in Richmond."

The local survey was carried out by 25 students from Young Drivers of Canada at the intersection of Blanshard and Fort and at Blanshard and Broughton.

"We tried to look as inconspicuous as possible, which is difficult when there are five people standing around holding clipboards."

A similar process will be used for the spring survey but the dates and locations will not be announced in advance.

Bredavs said a survey on seat-belt use showed 48 per cent of Victoria drivers had buckled up.

"That's not very high but, frankly, it was a lot better than we expected. More and more drivers are remembering to use their seat belts."

The most serious problems in Victoria are associated with intersections. Only half of Victorians come to a complete stop before making a right hand turn on a red light, he said.

Paper Chase For Gunman

A hold-up man who pulled a gun on the owner of Morley's Five-Point Pharmacy Saturday night got only a box of papers for his efforts.

Victoria police said today Clarence Morley was met by a man carrying a black handgun as he left his pharmacy at 1273 Fairfield shortly after closing time Saturday.

The man, described as in his late 20s to early 30s, 5 feet 10 inches to 6 feet in height and of a medium build, made off with a cardboard box.

"He must have been surprised when he opened it," said a police spokesman. "It was full of papers; there were no drugs, no money."

Police said the gun used in the holdup was described as having a 12-inch barrel.

"But I think the gun grew a bit," said the police officer. "You tend to do that when you're looking down the wrong end of the barrel."

What's a Transient? Asks Park Owner

The owner of a tourist trailer park on Seymour Avenue today denied a resident's allegation that long-term occupants of the trailer pads are turning the property into a mobile home park.

"That's not so at all," said Abtar Bains. "We don't have a mobile home on the park there."

Saanich council's bylaw enforcement committee tonight will consider the complaint concerning the Inn-City Camper Trailer Park, 3420 Seymour, from John Franklin, 380 Gorge.

A report to the committee from a municipal official says 26 of the [illegible] pads are being used and of these three of the occupants have been in residence for more than two years and two for more than one year.

But Bains said those occupying the pads are all 'transient people" who for one reason or another have had to prolong their intended stay.

"People come and go; I don't check them every time," he said.

Bains, who has owned the trailer park for four years, described Franklin's complaint as "picky."

"We are officially trying to encourage tourists but if people like this have their way the hotels would have to tell them to keep moving," he said.

It would be ridiculous for tourist establishment operators to tell visitors they could stay only a certain number of weeks because otherwise, under some bylaw or regulation, they would no longer be considered transient.

In any case, Bains added, "what is a transient? I'm baffled."

He noted that the trailer park is only an interim use of the property pending redevelopment to a more intensive use which will take advantage of its important location on the Blanshard highway extension.

Complainant Franklin states in his letter to Saanich that he understood the trailer park was originally approved because it would benefit tourists.

"It appears to me from across the street that it has turned into a residential mobile home park," he adds.

"The regulations for mobile home parks, such as the ones in Langford, require a 25-foot setback from any adjoining property and many less units per acre than the mess across the road from me on Seymour Avenue."

Saanich development manager William Weir says in his report to the committee the property is zoned for "the accommodation of the transient public."

But he says it might be difficult to establish that any violation had occurred because the zoning bylaw does not define precisely what is meant by the term transient.

Car Takes Off On Policemen

A police spokesman said today a passenger in the vehicle slid behind the wheel while the officers were busy taking the first driver, an 18-year-old, into custody for speeding.

The incident happened at about 5:30 a.m. Saturday following a high-speed chase north on Quadra.

Both men will be charged.

It's a Matter of Double Mathematics

WE ARE TOLD THAT "he travels the fastest who travels alone," and that very well may be. But after many good years of marriage, I'm tempted to amend that cynical old saying.

He travels the happiest who travels as two!

To move through life as a twosome, in fact, has become such a natural mode of progression that I find it hard to vision any other.

A man travelling it alone need concern himself only with the immediate frontal problems it poses. Water in the trail to be skirted or splashed through. A down-log to be scrambled over or crept under. Low-hanging boughs to be shoved aside without regard for where their backswing may land them.

But when you are used to moving as two, you walk such a path with a divided mind. Concern for your partner is a reaction rather than a conscious thought.

Is that water too deep for her boot-tops? Would it be better to skirt that log rather than tackle it directly? The hand that pushes the bough aside releases it with discretion so that it won't lash the face behind.

The rule of two holds elsewhere.

An invitation addressed to one and excluding the other would be regarded as boorish and declined out of hand.

When you are estimating the cost of a trip, you are automatically plunged into double mathematics.

What's the fare for two? How much is double occupancy? Will it cost us thus-and-so, doubled, for our dinner?

(Our exception to the rule is a two-for-one triumph on the dogwood ferries where we occasionally find ourselves taking breakfast. Those breakfasts are dauntingly large. So Win orders sausage and toast, I order scrambled eggs and hashed browns, then we split our take. Result: for each of us a reasonably-sized breakfast at a pawky saving!)

We have found over the years together that the vertical pronoun, "I", has all but vanished from our joint vocabulary. It has been crowded out by the companionable "We", "Ours" and "Us".

For many years now, our home has also been my workplace. This has imposed an iron-clad discipline on us.

Each workday morning I remove to my office, while Win turns to her own affairs.

Through most of the day, we are out of touch, each busy with his or her own concerns.

But let this separation go on too long, and one or other of us is moved to end it. I will get up from behind my typewriter and wander out to the kitchen, ostensibly to get a cup of coffee. Or Win will step into my office, presumably to check for some needed paper tucked into our shared filing cabinet.

Neither of us is deceived. We know that the real purpose of these intrusions is to see how the other is getting along, and to enjoy the luxury of a small visit.

Once in a long while, we worry about this closeness. Perhaps it isn't as it should be. Maybe we should be more hardily independent. But it is our lifestyle, and we agree that it suits us very well indeed.

Naturally, there are times when circumstances force a parting. Neither of us likes those times. They seem long and more than a little dreary. On any solo trip, I find myself constantly squirreling away random items of interest to pass on to my dear one when we are together again.

Without really meaning to, I seem to have set down a Valentine of sorts. I should also warn that walking as two brings its worries and imposes its responsibilities. But life has no gift to match it!

The Poor Farmer?

Though he is an uncommon species today, the farmer is still honored as one of the basic foundations of society. He produces our food, and nobody fills a more basic requirement of life than he does.

"Those who labor in the earth are the chosen people of God," said Thomas Jefferson. But these days the farmer is ducking a lot of rocks. He is getting it from all sides.

American farmers drove their tractors to Washington, D.C. this week to dramatize their demands for "parity" which is price supports set at ninety per cent, which would give them an income supposedly equivalent to U.S. agriculture's golden years 1910-14. But Secretary of Agriculture Robert Bergland — himself a farmer from Minnesota who participated in a similar protest 30 years ago — refused to budge. He said they were motivated by greed.

It has not been very different in Canada. We have seen similar dramatic protests in Ottawa; Quebec dairy farmers throwing milk at Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan, sacrificing pigs on the steps of the Quebec national assembly, throwing wheat at Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau.

And Bergland's reply must have occurred to a few Canadians, too. One of them voiced his doubts about "the poor farmer" last week in a speech to Canadian meat packers meeting at Calgary.

Agricultural economist George Brinkman says the alleged poverty of farmers is really a myth. Undoubtedly, some farmers are poor but most are well-off, he claims, and the majority is using the myth to extract government subsidies.

"If farmers are so poor, why is it that for every person who gets out of agriculture, there are two people who want to get in?" he asks.

Brinkman says in Ontario, a survey of farmers found that they earned on average slightly less than the average small businessman, without adding in the benefits available to farmers — tax breaks, cheaper food — that a businessman doesn't get.

He argues that about half of the farmers in Canada run their farms essentially as hobby operations, deriving more of their income from outside employment than from the farm itself. Gross annual sales of these farmers total less than $10,000.

The majority of commercial farms gross between $10,000 and $25,000 a year in sales, with their average net income on farm products just over $3,000 and average off-farm net income about $5,600. That seems like a small return, but Brinkman cites other factors which effectively increase the farmer's standard of living.

They saved an average $317 a year on home-grown produce and average capital appreciation on land and buildings was $12,400. It is fair to add in this sum because it represents money that will eventually be realized when the property is sold. As well, farmers enjoy extra benefits such as tax-deductible mortgage payments and repair costs. For this class of farmer, then, total annual returns average more than $23,000. And for a farmer grossing $50,000 a year in sales, the net return could really be as high as $76,000.

He admits that a large capital investment is required to get into farming, but points out too that fully 60 per cent of government agricultural subsidies are going to commercial farmers, not those on the poverty line.

Farmers farm for more than just money, of course, and there are other interpretations of the same data but Brinkman's provocative analysis does suggest that the "poor farmer" story is wearing a little thin.

Apply It to All

Saanich Mayor Mel Couvelier says he is optimistic the provincial government will allow his municipality an exemption from the maximum five per cent budget increase for 1979. The reason Saanich is applying — it sees no way it can maintain the existing level of services to its residents unless it is allowed to increase its budget by more than five per cent, preferably by more than twice that.

For example, says Couvelier, it already knows it is going to have to pay its police force a wage increase of about six per cent, quite aside from the fact that CUPE is beginning negotiations asking for an increase of 17 per cent or more.

We'd hate to be discouraging, but if Saanich deserves much of an exemption on those grounds, so do half the municipalities in B.C. All of them are faced with an over-all inflation rate for 1979 of 7.5 per cent or more; all of them are faced with unions looking for wage increases to cover that figure and perhaps make up some of the losses of previous years; many of them, like Saanich, have new developments which require extra servicing.

The whole point of the government's five per cent ceiling is to compel municipalities to cut back, despite the forces pushing them towards higher budgets. The five per cent figure may be quite unrealistic — as well as none of the province's business — but if it applies to all, it should apply to Saanich as well.

Rocky's in for Debunking

WASHINGTON — Over-maligned in life, Nelson Rockefeller was over-eulogized in death. Rarely has a failed politician elicited such praise, even in a city where graciousness to a deceased politician is an automatic reflex.

To read the outpourings of praise here after his recent death, one would have thought that Rocky, as he liked to be known, was the most complete public servant this country has known since Hubert Humphrey.

Columnist James Reston, the chief eulogizer, carved a glowing epitaph in the pages of The New York Times. "It should be remembered," he said, "that Nelson Rockefeller died at his desk late on a Friday night after almost everybody had gone home for the weekend."

"He was a worker, a yearner and a builder to the end."

And History's Verdict?

Equally fine sentiments sprang from thse lips of Henry Kissinger and George Meany, from rivals like Ronald Reagan and Barry Goldwater, and from presidents past and present.

But history will not be so kind to the grandson of John D. Rockefeller.

As a national figure, he will be chiefly remembered as one of the most vacillating of modern-day aspirants to the White House. Three times he sought his party's nomination for the presidency, but in such a halting and hesitant manner that he enraged his contemporaries.

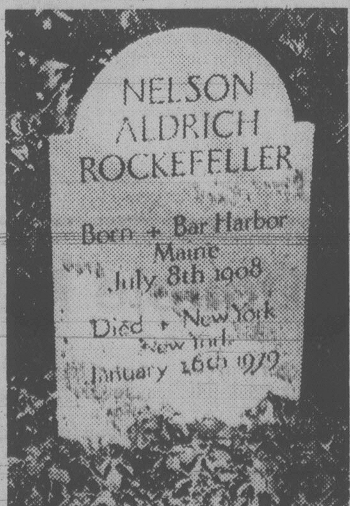
One veteran Washington observer, political writer and essayist, Henry Fairlie, has called him the "all-star of born losers, the black hole of the Republican party" because of his indirect contribution to the ascendency of Richard Nixon in 1968.

Vice-president for two years under Gerald Ford, he let himself be pushed aside in 1976 — Ford thought him a liability among conservative voters — and he went meekly into retirement.

As governor of New York state, Rockefeller's record is marred by Attica, the state prison that was the scene of horrible bloodshed in 1971. Rather than negotiate with inmates who had taken hostages, he sent in state police with guns blazing. When the carnage had ended, 29 prison employees and 10 inmates were dead from police bullets.

In his last years, Rockefeller devoted most of his time to his art collection. Indeed, the "official" version of his death has it that Rocky was working on the manuscript of an art book when he collapsed of a heart attack at age 70.

Although the press has treated the story with caution, the picture that is emerging of his last hours of life is not at all congruent with that of a man working, yearning and building "to the end."



NELSON ROCKEFELLER
. . . questions about his death

In a trenchant article in New York's Village Voice, Alexander Cockburn ridiculed the pathetic efforts of his aides to cover up the circumstances of his death, especially as to the role of a 25-year-old female assistant who was with him at the time.

"Nelson Rockefeller left one last legacy which should cause millions of Americans to curse his name," Cockburn wrote in the article that was reprinted in The Washington Post. "He managed to bring the time-honored ritual of working late at the office into disrepute."

Rockefeller deserves better than this posthumous cynicism. Yet in a way, it is no worse than the platitudes heaped upon him by political colleagues who expediently pushed him aside two years ago.

As with other prominent national figures like John Kennedy and Hubert Humphrey, it will likely be years after his death before a full and honest appraisal of the man is forthcoming.

Contrary to the vile gossip you may have heard, "pop rocks" are not hazardous to your health. Bill Mitchell, the inventor who created the space age candies that crackle on the tongue, wants everybody to know that.

Last weekend, full-page ads appeared in 30 major newspapers in the U.S. northeast, reassuring "moms and dads" that the "wild rumors" about the crazy candies are utterly untrue.

Pop Rocks Safe

The ads showed a kindly Mitchell surrounded by youngsters who looked none the worse for having gobbled some of the 500 million packages of the stuff sold to date by General Foods Corp., the company that bought the idea from the retired scientist.

So what were the "wild rumors?"

A public relations man for the company in White Plains, N.Y. — mindful perhaps of the worms-in-the-hamburger scare that recently bedevilled the Macdonald's hamburger chain — wasn't too eager to talk about it.

But some prodding, he opened up. "This will sound weird," William Taylor said, "but do you remember the little kid Mikey in the Life cereal commercials?

"Well, somebody — I have no idea who — came out with the slogan that when Mikey tried pop rocks, he lost his Life. This thing started spreading, and people got the idea that the little boy died. Crazy, isn't it?

Is Jimmy Carter destined to be a one-term president? Speaking in New Orleans recently, Henry Kissinger wouldn't hazard a guess, but he did say of brother Billy Carter: "I'm in favor of making him a one-term entertainer."

Encourage Industry

In regard to the claim of Ernie Knott (Take It Over, Feb. 1) that MacMillan Blodel is making excessive profits, I would point out that theirs is risk capital and that I do not believe their profits are excessive. Should Mr. Knott himself have any funds to invest he would expect to receive at least ten per cent per annum, either in interest or appreciation.

Over many years Mac Blo has done as much for the welfare of their employees, and the development of this province, as any other company I know of. If the company discharged a large number of their employees, it was because the work they were doing had become uneconomic, and a liability to the company. If Mr. Knott was in business for himself and found one branch of his company to be operating uneconomically, he would most certainly be justified in closing that branch.

A high percentage of foreign ownership of Canadian companies is, of course, regrettable. His figures may or may not be correct, but they do not appear to be the point at issue.

What concerns us more is the high cost to this country of our poor productivity and feather-bedding by so many who are employed either by private compahies or the government. This high cost is especially noticeable in the high percentage of our gross national product that is absorbed by all three levels of our government in taxes. Notwithstanding our vast natural resources and technological knowledge, we cannot compete on the world markets.

Our main exports are mainly raw materials and agricultural products. As the situation now stands we are "selling our heritage for a mess of potage."

The Achilles heel of all politicians is their fear of losing votes. Such fear puts self-interest before the welfare of their country, and before that of the people whom they were elected to serve.

It is the duty of all three levels of our government to encourage private enterprise, not to enter into competition with it. When they do so, it is with disastrous results, as most of our Crown corporations have demonstrated so clearly with their financial statements. The handwriting is on the wall! — Donald H. McKay, 10995 Boas Road, Sidney.

Vets' Complaints

As president of the Black Watch Association's Pacific coast branch I have received a number of complaints from veterans in the Victoria area with respect to veterans' rights, pensions, procedures for obtaining medical care, purchase of prescribed drugs, admission to veterans' priority beds and care while in hospital.

Many of the complaints have arisen out of a lack of knowledge of the proper procedures consequent to the handing over of the veterans' hospital to the province of B.C. and its current operation by the Royal Jubilee Hospital.

In the majority of cases veterans who are suffering from a disability incurred during active service and who are drawing a disability pension are entitled to treatment and care under federal government arrangements.

The present practice is for a veteran to obtain medical advice from his family doctor; drugs prescribed by his doctor should be purchased by the veteran and a claim for reimbursement submitted to the local department of veterans' affairs office. Should the veteran require admission to hospital, this should be arranged by the family doctor with the Royal Jubilee Hospital. Should a veteran not have a family doctor he should seek assistance from the emergency department of the Jubilee.

One of the roles of our association is to assist any veteran in any problem he may have with respect to pension, medical and hospital care. I request any veteran who is having a problem to please contact me and the association will investigate. Such investigation will be conducted in a confidential manner and the rights of the veteran protected. Let us hear from you. — R. E. Henley, President, Black Watch Association, Pacific Coast Branch, 1144 Marchant Road, Brentwood Bay.

Look Ahead

Re: Mark Hume's article in the Times Jan. 31, Clear-Cut Split on Highlands*:*

It would appear that Mr. Hume, although he stayed to the end of the hearing, missed a large part of what was said by the people who came forward and expressed opinions.

His shortsighted parting comment was: "The upcoming decision is crucial to the future of all Highlanders." My good man, surely you can see that the upcoming decision is crucial to the future of all residents of the Capital Region District.

I suggest Mr. Hume and the editor of the Times get out their map and study the area in question. It should be obvious the Highlands is a prime asset to the people which this newspaper is supposedly written for.

Let's not be so superficial as to cast off the problem as though it was of little concern to the populace of Greater Victoria, Saanich peninsula and the western community. Let's see some insight and planning put forward for future generations so they may see the wonder of nature, the way southern Vancouver Island was before urban sprawl covers it forever. — Paul Jenkins, 1840 Crescent Road.

Move Camosun

Recently there have been protests over Camosun College's proposal to encroach upon the small wild area known locally as the Hudson Bay woods, bordering Foul Bay Road just north of the college, in order to construct more parking space. I believe the college plans to increase the building area of the college extensively, in order to accomodate more students and cars.

Putting aside the logical arguments against the plan, namely that these woods are a natural preserve for birds and a valuable heritage for us to pass on to future Victorians, there is one aspect that I think municipal authorities should consider, namely, the traffic problem that would result.

Traffic on the three bordering roads, namely Foul Bay, Lansdowne Avenue and Richmond Road, is already at an uncomfortable level. Why add to their burden? Already, there are three bus lines serving this school and an even more complete service could be established by adding a bus line through Oak Bay to both the college and the University of Victoria.

If students find parking is too limited, they will be forced to use public transport which would be a good thing. Not one more student, figuratively speaking, should be added to the population of the college if it will increase traffic.

The planners, whoever they may be, might consider offering the Young Building to the Victoria Conservatory of Music. They might conceivably find another organization, perhaps in the field of the arts to take the Ewing Building, and leave the Victoria School Board in the Paul Building. Then, perhaps, a new college could be built somewhere else where space is not a problem.

Where the money comes from for these ideas or who initiates their application I haven't the foggiest notion. I'm just the dreamer who hopes to save a small bit of woodland and help Camosun College Board in their dilemma. — L. St. J. Miller, 1961 Ernest Avenue.

Bad Legislation

This year has been declared the Year of the Child by the United Nations. It is a time when much interest and awareness will be focused on the rights and needs of children in all parts of the world.

Coincidentally, in British Columbia there is a great deal of discussion about the proposed Family and Child Services Act, which is intended to replace the outdated Protection of Children Act drafted in 1901.

Chief opposition to the proposed Act centers around provisions charging parents with legal responsibility for their children and financial responsibility for any services provided for their children. Obviously, parents should be responsible for their children in every way possible, but when parents are unable to cope, support services should be available and guaranteed, regardless of the parents' ability to pay. The first priority in all cases must be the child's welfare, and we cannot support legislation which is punitive in its treatment of people on fixed and lower incomes.

I fully support every effort to keep a family together, but we must also realize that any family may require help at some time, and assistance should be easily accessible before family breakdown. The present vague wording of the proposed legislation places responsibility on the parent without defining the role and responsibility of government. A clear statement of the social worker's role and authority in providing support services to families is necessary.

There are a number of other areas which are not dealt with sufficiently in the draft paper. There is no specific mention of the rights and problems of native children, an area I feel deserves special attention, in view of the fact that the number of native children aided by government agencies is proportionately very high. Children's rights should be clearly spelled out and the act requires much more detail and definition in its reference to such terms as abuse, neglect and deprivation.

Perhaps most important of all, the proposed act reflects an ever-increasing trend by the Social Credit government to produce over-simplified, poorly-defined legislation which refers to regulations which can be changed or revised at will without the approval of the legislature. The rights of individuals, be they children or adults, and the services to which they are entitled, should not be left to regulation — they should be approved by the legislature and become law.

The Berger commission on family and children's law set up by the former NDP government spent more than a year on these issues, and produced comprehensive reports on all aspects of family law which went far beyond the proposals contained in this draft legislation.

I will be speaking against this legislation as it now stands when it is brought before the legislature and I would appreciate hearing any of your comments on this issue. — Rosemary Brown, MLA, Vancouver-Burrard.

Not Worth It

I have in the past written in defence of our postal service, which I maintain is as good as any.

However, I would suggest that the current advertising campaign to promote registered mail is something less than truthful. We are assured that this provides "safety and security" to the U.S. and Europe. Does it?

The recent ruling in Montreal apparently exonerating the post office from any liability in the event of loss suggests otherwise, as does my own personal experience.

On Aug. 23 last I registered a rather important letter to Rome. It has not yet arrived; and, while the local postal officials have been most courteous and co-operative, some five months later I have still to learn what happened to it.

The public should be cautioned that registered mail certainly does not provide safety and security. It is scarcely, I submit, worth the additional cost. — J. Langley, Victoria.

Love on the Picket Line

By CANDIDA TUNBRIDGE

(Tunbridge is a reporter on the Wembley Observer and has just finished a strike along with other British provincial journalists in support of wage demands. She wrote this for the London Observer.)

The guessing game of "why so many strikes?" is open to anyone. You can argue it's the dialectic of the proletariat in action, idealistically inspired grass-roots rebels against greedy management bosses, as some people do. You can say it's a few disgruntled Marxists manipulating frightened rank-and-file trade union members to bring the country to its knees, as others would have it.

Well, I'm in a position to reveal the truth. After six weeks on and off the picket line in icy winds, torrential rain and even snow, I have found the definitive answer to all these strikes. It's love.

Love on the picket line is a previously undocumented phenomenon, but I can vouch for its existence on any mixed picket line in Britain. Love explains why workers, ambulance men, train and lorry drivers have downed tools and taken to the streets — love, which in this case comes in a unique package that includes a return to backwoodsman simplicity and indulgence in that most satisfying of all sentiments, self-righteousness.

Let's take love at its most basic first. Muffled up against the cold in a thick scarf, wooly hat and seven layers of jersey, you offer a tantalizing mystery to the opposite sex. Animal, vegetable or mineral? What body lurks beneath those layers? After all, Bernard Shaw thought there was nothing more erotic than a show of ankle beneath an Edwardian petticoat, so what, in contemporary terms, can be more arousing than a red nose glinting in the watery winter sun, the only sign of life from a comrade-at-arms?

And with hours spent standing around with nothing to do you have all the time in the world to get through the preliminaries of courtship. I've seen a day that began with a cadged cigarette and an intimate breakfast at Mack's end with an exchange of phone numbers last thing at night. The flickering light of the ever-faithful brazier spreading its soft shadows to hide lines, unshaven chins and running mascara (if you're frivolous enough to wear any) offers more romance than any candelit supper for two.

Best of all are the opportunities for hugging. Like footballers, you hug one another at victory over blacklegs, scabs, management pigs and policemen. You hug to keep warm — anybody and anything — as long as he's not a policeman, management pig . . . etc., etc. You get the picture — it's a prolonged party which starts way before the dawn and goes on far into the night, complete with cosy open fire and a frequent change of guests.

But it isn't all about improving your social life. There's also that rewarding sense of a back-to-nature primitivism. You don't have to retire to a croft or a lumberjack's lodge any more to feel at one with the soil — you just join a picket line. You have to be able to chop wood, light a fire in the rain and keep the jokes coming. It's closer to a Thoreau life-style than anything else I've come across in our urban, streamlined lives.

The person who rules is the man with the axe or simply the one who has kept going the longest, proving his worth on an all-night picket duty. Women, of course, in their primitive role, provide flasks of tea and the odd biscuit and stoke the fire. They talk politics, while their menfolk concentrate on higher things, like the state of the Test match.

After the hours of waiting, the moment of confrontation is sudden and short-lived. But, as you link arms in a human chain, chanting soccer slogans, you murmur this is it, this is what life's all about — and a glow of pleasure at being at the centre of life's flux steals over you.

Identity with a cause, strengthened by shared material deprivation and a common jargon, breeds peace of mind: you don't have to think for yourself, sure in the faith that what you are doing is right. It's more therapeutic than an encounter session, more spiritually uplifting than Victorian church-going.

END LOW PAY
END LOW PAY

Cadged cigarettes, comradeship and harmony

So what's the answer to the current bout of national strikes? The answer's obvious. Bring back the slogan of the sixties, Make Love Not War. It would do away with flying pickets, secondary pickets, pickets' codes of behavior, pay norms and sanctions, the whole paraphernalia, in fact. Because who would go on strike if he could find a bit more comradeship and harmony elsewhere?

Slaughter is Slowly Going Out of Style for High Fashion

By ENA KENDALL
London Observer

People who refuse to wear furs on the grounds that they look better on their original owners are no longer regarded as eccentric.

Public opinion, with a few helping prods from conservationists, is gradually swinging round to the view that human vanity is a poor reason for endangering animals already under intolerable pressure.

The luxury market in industrial countries is one of the main stimulants for the war of attrition against many species. Leather of the highest quality comes from the skin of the salt-water crocodile, and crocodiles and alligators, often shot before they have a chance to breed, are among the world's most threatened animals.

The colobus monkey, a spectacular fellow with a beautiful black and white skin, is being trapped by the hundreds in East Africa because of the demand for its skin to make rugs. It takes the deaths of about 12 monkeys to make one rug.

Turtles an endangered species

Small boat-loads of walrus heads have been observed in Alaska, where the animals have been decapitated for their tusks. Even the practice of faking "walrus" ivory carvings from the ivory of African elephants has not stopped a rapid rise in walrus killing.

Almost any animal with big teeth is a prey for the trinket trade, just as musk deer are sacrificed for their musk glands, rhinos for rhino horn — regarded as an aphrodisiac in some countries — the helmeted hornbill, a striking bird from the East Indies, for the horn-like casque on its bill, used for the carving of miniature ornaments, scenes and belt buckles.

Most tortoise-shell combs and ornamental jewelery are made from the shell of the hawksbill turtle, the rarest of the seven breeds of turtle, all of which are in danger.

Japan, where the turtle is a fertility symbol, is the main importer of hawksbill. They come in at the rate of 20,000 to 30,000 a year, and hunters scour Fiji, Zanzibar, Aden, Cuba and Nicaragua to get supplies. There is a growing demand for turtle skins, and baby turtles are preserved and lacquered for the souvenir trade, especially in the Caribbean and the Far East.

The Atlantic ridley turtle is in serious danger of extinction, not only through over-harvesting but because of what is called "accidental take" — unintentional drowning in fishing nets.

Wearers of wolf-skin bomber jackets might contemplate that the wolf is already extinct in 11 European countries, that its numbers in Norway and Sweden are down to half-a-dozen and in Finland to 15. These are countries that used to swarm with wolves, now almost wiped out by hunting, poisoning and the disappearance of food sources. The eradication of the red deer in the Italian Appenines has also led to the decline of the wolf.

New controls on trade in products of endangered animal and plant species came into operation in Britain in January. They give effect to the controls on international trade required under the Convention in International Trade in Endangered Species in Wild Fauna and Flora, otherwise the Washington Convention, signed in Washington in March, 1973.

The controls will be operated at two levels. There is likely to be a total ban on imports of goods made from endangered species like the hawksbill and ridley turtles, and some breeds of crocodile. A monitoring system will be applied and licences required for products made from vulnerable animals like wolves and some zebras.

Anybody, for example, wanting to import 1,000 suitcases made up in Paris out of Nile crocodile skins would need to produce the export licence from the country of origin, in this hypothetical example the Sudan.

If the Wildlife Licensing Division of the Department of the Environment was satisfied that the Sudan was managing its crocodile resources properly and that they were not in danger of being wiped out, the suitcases would be allowed in. If not, licences would be refused.

The World Wildlife Fund has welcomed the controls: "At the very least, we shall know for the first time how many python-skin waistcoats and ivory chess sets are coming into the country and we may see the end of British shops selling keyrings and belts made from the most endangered crocodiles."

To date, 51 countries have acceded to the Washington Convention. Of these, about three-quarters are actually putting into effect agreed legislation.

Japan, which has a deplorable record of animal exploitation, has signed the convention but is doing nothing about it. This is no surprise, but it is remarkable to find ranged alongside Japan in the "no action" category countries like the Netherlands, Belgium, Luxembourg, the Republic of Ireland and Portugal.

Meanwhile, small African states like Togo have not only signed the treaty but are enacting legislation to attempt to save their wildlife from further destruction.

The convention's second conference is to be held in Costa Rica in March. The devising of a system of funding the convention in future will be one of the main objects of the conference. So far, the convention has relied on money given to it by UNEP, the United Nations Environment Program.

Heavy Traffic Ahead

At 6:17 p.m. on the subway leaving Times Square I experience a wave of pain. It radiates up the left leg. I am careful not to show alarm, but keep my glassy stare immobile on nothing.

It is a very good glassy stare from one of the best shops. All subway riders wear them, but few are so good as mine. Even now, as the pain registers in the recording centres under the skull, it does not betray the slightest hint of humanity, although my mind is rapidly scanning huge blocks of terrifying information stored there by medical terrorists.

Pain radiating up the left leg. Could it be the coronary thrombosis they have promised me? No. Coronary thrombosis is pain radiating down the left arm.

High blood pressure? But I feel no dizziness. Kidney disease? Impossible. I have always been proud of my kidneys and cannot believe they will let me down after all the praise they have had from me. Diabetes? Poliomyelitis? Spinal disk decay?

The pain is increasing. Without the slightest change in my glassy stare, I am able to localize the source. It is the left foot. It is as though there were a great weight on my left foot.

I shift the glassy stare a fraction of a millimeter to bring the left foot into view. Toes and instep are hidden under a second foot that is not mine. It is a broad, large foot — feminine, to judge from the shoe.

To judge from the weight it supports on my left foot, it is attached to a very considerable body. My glassy stare looks straight ahead, detecting, immediately in front and towering over me, a woman of substantial dimension carrying a bulging shopping bag.

This is a delicate moment in New York, possibly in any crowded city in these days of total public armament, universal low boiling point and casual lunacy. Recently I read of a man in a Middle Western city who got shot for complaining to the person who stepped on his foot in a crowded bus.

I cannot be sure that this woman on my foot is so ruthless, or that she is even armed. On the other hand . . . the possibilities are uninviting. One might qay, "Excuse me, madame, but you are standing on my foot," and this might relieve the pain and gain an apology.

On the other hand, she might just as easily snarl, "What's the idea of calling me a madam, you swine?" and go for the head with that shopping bag.

I consider trying to move the foot, then reconsider. In the movement, I may inadvertently tickle her instep, leading her to suppose she is dealing with a masher, or upset her balance, leading her to think I am assaulting her. The scene inherent in either possibility is not inviting. The Transit Police, no matter what the papers say, do make arrests now and then.

In another era, common civility would easily solve everything. I would rise, bow to the overburdened women. "Won't you please take my seat?" This can be dangerous nowadays, however. If the overburdened woman is militantly feminist, she will be insulted, possibly outraged, by the implication that I look upon her as a "lady" instead of a companion human being.

And yet the pain is intense. Surely this woman must realize it is not the subway floor she is standing on, but an alien human foot attached to a companion human being. Why does she not shift it? Another nasty possibility comes to mind — to wit, that this woman has deliberately planted her foot on mine.

But why? My mind riffles through possibilities. Perhaps she has noted my fine, superior glassy stare. It is not the kind you see on the subway every day. Doubtless her own glassy stare is worn out and inferior. With the typical New Yorker's hatred of social injustice, she has asked herself, "What right does he have to come on the subway with that elegant glassy stare when the People have to wear ordinary, shabby, old glassy stares?"

In short, perhaps she is staging a typical New York demonstration against injustice. If so, I can expect no sympathy from the rest of the densely packed passengers if I try to extricate my foot.

And yet, the pain is becoming intolerable. I must resort to desperate methods. Sadly, I throw away my fine glassy stare that has served me so well through many subway journeys.

I look up at her without it. I sense that I am smiling, which is unheard of on a subway. She is so startled by this extraordinary sight that she drops her own glassy stare, and I see that she is smiling, too. "Excuse me, but this is my stop," I lie, as the train pulls into 57th Street. She grants me my foot with a smile. Another New York crisis has passed without catastrophe, I reflect while waiting for the next train, wondering what cunning I will have to employ before it deposits me somewhere near home.

After-Dark Patrol Rescues Indians in Distress

VANCOUVER (UPC) — Working in teams of two, eight young Indians patrol the downtown streets after dark looking for other Indians in distress in a model program that has helped keep many natives out of jail.

According to the authorities, most Indians found wandering the city streets after dark are usually the worse for drink, or drugs. When found by a patrol, they are taken home to sober up, or to hospital for treatment.

The group, which went independent 18 months ago, works under the sponsorship of the city police and receives some financial assistance from City Hall toward an annual operating budget of $100,000.

The group works out of the offices of the Vancouver Native Indian Street Workers, located in the heart of the downtown area, with Bernie Ducharme heading the street patrol operations.

They use a rented patrol car to take the badly hurt to hospital and abandoned children to the authorities, and have become expert at spotting cases of drug overdose, diabetic attacks and mugging victims.

"We also break up fights," says Ducharme. "In addition to our first aid training, we have also received instruction in martial arts and self-defence."

Ducharme is an Ontario-born Metis and a recovered alcoholic who says he "got his education on the streets."

The teams are often called in by the Vancouver police "who are always willing to let us have the drunk or overdose victims if we'll take charge," Ducharme said. "It keeps a lot of our people out of jail."

Ducharme did not say how many Indians have been helped by the group, but police estimate the patrols aid about 12 persons per night, with drunks outnumbering all other categories by a 6-to-1 ratio.

The group have formed their own society.

Dynamite Found In School Desk

LAC LA HACHE (CP) — Police continued their investigation Sunday into the discovery of six sticks of dynamite and two blasting caps in the desk of a student at an elementary school.

RCMP officers went to the school Friday and, after making some inquiries, the dynamite and caps were found in the desk of a 13-year-old girl.

The school was evacuated while the explosives were removed and destroyed. Classes resumed in the afternoon.

Further details were not available in this community 50 kilometres north of 100 Mile House in the Cariboo.

Who Is Opposition Leader? - Bennett

Times News Services

BURNABY — It's hard to tell who the real opposition leader is in British Columbia, according to Premier Bill Bennett.

Bennett told delegates at a Social Credit Party regional convention that people coming to the province from other areas would think the opposition leader's name was Jim Kinnaird instead of Dave Barrett, leader of the New Democratic Party.

Kinnaird, the president of the B.C. Federation of Labor, has been waging a verbal war with the premier over his government's recently-introduced labor legislation extending essential services to include most public-sector employees.

Bennett also said he hopes he can meet with Kinnaird soon to discuss the province's labor problems.

Kinnaird, whose federation has been holding a series of rallies to protest the legislation, has said that he would like such a meeting to take place.

Asked in Duncan to comment on the premier's remarks, Barrett said Bennett has been making wild statements lately.

"I can't comment on all of the premier's somewhat hysterical statements. He's getting a little wild lately. He again called me B.C.'s best salesman. My reaction to that was it's very simple to be the best salesman. I represent the best party and the best thing to do is to tell the truth."

The Burnaby conference was also told that wage scale guides for municipal administrators will be formulated this year.

Municipal Affairs Minister Bill Vander Zalm said that in many cases municipal managers are paid more than Premier Bennett who makes $52,000 a year and he plans to do something about it.

Tourism Minister Elwood Veitch, meanwhile, said federal government policies are preventing British Columbia's tourism industry from achieving its potential growth.

Veitch said the only impediment to a 12-per-cent expansion rate in the industry this year is a federal limitation on international landing rights at Vancouver International Airport.

The tourism industry is the province's third largest, after forestry and mining, but has the potential to be the biggest if the province is given a free hand in arranging tours and charters, Veitch said.

He also told the meeting he has arranged a series of winter tours with a Japanese touring company that will bring 1,600 more visitors to the province.

Arguing that standards of education have dropped alarmingly in recent years, Education Minister Pat McGeer, warned the meeting that the performance of school teachers and administrators will be watched closely in the coming months.

He said he wants a curriculum developed in schools that will teach students the skills that will make them become "productive members of society."

Off-Road Vehicles Target

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — The government plans to crack down this spring on drivers of off-highway vehicles who damage the environment and farmers' land.

Kent Stewart, member of a government committee appointed to produce legislation governing snowmobiles, trail motorcycles and other types of all-terrain vehicles, said numerous complaints have arisen from use of the vehicles.

"Farmers have told us their crops have been damaged by snowmobiles and in alpine areas we've been hearing about vehicle tracks stripping off thin topsoil and causing erosion," Stewart said.

Stewart said the law would crack down on those who damage the environment but would also create new trails for recreational vehicles.

All off-highway vehicles will be required to have a decal affixed to the rear for quick identification, Stewart said. Failure to have a decal will be an offence and there will be tickets and fines for offenders.

Any conservation officer, forest ranger or policeman will be able to issue tickets, Stewart said. He called the existing system cumbersome because it requires offenders to appear before a judge.

The new trails for motrocycles would be managed areas with small fees for use. Among the areas the committee is looking for trail sites is the suburban Vancouver district.

U.K. Strike in Week Four And Still No End in Sight

Times News Services

LONDON — Strikes and slowdowns by 1.5 million public service workers demanding large pay increases entered their fourth week today with no sign of an end to the nation-wide disruption they have caused.

The National Union of Public Employees, one of the four unions waging the campaign, warned it will intensify its actions after municipal authorities called in private contractors to remove garbage piled in city streets.

Some cities have not had garbage collections since Christmas and fire brigades have warned the piles of rotting garbage are becoming serious fire and health hazards.

Most ambulance units still are only attending life-or-death cases.

The public-service workers are demanding a 42-per-cent pay increase.

Prime Minister James Callaghan's Labor government, fighting to keep pay raises to five per cent to combat inflation, has given state agencies and municipal authorities who employ the strikers permission to offer 8.8 per cent. The unions have rejected this.

Callaghan and his cabinet are seeking to work out some kind of pact with the Trades Union Congress in a bid to moderate the pay demands, head off industrial chaos and salvage Labor's dwindling chances of winning an election due before October.

The latest public-opinion poll, published by The Daily Mail today, gave the Opposition Conservatives an 18-point lead over Labor.

Fifty-three per cent of Britons questioned said they would vote Conservative and 35 per cent Labor. Two months ago, Labor had a three-point lead.

And for the first time, Conservative leader Margaret Thatcher pulled ahead of the prime minister in the personal popularity stakes. She got 44 per cent while Callaghan only got 33 per cent.

Thatcher has promised tough measures to curb trade union power if she is elected prime minister in the coming general election.

Mrs. Thatcher said on the weekend that under a Conservative party government, strikes such as the present one in essential services would be outlawed.

Highways Closed By Slides

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two major B.C. highways were struck by avalanches Saturday but one was open to single-lane traffic late Sunday night.

Still closed indefinitely, however, was the summit section of the Salmo-Creston portion of Highway 3 in southeastern B.C. A detour using Highway 3A was in effect.

The Pine Pass section of Highway 97 north of Prince George is open to one-lane traffic.

UGANDA UNDER ATTACK

NAIROBI (AP) — The Uganda government radio said today that Tanzanian troops using tanks and heavy artillery have pushed 50 kilometres into Uganda in one of the deepest reported penetrations of the four-month border war between the two East African neighbors.

The broadcast said fierce fighting and shelling was continuing. A military spokesman, believed to be President Idi Amin, said the situation was "very, very serious."

There was no immediate comment from Tanzania.

Uganda said that Tanzanian troops were near Kyotera, a village on the road to Masaka, Uganda's fourth-largest city 135 kilometres southwest of Kampala, the capital.

The broadcast said Ugandan forces were performing well and were cutting the supply routes of the Tanzanian invaders. It gave no indication of the size of the Tanzanian force.

U.S. and Canada Take Boat People

MANILA (UPI) — The United States announced today it would accept 1,200 Vietnamese refugees from the Philippines, including 600 from the freighter Tung An, marooned in Manila Bay for 48 days.

Canada also confirmed it would take from 300 to 350 refugees from the vessel packed with 2,100 Vietnamese and Australia said it would resettle 200.

The announcements by the three countries came at a meeting of about 30 ambassadors brought together by Foreign Minister Carlos P. Romulo to discuss the refugee situation in the Philippines.

U.S. Ambassador Richard Murphy told the assembled officials the United States would take 600 refugees from the Fabella Center in suburban Mandaluyong Town and 600 from the Tung An.

Murphy's announcement came on the 48th day of the Tung An's stay in Manila Bay. Refugees aboard the vessel were denied asylum in the Philippines, which claimed there was no more room for them at Fabella.

More than 2,000 refugees at Fabella have been awaiting resettlement for months prior to the arrival of the Tung An Dec. 27 and the United States had refused to give priority to the people aboard the vessel.

Romulo could not immediately say if the Philippines still planned to drive out the Tung An and send it to Hong Kong, its original destination, as it had threatened to do. He said the final decision would come from President Ferdinand E. Marcos.

Romulo added that the Tung An refugees were creating health problems for Filipinos residing on the fringes of Manila Bay where the boat people were dumping their wastes.

Gabonese Ambassador Joachim Pallard told Romulo several African states were willing to resettle the refugees but they have refused the offer.

During the meeting, an envoy of the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees announced that a high-powered UNHCR delegation was to fly to Hanoi this month to discuss a "family reunification program" that could hopefully stop the outflow of boat people from Vietnam.

Ford Pays Widow $100,000

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. has paid at least $100,000 to the widow of a man who died of injuries suffered when his Ford pickup truck allegedly slipped into gear and ran over him.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) is investigating the automatic transmissions on some nine million Ford cars and light trucks because they allegedly tend to slip from "park" to "reverse."

Ford officials confirmed they made the out-of-court settlement with a Montana woman but denied it was an admission anything was wrong with the transmission.

Best Now Wear Red Jerseys

By JOHN WARD

NEW YORK (CP) — The best hockey players in the world used to come from Prairie farms, Northern Ontario mining towns and the outdoor rinks of Quebec. Today, they come from places with unfamiliar names like Kirov, Ukhta, Gorki and Riga. And they wear red jerseys.

The Soviet national team demonstrated that decisively Sunday night when they rounced the National Hockey League all-stars 6-0 to win the Challenge Cup series by two games to one.

After losing the opener 4-2 on Thursday, the Soviets had come back with a flowing demonstration of hockey skills in the second game Saturday. Down 4-2 in the second period, they scored three unanswered goals to win 5-4.

Sunday, in the deciding game, the red jerseys were all over the ice. They played a scoreless first period, but midway through the second, the NHL dam burst.

With little Vladimir Myshkin, a 23-year-old from Riga stopping everything the NHL could throw at him in the Soviet goal, the nationals scored six goals on Gerry Cheevers.

By the end of the game Sunday, it was hard to remember the last NHL goal. For the record, it was scored Saturday afternoon, at 5:06 of the second period by Monteal's Larry Robinson.

Two Soviet goaltenders, Vladislav Tretiak on Saturday and Myshkin on Sunday, shut out the NHL for 94 minutes and 54 seconds.

The six Soviet goals in the final game came from six different players. They were: Boris Mikhailov, of Moscow, Victor Zhluktov of Kramatorsk, Donetskaya, Helmut Balderis of Riga, Vladimir Kovin of Gorki, Sergei Makarov of Chelyabinsk and Alexander Golikov of Penza.

In the first period of the deciding game, the all-stars kept pace with the Soviets, but appeared unable to get their attacks organized. Coach Scotty Bowman had juggled his lines after the second game, still looking for the elusive combination that might give his team an edge.

He benched Marcel Dionne of Los Angeles and Steve Shutt of Montreal and put speedy Guy Lafleur of Montreal out on a line with team-mate Bob Gainey and Buffalo's Gil Perreault.

Despite the line changes, the NHL had the same problems they suffered from in Game 2. Their passes missed by inches, their lines didn't mesh and their defencemen never quite got their plays going. Against any other squad from the NHL those defects likely would have been negligible. Against the Soviets, they were fatal.

Cheevers made some spectacular first-period savs, but Myshkin played just as well, turning away the all-stars on every attempt.

In the second period, the Soviets kept up the pressure and Myshkin kept up his guard. They finally pounced on a miscue. Gainey, trying to hit Guy Lafleur up-ice, laid his pass right on the stick of Alexander Golikov.

The Soviet forward, passed to team captain Boris Mikhailov and the veteran's quick wrist shot beat Cheevers. It was his third goal of the series.

Two minutes later, the Soviets had a power-play opportunity with Don Marcotte of Boston Bruins serving two minutes for elbowing.

Balderis took a pass in the corner and whipped a shot from an impossible angle, but Zhluktov was parked in the slot, a spot the Soviets found irresistible and one from which the NHL defence could not seem to budge them. The Soviet forward got his stick on drive and tipped it behind Cheevers.

The NHL power play had several chances later in the period, but Myshkin fended them off. He also found time to get into a pushing match with Bryan Trottier of New York Islanders.

Both drew two minutes roughing penalties and the Soviets complained bitterly about the call. They made vague threats of withdrawing their team if it happened again.

In the third period, disaster struck the NHL. The Soviets completely dominated the play. Their forechecking squelched the all-stars' playmaking, they were hitting and taking hits without a qualm, and their skating caught the NHL flat-footed more than once.

Irek Gimayev found the opening to start the bombardment when he headed down the ice on a two-on-one break and relayed a pass to Balderis, who flipped the puck over Cheevers.

The Soviets finished their gunnery practice at 14:46, when Golikov picked off an errant pass during an NHL power play and charged down the ice alone to slap a whistling drive into the net.

The Soviets showed poise and power throughout the game. Their relentless defence harried the NHL all night and their forechecking made it difficult fot the all-stars to break out of their own end with any kind of co-ordinated drive. Even the sell-out crowd of more than 17,500 in Madison Square Garden — an obsessively partisan crowd at best — paid grudging tribute to the Soviets, cheering their last two goals and giving Myshkin a loud round of applause on a couple of his more unlikely saves.

After the game, Mikhailov accepted the gleaming Challenge Cup on behalf of the Soviet team. He also received a television video recorder given to the most-valuable player on each team. Clark Gillies was the Team NHL choice.

Valeri Vasilyev and Soviet Team Captain Boris Mikhailov Hoist Challenge Cup After Victory

NHL in Awe As Russians Fondle Cup

By CLAUDE ADAMS

NEW YORK — Gerry Cheevers, a figure of dejection in a bathrobe and cowboy boots, said it was all his fault and Serge Savard blamed the NHL for breeding goons instead of skaters, while down the hall, the greatest hockey team in the world fondled the Challenge Cup and bellowed in Russian.

In a hallway in the bowels of Madison Square Garden, Jean Beliveau, who played hockey in an era when chess was still the Soviet national sport, stood alone shaking his head.

The commissars of USSR ice hockey were gracious in victory, after their national team clobbered the NHL all-stars 6-0 Sunday night to carry off the three-game Challenge Cup series.

"The NHL could gather three teams as good as the one that played tonight," said Viacheslav Golishov, managing director of the Soviet ice hockey federation. "We could not have done the same."

Behind him stood a smiling, blond-haired kid named Vladimir Myshkin (pronounced Mooshkin), who had just made his debut in top echelon hockey by shutting out the Guy Lafleurs and Bobby Clarkes.

In a stirring 60 minutes, Myshkin relegated the great Russian goalkeeper Vladislav Tretiak to the status of "the other guy."

In the NHL dressing room, a bunch of the highest paid athletes on the continent were wiping off the sweat and trying their damndest to be philosophical about the whole thing.

Some, like New York Islanders forward Clark Gillies, were just in awe.

"I've never seen hitting like we hit them in the first period," he was saying. "But it never even fazed them." Gillies was one of several all-stars who inflicted assault and battery on the Soviets in a punishing first period that was, incredibly, penalty-free. And indeed, the men in red just got up, adjusted their helmets and skated faster.

"We've got to study them a bit more," Gillies added, in the understatement of the series.

Cheevers, the Boston goalkeeper who replaced Montreal's Ken Dryden, was making an anguished act of contrition in his cubicle.

Over and over again, he said: "I was terrible, horrible . . . I didn't give my team the chance to win by making the big saves. I had plenty of time to prepare for this game, mentally and physically . . . I didn't challenge them . . . it started to snowball and it just got worse ..."

His voice trailed off . . . everybody thought he was going to break down in tears. Then he put on his cowboy boots and it looked ridiculous but nobody laughed.

Savard, the Montreal Canadiens defenceman who had a less-than-stellar series, decided it was time for candor.

"This will improve the game . . . Look, let's be honest. The owners in the league will probably realize they took the wrong directions in the last five or 10 years. "We've been developing goons in the last 10 years instead of hockey players and this came out today . . .The (Philadelphia) Flyers won the cup two years in a row and we all know how they won. Today, all the kids in the junior leagues have to wear helmets and facemasks, and they can't give a good check; they have to come in with the stick up."

Larry Robinson of the Canadiens talked about hurt pride, letting the rest of the NHL down and the mental and physical drain of trying to keep up with the Soviets for three games "I just want to go home and have a good rest."

Asked if the Soviet nationals were the greatest hockey team he had ever played against, Bill Barber of the Flyers said: "Yes", surprised the question needed to be asked.

After the second period Sunday, when the Soviets were ahead 2-0 and a pall of gloom had started to settle over the 17,500 Garden fans who had paid up to $25 a seat for this overpriced affair, the sound system played Russian folk music.

It was the perfect way to herald in the devastating final 20 minutes. The Soviets came out high-stepping and happy, with some of the fanciest choreography that NHLers have ever witnessed.

After nine minutes, the Soviet's Helmut Balderis, who skates like most NHLers wished they could, put one past Cheevers to make it 3-0.

The crowd chanted a rude word ("Bullshit") because the goal came immediately after referee Andy van Hellemond had ignored what everyone thought should have been a Soviet hooking penalty.

Two minutes later, the Soviets fired in another one and the Garden crowd went dead quiet. The NHLers, out to salvage a few scraps of pride, mounted an attack but Myshkin, an Iron Curtain in nets, only got better. Two minutes later, whoops, it was 5-0. And two minutes after that, forward Alexander Golikov scooped up a terrible Denis Potvin pass, skated up ice, and drilled the coup de grace past Cheevers.

By the time the Soviets were carrying the Challenge Cup around the rink in their victory skate, thousands of fans were warming up their cars.

Soviet forward Boris Mikhailov, the most talented Russian on the ice was named the MVP of the series. A New York fan yelled out "Ya bum" but hundreds of others applauded.

Five of the NHLers remained on the ice to watch. One of them was Dryden, leaning on his stick in the now-classic Dryden pose. An angry New York fan threw a glove at Myshkin. Myshkin stopped it, like he'd been stopping everything else all night, and threw it back.

That told it all.

Today 'Our Turn' The Russian View

By AL COLLETTI

NEW YORK (CP) — Soviet officials didn't try to make capital of the one-sided victory of their national hockey team over Team NHL in the Challenge Cup series windup on Sunday night.

Rather, they were willing to let the 6-0 victory in the third game and taking the Cup two games to one speak for themselves.

But what is in the offing is the prospect of even stronger Soviet national teams, Soviet coach Victor Tikhonov said.

Vyacheslav Koloskov, head of the hockey department of the Sports Committee of the U.S.S.R., said the series was important from two aspects:

1. It was a key stage in the preparation for the world championships in April. The Soviet Union is defending champion.

2. The prestige it brings to the Soviet Union of winning against the best NHL stars.

"Actually, the two best teams of the world have confronted each other," Koloskov said. "And this series indicated that ours was the best team."

Koloskov made it clear, however, that Canadians shouldn't feel that in hockey they are inferior to the Soviets now.

Being the best team in the series "doesn't indicate in any way that hockey in Canada is poorer than hockey in our country," Koloskov said.

Koloskov complained about referee Andy Van Hellemond not being impartial to the Soviet side.

Some observers felt if anything that Van Hellemond was too lax in calling some obvious infractions against both sides. There were only five minors in the game, three against the Soviet Union.

Soviet coach Victor Tikhonov said he planned to start young Vladimir Myshkin in goal for one of the games because he wanted him to face a difficult test at this stage in his career.

Tikhonov begged off a question on how his team compared with others from the Soviet Union in the past.

"I would like to refrain from an assessment like this because, for a certain period, this is the best team.

"Next year, this team has to be stronger, and in the forthcoming five years, it has to be still stronger. Therefore, we can speak only of the way things stand today."

Tikhonov wouldn't say whether he had threatened to take his team off the ice after Myshkin and centre Bryan Trottier of New York Islanders tangled in the Soviet goal.

Trottier threw a couple of punches, flooring Myshkin. Both got two-minute penalties for roughing.

But the Soviets in fact had threatened to walk out.

Tikhonov would only say:

"Why should we take the team off the ice? In a certain concrete case, we did clear up the misunderstanding which arose and afterwards the game went on."

After Myshkin, blond-haired and small, was introduced to the media, he said that he played his normal game.

But he did have some anxious moments, he said.

"In the second period, we let three people in alone, and when Guy Lafleur had a breakaway that was an acute period. All the rest was more or less quite normal."

Myshkin said he didn't realize that near the end of the game the 17,500 fans in Madison Square Garden were cheering him. He thought the cheers were for the NHLers.

Myshkin said he was looking forward to lots of good food to celebrate the victory.

CAMPBELL 'FAIR'

NEW YORK (AP) — Clarence Campbell, former National Hockey League president, was in fair condition today after undergoing surgery Sunday for an intestinal obstruction.

Bobby Clarke Gets Thumped to Ice Behind Soviet Goal

They Were Better Says Weary Bobby

NEW YORK (CP) — Tousled, tired and resigned after Team NHL's 6-0 loss to the Soviet Union's national team Sunday, Bobby Clarke took the loss in stride.

The captain of the National Hockey League all-stars sat in the dressing room afterwards, patiently answering questions and repeating the same theme over and over again: "They were a better hockey club than we were."

Clarke knows the Soviets. He has played against them in every meeting of NHL all-star teams and has played with his own Philadelphia Flyers against both Soviet Red Army and Soviet Wings. Sunday's game was his 14th against a Soviet club.

From the time he helped Team Canada win the first thrilling series with the Soviets in 1972, he has seen his teams win seven, lose five and tie two.

In the NHL's latest, losing venture against the Soviet Union, Clarke was a sparkplug. The New York fans, rabid foes of the Flyers, booed him at the formal introductions before each game, but it did not seem to affect him.

He managed only a single assist during the Challenge Cup, but he was a tireless digger in all three games and when it was all over, he had good words for everyone.

"Everybody worked hard tonight," he said of his team-mates. "Everybody was ready to play, they were a better hockey club."

He compared the series with the Stanley Cup finals.

"The same intensity is involved and desires and everything," he said. "You have the same feelings when you win and the same feelings when you lose."

Clarke said the loss in the series should not hurt the NHL.

"It'll be a setback if we didn't learn anything from it, I guess."

Were there lessons to be learned?

"We learned that skating and passing and shooting are still the name of the game," he said. "Do all the hitting and stuff you want, but if you can't finish the plays off, then you're not going to accomplish anything."

He said he likes the idea of playing the Soviets and had no complaints about the short time given to practice — three days before the opening game.

"We didn't have any choice. That's what they gave us to work with so that's what we did."

"They were a better hockey team than we were. That's all."

WHL, City To Curb Violence

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

Western Hockey League headquarters and the City of Victoria, each handling "our own responsibilities," are expected to take action in order to prevent recurrences of the ugly incident at Memorial Arena on Saturday night that marred Victoria Cougars' 7-3 victory over New Westminster Bruins.

New Westminster players, attacking dangerously with their sticks, and a few fans, irresponsibly throwing cups of hot coffee and at least one bottle, were central figures in the violence at game's end.

Victoria players were not involved.

Fortunately, and somewhat remarkably, no one was seriously hurt.

The only casualty was a youthful fan who appeared to be an innocent bystander. Rick Sallis, sitting in south-end seats with his girl friend, was hit on the forehead by a puck thrown by New Westminster centre Scott MacLeod.

It was a fan in another south-end section that may have touched off the incident when he threw a cup of coffee that struck New Westminster goaltender Richard Martens.

The incensed Martens immediately went on the attack and started swinging his stick, hitting, mainly, the protective glass. Other Bruin players then joined in by swinging their sticks viciously and recklessly. While it appeared that the protective glass partitions did the job, some fans were caught with glancing blows.

Referee Bob Hall and Al Paradice, supervisor of officials who was in attendance, both filed reports. "I can't say what action, if any, will be taken," said Paradice.

He added the league takes a "dim view" of any stick-swinging by players and would not be surprised if some action was taken.

Victoria Alderman Robin Blencoe, the city's chairman of recreation who was in attendance but left moments before the game ended, said he plans to meet with Arena manager Jack Morgan today "to nip this kind of rowdiness in the bud."

"We can't control what happens on the ice," said Blencoe, "and we don't like to be accused of political interference. But anything that happens in our building is under our jurisdiction."

"We're going to crack down on anyone who creates trouble. We don't want to detract from the exciting Cougars' play, but we can't have a few fans spoiling it for the majority who come to the arena to see hockey.

"We will have to consider immediate ejection of any fan starting trouble. If the same people continue to make trouble, then we'll just have to ban them from the arena permanently.

"It worked last year when we had trouble with a few fans," added Blencoe.

At each game, fans were warned that anyone throwing any object on the ice would be subject to immediate ejection.

This year, littering is not a problem.

The game itself was reasonably quiet. Hall called only 11 minors and two majors — to Victoria's Randy Irving and Rick Amann of the Bruins for a third-period fight.

Down 2-0 at one stage, the Cougars struck for seven straight goals before Bruins' John Paul Kelly, one of the most violent of the stick-swingers at game's end, closed out scoring late in the final period.

Irving, Gary Lupul and rookie Brad Palmer spearheaded Victoria's offense, which counted more than five goals in one game for the first time in 1979. Six of the goals came within a 12-minute span in the second.

Lupul laid down a perfect pass to Bob Smith for Victoria's first goal, then added the second himself. Mike Shields, Palmer, Greg Adams and Irving, in rapid-fire order, put Cougars in command, 6-2, before the 15-minute mark of the middle period.

Irving got his second of the night and fourth in three games in the third period.

Smith, Carlisle Island Reps In B.C. Mixed

Times News Services

Dave Smith of Juan de Fuca and Ivan Carlisle of Port Alberni will represent the Island in the B.C. Mixed Curling championship at the Racquet Club of Victoria, beginning Friday night.

Smith captured the "B" side of the eight-rink Island final at Campbell River, Sunday, stealing the winning point in a 5-4 extra-end victory over Al Frame of the Racquet Club.

Carlisle, runner up to the Pacific Coast Curling Association men's championship last week at Duncan, won "A" side with a 10-3 victory over Smith.

Earlier Sunday Frame eliminated Pat Ryan of Campbell River 9-1. Carlisle handed Frame his first defeat, 8-7, also in an extra-end game.

Frame defeated Ray Jones of Port Hardy 9-7 in the "B" semi-final and Ryan eliminated Rob Cummings of Victoria 8-6. Jones earlier eliminated Fred Duncan of Port Alberni 8-7 and Cummings knocked out Pat McGuire of Esquimalt 7-5.

Coomber Wins Junior Title

In Vancouver, Stacey Coomber and his Powell River foursome won the British Columbia Junior men's curling championship and advanced to the Canadian final in Victoria, March 19-24.

Coomber defeated Bob Arksey of Clearwater 7-5 to finish the round-robin competition with three straight victories.

Simpson Meets Pierce in B.C. Final

In Cranbrook, Dave Simpson of Vernon had three three-point ends as he captured the BCCA title with an 11-6 victory over Barry McPhee of Kamloops.

Simpson meets PCCA champion Glen Pierce of Vancouver in the best-of-three provincial final starting at Cranbrook today. Other members of the Simpson rink are third John Taporowski, second Doug Wier and lead Dale Rintoul.

Winner of the Pierce-Simpson series will represent B.C.in the Brier at Ottawa, March 4-10.

Devlin Eliminates Canadian Champ

In Calgary, Paul Devlin of Edmonton knocked out defending Canadian champion Ed Lukowich of Medicine Hat 7-4 in the final of the Alberta curling championship. The result was a reversal of Lukowich's decision over Devlin in last year's provincial final. Earlier Sunday, Lukowich forced the championship into a final and deciding game when he defeated Devlin 7-6.

Spriggs Sets Pace

Martin Spriggs, riding a Yamaha, collected 33 points under the reverse-scoring system Sunday to win the expert category of the annual Reg Shanks observed trial at the Victoria Motorcycle Club property on Happy Valley Road.

Peter Wille, aboard a Montessa, was second with 62 and Roger Boothroyd, on a Yamaha, was third with 75.

The event was the first in a series of six trials leading to the club championship.

NOVICES: 1. Blake McFarlane, Yamaha, 21; 2. Steve Fracy, Yamaha, 37; 3. Paul Boothroyde, Yamaha, 39.

Brandon Crowded With Games' Gang

Times News Services

Ontario hopes to regain the title from Quebec when the fourth Canada Winter Games open in Brandon today with some 3,000 athletes from the 10 provinces and the Yukon and Northwest Territories competing in 17 sports.

Ontario virtually owned the first two editions of the Winter Games — at Quebec City in 1967 and Saskatoon in 1971 — but then lost by a slim margin in the final points standings at Lethbridge in 1975. Quebec won by 219 points to British Columbia's 216 and Ontario's 215.

Competition begins today in badminton, boxing and hockey.

The CBC national network plans a two-hour telecast of today's opening, starting at 5 p.m. PST.

The population of this city of about 36,000 is expected to nearly double during the next two weeks with the influx of athletes, officials and Games visitors. As well, there are already many observers arriving to prepare for viewing of the Feb. 26 eclipse of the sun, which is further taxing the community's hotel facilities.

Twenty-five participants in the Northern British Columbia Winter Games have been suspended because of their conduct during the event Feb. 2-4 in Smithers. Games chairman Brian Northrup said Sunday the reasons for the suspensions covered violations ranging from breaking curfew to criminal offences.

Police are investigating charges by a Smithers hotel that a Williams Lake group damaged rooms and left without paying for accommodation.

Northrup said the suspensions range from a year to all future Games.

The Games society originally tried to hush up the suspensions but decided to make their actions public. The society declined, however, to name the suspended individuals.

John Walker said after winning the mile run in an indoor track meet at Montreal on Sunday that he is returning to New Zealand to undertake serious training for the 1980 Olympic Games in Moscow. Walker won the mile in three minutes, 56.8 seconds against a top-flight international field, including the fabled Filbert Bayi of Tanzania and a Kenya's Henry Rono, Wilson Waigwa and Jam Munyala.

Walker and Bayi were to meet at the 1976 Olympics, but that duel failed to materialize when Tanzania joined a boycott of the Games by many African countries. Bayi finished sixth and last, a good half-lap behind Walker.

Renaldo Nehemia of the University of Maryland won the men's 60-metre hurdles in 7.62 seconds. It was Nehemia's 16th straight victory this year. He recorded No. 15 in Ottawa Saturday.

Kings Lose Final

HULL, Que. — The Racquet Club Kings of Victoria ran into penalty problems in the third period, dropped a 7-5 decision to Gatineau, Que., and had to settle for the silver medal Sunday in the Hull Invitational midget hockey tournament.

Tied 3-3 going into the final period, Gatineau capitalized on five successive penalties to the Kings.

Victoria reached the final of the 32-team tournament with a pair of victories Saturday, beating Ottawa South 4-1 in the quarter-finals and Mississauga, Ont., 3-1 in the semi-finals.

Kings' forward John Newberry was named the most sportsmanlike player in the tournament.

Victorians Take Events At Seattle

SEATTLE — Two athletes from Victoria scored victories Sunday at a Seattle all-comers' track and field meet.

Bonnie Hutton won the open women's two-mile event with a time of 11 minutes, 20.8 seconds and Craig Taylor won the open men's long jump with a leap of 23 feet, 11 inches.

Tony Theriault who, like the other Victorians, is competing under the guidance of Ron Bowker at UVic, finished fifth in the men's mile with a 4:18.9 clocking.

Borg's Victory Overshadowed By Compromise

Times News Services

Bjorn Borg, controlling the first set from the baseline and slicing winners against net-rushing Jimmy Connors in the second set, scored a 6-2, 6-3 victory Sunday for the championship of the $300,000 Grand Slam Tennis tournament at Boca Raton, Fla.

The victory was the third in a row for Borg over Connors in the Boca Raton event and was worth $150,000. Connors won $75,000.

John McEnroe defeated Guillermo Vilas 6-4, 6-0 to win third place.

Borg's thorough outplaying of Connors was overshadowed Sunday by announcement of a compromise agreement between tennis' top five male players and the governing Men's International Ppofessional Tennis Council.

The five — Borg, Connors, McEnroe, Vilas and Vitas Gerulaitis — were angered when the MIPTA introduced new rules limiting for the first time the number of exhibitions the players can play in ald also introduced the designation concept used y the Professional Golfers Association.

When the rules, which would have required them to play in six tournaments they were designated for, were announced, the five threatened to boycott the Grand Prix circuit.

In return, the five faced being barred from Uimbledon and U.S. Open, among others. John McEnroe Sr., father of the player and a Wall Qtpeet lawyer, forced the two sides to the bargainine table. It resulted in a compromise that will allow them to veto one of the six designated tournaments and raised from three to six the number of exhiitimls they could play in.

Top-seeded Chris Evert, content to hammer returns from the baseline for most of the matah, outduelled Renee Richards 6-1, 3-6, 6-3 to win her first tournament of the year on the women's ppodessional circuit. Evert, 24, took home $24,000 in the ueek-long $125,000 event at the Seattle Aoliseum. Earlier, Kerry Reid of Australia, the fmurth seed, defeated Jeanne Duvall 7-6 for third place.

And in Montreal, sixteen-year-old Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia defeated Leslie Allen mf New Yopk 7-6, 9-7, 6-2 in the final of a $25,000 Futures pro tournament. Mandlikova became the youngest player to win an event on the development circuit this season. Marjorie Blackwood of Ottawa and Kym Ruddell of Australia won the doubles 6-4, 3-6, 6-4 over Raquel Giscafre of Argentina and Jane Stratton of Salt Lake City, Utah. The Giscafre-Strattol combination defeated Victoria's Wendy Barlow and Maria Rothschild of St. Louis 6-7, 6-1, 7-5 il mne of Saturday's semi-finals.

Australia defeated India 3-2 in the Davis Cup Eastern Zone semi-finals today, its victory at Madras, India, clinched by John Alexander's sineles victory over Sashi Menon. Alexander took the fidth set 6-4 when the match resumed, taking the match 6-8, 3-6, 6-3, 6-3. The match was stopped Sunday because of darkness. Australia had won the first two singles matches, India the doubles and the first reverse singles. The win allows Australia to go to the zone finals against New Zealand, which defeated Japan on Sunday.

Stance 4-25-WB Works for Green

HONOLULU, Hawaii (AP) — Hubert Green talked of a scene that took place on the practice putting green early last week as he prepared for a defence of his title in the Hawaiian Open golf tournament.

"My putting had been terrible all year.

"I was lost.

"Ben Crenshaw was out there helping. Hell, my wife was helping me.

"I was struggling. People were laughing at me."

So, he said, he went to "my putting stance No. 4-25-WB."

It worked.

It produced a relatively easy three-stroke victory with a 21-under-par total of 267. He closed it out in a howling tropic squall with a 69, and no one got closer than the final margin over the last round. He made only one bogey for the week.

With a four-shot lead Sunday, he birdied three holes in a row — the sixth, seventh and eight — in a drizzling rain at the soaked and soggy Waialae Country Club. That lifted his lead to six shots, gave him the margin he needed.

Fuzzy Zoeller made the biggest — perhaps only — move of the stormy day. But he had no realistic hope of catching Green: "At the turn I was 13 under. Hubert was 22 under. I was playing for second."

Zoeller played his back nine in 31, including birdies on the last two holes, for a 65 that gave him second, alone at 270.

Dan Halldorson of Brandon, who had a share of the second-round lead and trailed by five entering play Sunday, shot a final-round 71 for a 274 total and a share of seventh. He won $9,675.

George Knudson of Toronto finished at 72—283 and took home $801.

Tea-Time Deluge Halts Test

SYDNEY (Reuter) — Rain ended play for the day two hours early Sunday on the second day of the sixth cricket test between England and Australia, stopping the touring side from building a sizeable first-innings lead.

Rain swept across the Sydney Cricket Ground in a torrential downpour minutes after the players left the field for tea and one hour later umpires called off play because the wicket area was too wet.

At tea England had recovered from a poor start to the day's play to be 216 for four in reply to Australia's first-innings total of 198.

North Shore Repeats

VERNON (CP) — North Shore Winter Club downed Vernon 10-4 Sunday to win the eighth annual Vernon peewee hockey tournament for the second year in a row.

Saskatoon defeated Brandon 8-3 in the consolation final. Brandon reached the "B" final by trouncing Fuller Lake Flyers 9-2 in Saturday's action.

L.A. STILL UNDER CLOUD

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP) — The International Olympic Committee today warned Los Angeles' Olympic planners not to presume the city definitely will be given the 1984 Games despite the weekend agreeement by the two organizers.

Only hours after receiving a copy of the agreement between the United States Olympic Committee and the L.A. Organizing Committee, IOC director Monique Berlioux commented: "I suppose it is okay. But it must receive our approval before the city can officially be granted the Games."

The IOC, which already has signed one contract with the two bodies giving them financial responsibility for the Games, has set a March 1 deadline for them to put their pens to the final, formal contract.

Berlioux said the IOC was now "pretty optimistic" that the contract will be signed in time.

Declining to disclose the contents of the multi-clause USOC-LAOC agreement, Berlioux said it would have to be checked thoroughly "to make sure it does not break any rules."

After it has been studied, she said, it will pass to the IOC's legal advisors for further scrutiny. Only after this can any signature date be fixed, she said, adding this could take up to a week.

ERIC HEIDEN SHATTERS WORLD SKATING MARKS

OSLO, Norway (AP) — Eric Heiden of Madison, Wis., established himself as the world's best speedskater in recorded competition when he won his seventh straight world title and the third in a row for all-rounders at the 1979 world championships Sunday.

With championship records in all four races, Heiden not only outclassed all his 32 rivals from 17 countries, but also set a world points record for all four distances with 162.973 points. The old record for a single meet of 163.221 points was set by European all-round champion Jan Egil Storholt of Norway at a high-mountain rink in 1977.

In speedskating, points are based on time for 500 metres and average 500-metre times for the longer races. Thus the winner always has the lowest score.

Heiden, already champion after winning the three first races, finished the 10,000-metre race Sunday in 14 minutes 43.11 seconds, a world record for lowland rinks and only 8.77 seconds from the official world record of 14.34.33 set by Viktor Ljoskin of the Soviet Union at the Medeo rink in 1977.

Saturday Heiden won the 500 metres in 38.22 seconds and the 5,000 metres in 6:59.15. Earlier Sunday he won the 1,500 metres in 1:56.05.

Craig Webster of Regina, the only Canadian racer here, posted a time of 2:06.95 in Sunday's 1,500 event, good for 28th place but did not qualify for the 10,000 race. Webster was 19th in the 500 Saturday.

Athletics Regain First-Place Spot

Victoria Athletics regained sole possession of the first division lead by bouncing Powell River Villas 6-1 in Vancouver Island Soccer League play Sunday at Topaz Park.

Victoria West had gained a share of the lead by edging Cosmopolitan Royals 3-2 in the lone match Saturday.

In other Sunday tussles, Nanaimo United tripped UVic Vikings 4-1 and Gorge nudged Duncan, 1-0.

Dan Hood set the pace for Athletics with two goals and singles were added by Ash Douglas, Mark Robb, Steve Carroll and Gil Windley. Graham Hollingsorth averted a shutout for Powell River.

Steve Moss, Garnet Moen and Bob Duncan connected for Wests while Mark Wyatt and Bob Mackie countered for Royals.

Two goals by Rick Sage sparked the United victory and singles were added by Ron Sage and Murray Carver. Paul Petersen scored the lone goal for Vikings.

Howie Kirk scored for Gorge.

ISLAND POLICE RETAIN CROWN

DUNCAN — Vancouver Islanders scored three unanswered goals in the third period to double Lower Mainland RCMP 6-3 and win the British Columbia police hockey championship for a third straight time Sunday.

Murray Kennett fired three goals to lead the winners before 850 fans in the new Cowichan Recreation Centre while Bruce Skalag added two and Bruce Swanton scored a single.

Prince Rupert downed Kelowna 5-3 to win the B Division of the tournament, which was contested by 11 B.C. police teams.

The Islanders advanced to the final Saturday by tripping Vancouver City 7-3 behind the five-goal performance of Bruce Cowick.

Jubilation Is Brief

STATEN, Ore. — Victoria DataTech broke a seven-game losing streak but jubilation was short-lived Saturday as team was quickly bounced from championship contention in the double-knockout, 16-team Staten Invitational senior men's basketball tournament.

Sparked by Varick Cutler's 26 points, DataTech opened with an 81-73 victory over Klamath Falls, Ore., but was eliminated after dropping their next two starts — 68-67 to Beaverton, Ore., and 89-76 to Ilwaco, Wash.

Tournament games consistented of 15-minute halves rather than the regulation 20 minutes because of the demanding schedule.

Cutler added 24 points against Beaverton and 20 against Ilwaco. Billy Loos scored 15 against Beaverton and 21 against Ilwaco.

DataTech went into the tourney with only 10 players. Brian MacKenzie, Ken Shields, Dave Morgan and Jim Duddridge all were unable to make the trip.

Islanders End Losing Streak

Doug Jordan led Kerry Park with three goals, Pat Going added two and singles came from Paul Schwam, Kevin Park, Randy Russell, Don McFarlane and Mark Jinnouchi.

Robbie Frost counted three goals and two assists for Lake Cowichan, which trailed by period scores of 2-1 and 5-2. Bill Marsh and Ron Hughes added singles for Truckers.

Shane Theoboid and John Marsh combined to make 42 saves in the Lake Cowichan goal and Terry Burns of Islanders blocked 35 shots.

TILDEN
NO-GIMMICK CAR RENTALS
Our rates are a pleasant surprise!

At Tilden, it's our policy for every station to have its rates printed and displayed—because we don't want you to think that we charge "what the traffic will bear"!
Also, we think it's gimmicky to feature absurd "come-on" prices when the real cost ends up being the kind of surprise you don't need—once you've figured it out! What we feature is what you pay!
So next time you need wheels, get them with no gimmicks—from Tilden. And as we include 200 kilometres on the house per day at most of our stations, we think you'll find our rates an even more pleasant surprise!

Delesalle Top Athlete

VANCOUVER (CP) — Philip Delesalle of Victoria, the only Canadian gymnast to score a perfect mark in competition, has been named British Columbia's 1978 athlete-of-the-year.

Delesalle, also selected B.C.'s senior athlete-of-the-year, received both citations Saturday at the annual Sport B.C. awards dinner.

He scored a perfect mark of 10 in the pommel horse competition at the Pacific Rim invitational championships in Vancouver. He also won that meet's aggregate title, a feat he performed one week earlier at the Pacific Rim meet in Edmonton against the United States and China.

Delesalle, 20, a three-time national champion, also won two gold medals at last year's Commonwealth Games in Edmonton, winning the over-all crown and leading the Canadian men to a team victory.

Figure-skater Dennis Coi of Vancouver, who won the world junior title in 1978, was named the province's best junior athlete.

Other finalists for the junior award were gymnast Karen Kelsall of Surrey and Victoria tennis player Wendy Barlow.

The university athlete-of-the-year was Jay Triano, who set basketball scoring records at Simon Fraser University.

Gerald Kazanowski of Nanaimo was named the high school athlete. Kazanowski led Nanaimo to last year's provincial basketball title.

George Morfitt of West Vancouver was named the master athlete for the second consecutive year. In 1978 Morfitt became the first Canadian in 44 years to win the U.S. veterans' squash title.

The physically-disabled athlete award went to Gary Birch of Vancouver, who competes in track and field, table tennis and swimming, and who was named the outstanding athlete at the 1978 Canada games for the physically disabled.

The University of B.C. Thunderbirds football team, which lost to Queen's University in the national College Bowl, was voted the top team of 1978.

Bears Force Vikings Into Overtime Battle

University of Victoria Vikings had to sweat more than a little on "Robbie Parris Night" before coming up with an 89-82 overtime decision over Alberta Golden Bears in a Canada West University Athletic Association men's basketball league game before about 1,700 fans Saturday at McKinnon Gym.

The victory clinched first place for Vikings, giving them a 15-1 record with four games to play — two each against Alberta and Calgary — and left Alberta at 10-6.

It also meant the CWUAA men's playoffs will be staged March 3-5 at UVic.

Things were even rougher for UVic Vikettes, who dropped a 56-50 women's league decision to Alberta Pandas.

Golden Bears, much improved from the team that lost 108-80 on Friday, forced UVic into an outside game with a tight defence and almost ruined a celebration for UVic guard Robbie Parris, playing his final regular-season game on the Viking court.

League-leader Reni Dolcetti was the only Viking shooter to connect from the outside, scoring 18 of his 32 points before the break. Parris, playing his last season with the Vikings, counted only four of his 15 points before being honored at a half-time ceremony.

Bears, who were ahead 47-42 lead at the half, bottled up UVic for the rest of the way although the home crew managed to knot the count 79-79 in regulation time and force the overtime session.

Jim Bonin led Bears with 24 points, including 14 in the first half, while clubmate Pat Rooney added 22.

Vikettes, who were counting on a victory to clinch a playoff berth, wrap up their season against first-place Dinnies in Calgary next week and need at least one win to ensure a post-season spot.

Vikettes are now 12-6 and third-place Pandas are 11-7.

Lumber Girls Have Problems

VANCOUVER — Home Lumber of Victoria had difficulty getting untracked and lost all four of its games in the eight-team Skyline Invitational women's basketball tournament at the weekend.

British Columbia's junior team upset Victoria 76-75, Simon Fraser Grads won 82-48 and Vancouver Critters triumphed 80-69 (depite Leslie Godfrey's 29-point performance) in preliminary games. SFU Grads clipped Home Lumber again, 71-65, in a consolation game.

FRONT-OFFICE AIDE

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Blue Bombers have appointed Scott Taylor as an administrative assistant with the Canadian Football League team.

Panthers Top Tourney On 'Groenhyde Show'

Edmonton basketball fans who turned out to watch the Harry Ainley Invitational high school boys' tournament also were treated to the "Quinn Groenhyde Show."

Groenhyde was clearly the standout as Parkland Panthers from Sidney won four straight games to capture tournament honors.

With Groenhyde scoring 48 points, Parkland beat Thom Trojans of Regina 76-56 in Saturday's final. Groenhyde rattled in 39 earlier in the day as Panthers downed Calgary St. Mary's 79-75 to complete preliminary round-robin play with a perfect 3-0 record.

Steveston Packers finished third by defeating Kelowna Owls 75-71, while Nanaimo Islanders took fourth spot with a 78-67 decison over Mt. Douglas Rams. In another consolation game, defending-champion Oak Bay Bays downed Rutland Voodoos 72-65.

In Victoria, Richmond of Seattle edged the host team 45-42 to win an eight-team midget boys' tournament at Lansdowne Junior High. Oak Bay claimed consolation honors with a 38-19 victory over Colquitz.

Richmond's Jim Garcia was voted the most-valuable player Chris Mosher and Glen Leung of Lansdowne, Craig Dewitt of Seattle, Dave Whitaker of Oak Bay and Dan McDonald of Bitter Lake, Wash., made up the all-star team. Second team selections were Jeff Loukes of Colquitz, Dean Stokkeland of Fairburn, Chris Day of Bitter Lake, Pat Curry of Seattle and Randy Smith of Lansdowne.

"We can get you to Venice, Vienna, Zagréb, Warsaw and Cairo faster than any other airline. And we don't even fly to them."

Captain R.M. Dubreuil, Chief Pilot — L1011

Since we have more direct flights from Vancouver to both London and Frankfurt (Europe's best airports for connections), it stands to reason that we can get you to your final destination anywhere in Europe or the Middle East faster than anyone else and with a minimum of fuss. All you'll probably need is one simple plane change. And we can reserve that for you as well as your hotel and car, if you need them.

So, give your Travel Agent or us, a call. Wherever you want to go is probably only one stop away.

No better way.

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Prices advanced fractionally in active mid-afternoon trading on the Toronto stock market today.

Trading resumed in shares of Consumers Distributing Co. Ltd., which announced after the close Friday the purchase of Cardinal Distributors Ltd. from Steinberg Inc. Consumers stock was down ⅛ to $10⅜.

Trading was halted shortly after the opening in shares of All-Can Holdings Ltd. pending an announcement. The stock last traded at $7⅛.

Among other industrials, Dome Petroleum advanced 1¾ to $108¼, Home Oil A 1½ to $46¼, Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas 1⅛ to $60½, Bow Valley Industries ⅞ to $24½, B.C. Sugar A ⅝ to $29⅛ and Molson Co. Ltd. B ⅝ to $22¾.

Sterling Trust declined 1 to $19¾, General Motors ¾ to $65, Walker-Gooderham A ¾ to $41¼, Canadian Pacific Investments ⅝ to $25½ and Royal Bank of Canada ¼ to $40.

Campbell Red Lake Mines rose 1 to $41½, Canada Tungsten Mining ⅜ to $22⅜ and Dome Mines ½ to $102. Denison Mines fell ½ to $82¼ and Teck Corp. A ½ to $12¼.

Canadian Superior Oil was up 3 to $79½. PanCanadian Petroleum 1¼ to $42 and North Canadian Oils 1 to $12. Czar Resources Ltd. was down ¼ to $7 and Dundee Palliser Resources three cents to 36 cents.

Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices posted broad advances in moderate afternoon trading on the Montreal Stock Exchange, with the composite index gaining 0.22 to 233.18.

Rights shares of the Bank of Nova Scotia continued to dominate trading for the second week, unchanged at 39 cents on a volume of 308,592 shares traded.

Among losers, INCO fell ½ at $22⅜, Noranda A ¼ at $41¾ and Moore Corp. ⅛ at $34⅛.

London

The Financial Times Index of 30 industrials closed at 446.1, off 1.6.

Canadian issues advanced.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market drifted lower in an atmosphere of caution about the energy outlook following the revolution in Iran.

Analysts said the victory of followers of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini in Iran over the weekend did not come as a surprise to investors.

But they noted considerable uncertainty over when some flow of oil from Iran might be resumed, as well as doubts that it might ever again reach the amounts supplied to the West under the old Iranian regime.

Central Telephone and Utilities topped the active list, down ⅛ to $26⅛. A 327,500-share block traded at $26¼.

Independent oil issues with interests concentrated in North America were strong for the third straight day, on expectations that they mightprosper in any new oil squeeze.

Weldwood of Canada Limited

John F. Newman, Divisional General Manager for Weldwood of Canada Limited's Cariboo Division, has announced the promotion of Andrew Szalkai to the position of Divisional Forest Manager.

CATTLE

CALGARY (CP) — There were two few sales to establish any quotations at the Calgary public stockyards today.

TREASURE FROM THE DEEP is manganese nodules, brought up from great depths by a special trawl on this research vessel. The nodules are not only rich in manganese, but also in the key strategic minerals copper, nickel and cobalt. While private industry looks for ways to reduce the massive cost of specially-equipped ships to drag for the nodules, world governments argue at law-of-the-sea conferences over claims to the sea bed.

Japan Shows Trade Deficit

TOKYO (Reuter) — Japan had a trade deficit of $1.73 billion (U.S.) with the rest of the world in the first 20 days of January, the finance ministry said today.

The deficit on a customs-cleared basis compared with a surplus of $107.41 million in the corresponding December period, and a deficit of $1.26 billion during the first 20 days of January of last year.

The figures will be of some comfort to Japanese negotiators who are meeting U.S. officials in Washington this week to help ease trade and economic tensions between the two countries and stave off possible protectionist moves in the U.S. Congress.

Exports in the first 20 days of January increased by 9.4 per cent to $2.75 billion dollars from a year earlier, while imports were up by 18.6 per cent to $4.48 billion, the ministry said.

Japan usually has either a small surplus or deficit in January as trading firms try to balance their export books in December and leave some imports over the first month of the year. But on an annual basis, today's figures show that the surplus is being whittled away gradually.

Japan has been under intense pressure, mainly from the U.S. and Western Europe, to reduce its massive current account and visible trade surpluses and do more to help world economic recovery.

Juveniles, 17-Year-Old Charged

EDMONTON (CP) — Three persons, including two juveniles, have been charged with murder and attempted murder following a shooting incident at a downtown gun shop in which two people were killed.

The shooting started at 11 p.m. Friday when police responded to a burglar alarm at Shokal Gunsmith Ltd. and were met by gunfire. The incident ended at 1 a.m. Saturday when police stormed into the store after flushing it with tear gas.

Police said Randall Wayne Cook, 17, of Duffield, Alta., will appear in provincial court today and the two juveniles, aged 15 and 13, will appear in juvenile court Wednesday.

The three are charged with the murder of Carlos Mauro, 18, of Edmonton, and the attempted murder of police Constable Jim Litke. Litke was not wounded.

Mauro and Barbara Vrabel, 17, were driving by the area following a dinner date when they were caught in the exchange of gunfire.

Miss Vrabel said a bullet hit Mauro in the chest.

"He opened his eyes wide and then closed them and opened them again—and he was dead," said Miss Vrabel.

She said she and Mauro had been going steady for "one year, a month and 10 days—I kept track" and were planning to get married.

Constable Bob LePage, police community relations officer, said that when police entered the gun shop, they found the body of a 14-year-old and arrested a 15-year-old who was shot in the leg. The 15-year-old was reported in satisfactory condition under protective custody in hospital.

LePage said police responded to what at first was thought to be a false alarm. He said that with the cold weather, many false alarms had been reported in the last two weeks.

EDMONTON SHOOTOUT REVIVES CURFEW ISSUE

EDMONTON (CP) — Friday's night's burglary of an Edmonton gunshop and subsequent shootout has brought the issue of a curfew for city juveniles back into the limelight.

A proposed curfew bylaw, which would ban juveniles from city streets after 10 p.m., is scheduled to be debated by city council Tuesday.

Ald. Percy Wickman Sunday criticised two fellow councillors, William Chmiliar and Olivia Butti, who he says have stated the shooting would be a factor in the debate.

"It is irresponsible of them to use that sort of emotionalism to affect the argument."

Chmiliar said Sunday he does not know if the shooting will affect passage of the bylaw but added that if a curfew had been in effect, the incident might have been avoided.

Wickman said he will try to have the bylaw tabled Tuesday because Ald. Paul Norris is out of town and a full council should be present. Norris is an opponent of the curfew.

Age 65 Not 'Normal' Retiring Time

MONCTON (CP) — Human Rights Commissioner Gordon Fairweather says federal regulations prevent his commission from helping federal employees who are ordered to retire because of age.

However, the commission is recommending to David Croll's Special Senate Committee on Early Retirement that there be more flexibility in retirement ages, Fairweather said in an interview Sunday.

He was commenting on the federal situation after the New Brunswick cabinet set a provincial precedent by repealing the retirement notice of a 65-year-old nurse at the New Brunswick Hospital. New Brunswick's human rights law forbids forced retirement due to age, although provincial regulations state that employees of the New Brunswick government must retire at age 65.

Discrimination because of age is prohibited in the federal human rights legislation, but its provisions refer to the "normal age of retirement," Fairweather said.

His commission has asked the Croll committee to change the age requirement.

"We take the view that 65 is not a normal age of retirement and that the mandatory age of retirement might well be upped."

"The human rights commisson is seeking flexibility, not magic numbers like 65 or 70," he said.

Prison Terms Urged For Union-Busting

TORONTO (CP) — Employers convicted of interfering with an employee's right to join a union should be jailed, says a senior union official and former member of the Ontario Labor Relations Board.

P. J. O'Keeffe, assistant Ontario director of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, said in a speech prepared for delivery today that any interference with the fundamental right of association should be punishable by jail.

Any employer found guilty of firing an employee because he joined a union should receive a substantial prison term, he added.

O'Keeffe's remarks were part of his keynote speech prepared for delivery on the first day of a Peterborough, Ont., three-day conference of union organizers sponsored by the Ontario Federation of Labor.

About 50 union representatives are attending the conference to discuss problems in certification and approaches to union organization.

O'Keeffe said the Ontario Labor Board's practice of ordering employers to reinstate workers fired in violation of the Labor Relations Act is no more than a cut-rate licence to dismiss employees during a union organizing campaign.

"The present penalty of requiring such employers to fork out a few thousand dollars to their victims is peanuts in terms of the ability of the companies to crush a union."

It is ludicrous that the law provides jail terms for people convicted of stealing money while an employer who destroys a fundamental democratic right is required to pay only token compensation, O'Keeffe said.

"Can you imagine a union being given the right to use its economic and other powers to interfere with the free choice of employers to join their own protective association?"

'Wheat Power' Against Soviets?

SASKATOON (CP) — Canada should use wheat to underline its concern for human rights in the Soviet Union, says Senator Paul Yuzyk.

Yuzyk said Canada should use more pressure to force the Soviets to stick to human rights measures outlined in the Helsinki Agreement of 1975, but he stopped short of calling for a boycott of wheat sales to the USSR.

He told a Ukrainian group action could take the form of reluctance in making wheat deals while dissidents are being refused exit visas and members of groups monitoring the Helsinki accords are sent to jail.

"I think we should make it a point, when negotiating wheat sales, that they (the Soviets) should uphold the Helsinki Agreement, which they signed."

12 Que. Seats?

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP) — The Progressive Conservatives will come out of the next federal election with "at least 12" Quebec MPs, says Roch LaSalle, leader of the party's Quebec wing. Speaking after a meeting of 31 of the 39 Tory candidates already nominated in Quebec, LaSalle said the election, expected before summer, "will surprise many, because voting in Quebec is regionalized."

Barre Visit Prompts Rene to Toast a Separate Que.

QUEBEC (CP) — It was midnight, the pumpkin hour, and Premier Rene Levesque raised his glass to, of all things, Canada.

But the Canada Levesque toasted at an official dinner for visiting French Premier Raymond Barre was the Parti Quebecois version — a Canada from which Quebec would be politically separate.

Levesque's 18-minute toast, except for its strange style, was a repetition of the theme that it's about time to end sterile confrontations and to let Quebec fly with its own wings.

Alternately giggly and lyrical, Levesque echoed a statement made recently by Claude Morin, his minister of intergovernmental affairs, who holds that sovereignty-association is the key to the Quebec and Canada of tomorrow.

"A Quebec that has come into its own would mean a solution to Canada," said Levesque.

For Barre, the current political tug-of-war between Ottawa and Quebec has meant that he has had to make really two official visits in one, to the same country, Levesque jibed.

He noted that federal officials, ever watchful of the ties between Quebec and France, tried to make sure that Barre spent as much time in Ottawa as in Quebec City.

Barre landed in Ottawa Thursday and left there at mid-day Saturday for Montreal. From then until mid-day Sunday when he flew to Quebec City, he was on what was officially called a "private" visit.

Barre started into a heavy schedule by attending mass Sunday morning and then took a subway ride with Mayor Jean Drapeau to tour Montreal's Olympic Park. The subway line was closed to the public for about an hour while they travelled underground to the stadium..

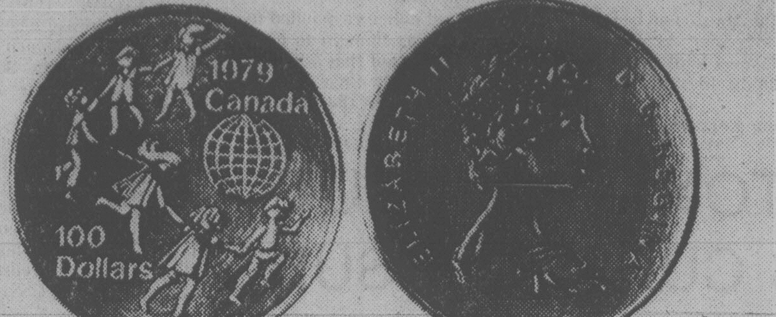
Taillibert, who designed the stadium and has been unsuccessfully sought as a witness by a Quebec inquiry into cost overruns at the 1976 Summer Games, was immediately beseiged by reporters. He said he would be in Montreal and New York for about two weeks but did not indicate whether he would testify at inquiry hearings.

The state dinner Sunday night was held in the cavernous halls of the Quebec Museum of the Plains of Abraham. Barre proposed a toast to France-Quebec relations in a much more sober tone than Levesque.

Beginning with a few light remarks about the bitterly cold weather gripping the province, Barre gave a brief history of relations between France and Quebec from the mid-19th century on.

"We are linked by our affinities and the dialogue is enriched, to our mutual benefit, by our differences," he said.

He quoted from 19th-century French author Alexis de Tocqueville who wrote on a trip to North America that the French-Canadians were to the French what the Americans were to the English.



$100 Gold Coin Struck For Year of the Child

OTTAWA (CP) — The Royal Canadian Mint has announced it will strike a $100 gold coin this year honoring the International Year of the Child.

The mint will also strike a silver dollar commemorating the 300th anniversary of the first voyage of the Griffon, first commercial ship to sail on the Great Lakes upstream of Niagara Falls.

The gold coin (above) shows boys and girls of different nationalities, playfully running hand in hand around the earth.

The coin's designer, Carola Tietz of Ottawa, says the children are getting to know one another and contributing to world unity.

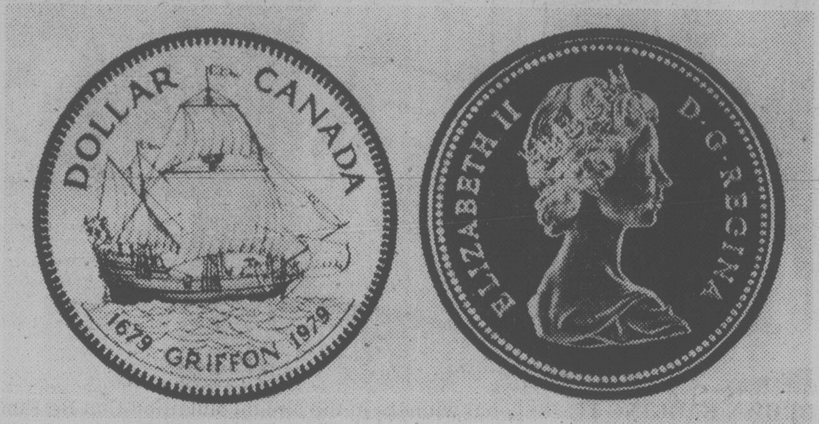
Measuring 27 millimetres in diameter and weighing 16.965 grams, the International Year of the Child coin will contain 91.66 per cent 22 karat gold and 8.34 per cent fine silver.

The Griffon dollar will have a diamater of 36mm and will be half silver and half copper.

The Griffon dollar will be available in March and the International Year of the Child coin in May.

The two coins can be obtained by writing to the Royal Canadian Mint, P.O. Box 470, Station A, Ottawa, Ont., K1N 8S5.



Let Provinces Control U.S. TV: Lalonde

OTTAWA (UPC) — Justice Minister Marc Lalonde says the federal government is prepared to allow the provinces the power to control American programming from cable television "at their own political risk."

Lalonde said during a weekend interview under a joint jurisdictional agreement the provinces would be able to delete any American programming while the federal government "would control the percentage of Canadian content on cable."

The provinces would be excluded from areas such as technical standards, Canadian programs and Canadian content, "but as far as the rest is concerned, the provinces would have priority indeed," Lalonde told Standard Broadcast News.

He said the proposal, put to the 10 provincial premiers at last week's constitutional conference, was "substantial" and it was necessary to go that far because "the provinces want to have a lot more say in the field of culture and in the field . . . of communications."

"If the provinces do it, they'll do it at their own political risk. They will be responsible for their citizens, and if their citizens don't like it . . . they can certainly let it be known," Lalonde said.

Asked if cable stations in neighboring Hull, Que., would be able to delete any U.S. programming from their system, while Ottawa stations would allow them, he replied: "That's true."

In other areas, the minister said he expected the Parti Quebecois to lose its proposed referendum on either separation from Canada or sovereignty association, adding that the loss would provide a boost to the federal government's intention of revamping the constitution.

"I'm sure that the defeat of the referendum in Quebec is not going to be the end-all and be-all of constitutional reform; on the contrary, I would use this as an argument to go on assiduously and expeditiously after."

Farm Pickets Off As Striker Killed

EL CENTRO, Calif. (UPI) — Rows and rows of lettuce ready for harvest are left unpicked and Cesar Chavez has removed his pickets. There is blood in the fields.

Fearing more bloodshed following Saturday's killing of a young striker, the president of the United Farm Workers of America moved in personally to plead with 2,000 farm workers angered over the shooting.

Chavez asked for peace. Growers asked for the National Guard.

Grower spokesman Tom Hubbard sent a telegram to Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. requesting him to send National Guard troops to prevent further violence in the 25-day lettuce strike. There was no response from the governor's office.

But Sheriff Ben Clark of Riverside County said he had sent 21 of his deputies with support vehicles and a riot control truck at the request of Imperial County Sheriff Oren Fox.

The tension grew from the slaying of Rufino Contreras, 28, of Mexicali, who was shot just below the eye with a .38 caliber bullet in the field belonging to grower Mario Saikhon.

Three unidentified Saikhon employees were booked on murder charges and two were released a short time later on $7,000 bail each.

Deputies scoured the area where Contreras was shot with metal detectors, looking for the weapon or for the bullet which went through his head.

Chavez urged farm workers "to be quiet and calm" and to channel their anger into planning various events of mourning for the slain worker. He ordered a halt to picketing until Contreras is buried, expected Tuesday or Wednesday.

"The greatest tribute we can pay to Rufino Contreras is winning the strike," Chavez said in trying to calm workers.

During a mass Sunday, he told workers to "pay tribute to Rufino by dedicating ourselves to the proposition that this is a movement that builds, not destroys, a movement of peace and love, a nonviolent movement."

Chavez then said, "We do not hold all growers responsible, but we do hold accountable those greedy employers who would trade blood for money."

Growers in the Imperial Valley, where most of the nation's winter lettuce is harvested, blamed Chavez for the "illegal mob actions."

"Cesar Chavez must be held accountable because of the tactics of orchestrated terrorism and rioting are his," Hubbard said.

A spokesman said they had turned up a number of clubs, rocks and concrete chunks which apparently had been carried by the strikers.

Bhutto Book Smuggled From his Death Cell

NEW DEHLI (AP) — A manuscript smuggled from the death row cell of former Pakistani prime minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto says if he is executed, Pakistan will be the loser.

"More than my life is at stake," wrote the condemned leader. "Make no mistake about it, the future of Pakistan is at stake."

"I was born to make a nation, to serve a people, I was not born to wither away in a death cell."

Bhutto wrote that he had embedded himself "too deep in the hearts of the poor of this land for others to comprehend this phenomenon," and the people of Pakistan will suffer if he is executed.

"It may sound a rotten cliche if I say that I am a household word in every home and under every roof that leaks in the rain," he wrote. "I belong to the sweat and sorrow of this land. I have an eternal bond with the people which armies cannot break."

The 80,000-word document was addressed to the Pakistani Supreme Court which upheld his conviction for conspiring to murder a political opponent and the death sentence given him. It was smuggled out of the Rawalpindi central jail and published as a book in New Delhi after Pakistan's military government blocked publication there.

Titled If I Am Assassinated, the book repeats Bhutto's previous denials of the murder charge and also that he rigged the 1977 general election. Riots over the reports of election fraud touched off the bloodless coup led by Gen. Zia ul-Haq, the military commander who became president.

U.S. President Carter, Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev, Chinese Chairman Hua Kuo-feng and other foreign leaders have appealed for clemency for Bhutto, but his lawyer, Yahya Bakhtiar, said in Rawalpindi that the condemned man is "resigned to the execution."

Bakhtiar said he would file a petition today or Tuesday for a 30-day stay of execution and a final legal review of the case by the Supreme Court.

Saturday Night Fever, Chinese Style

TOKYO (AP) — A new wall poster in Peking warns against "dance fever" in the Chinese capital and says the modernization of China will not be achieved by fancy footwork, Kyodo news service reported Sunday.

The Japanese news agency said the unsigned poster quoted a Feb. 2 Kyodo report that noted "some women call foreign diplomats and businessmen for dates and dance with them at their apartment houses late at night."

The poster said dance parties disappeared from China around 1963 because "on Saturday, people lost their self-possession . . . Some forgot their wives and divorced."

The news agency's Feb. 2 dispatch on "Wednesday Night Fever" said dances for foreign residents have been held every Wednesday at the National Palace of Culture in Peking since China began to expand freedom of expression for its citizens.

Refugee Target Resigns

HONG KONG (AP) — A Chinese employee of the U.S. consulate resigned today, three days after he was attacked by Vietnamese refugees who said he made advances to Vietnamese women seeking resettlement in the United States.

A spokesman said the consulate accepted the resignation of George Lai, a 40-year-old Chinese national employed by the consulate for almost 15 years.

Lai, who worked as a refugee co-ordinator, was cut and bruised when refugees attacked him with wooden chairs Friday at the Shamshipo transit camp.

The consulate suspended him without pay Saturday after receiving a letter from refugees at the camp accusing Lai of making advances to Vietnamese women.

Suicide Succeeds

SALZBURG, Austria (Reuter) — A 25-year-old man making his third suicide attempt set himself ablaze on a hill overlooking Salzburg and ran screaming towards the city before he collapsed and died.

Guerrillas in Army?

SALISBURY (AP) — A black leader in Rhodesia's biracial transition government called Sunday for the creation of a new army which would include black nationalist guerrillas now fighting the regime.

Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole, founder of the Zimbabwe African National Union, said he would urge a new army if he became prime minister of a black-majority government.

The statement came among stepped-up jockeying for support by the three black leaders in the government. Each hopes to become prime minister when Rhodesia goes to black-majority rule after the April 20 election.

The 15-page manifesto released by Sithole's party at a news conference called for a democracy with free and periodic elections, free health services, free compulsory education and equal pay for equal work, regardless of color. He urged the estimated 8,000 guerrillas in Rhodesia to join ranks with the new black government in April.

Sithole, Bishop Abel Muzorewa and Chief Jeremiah Chirau are black co-leaders of the transitional government along with Prime Minister Ian Smith, Rhodesia's white leader who declared independence from Britain in 1965 to keep the white minority in power.

The political organizations headed by the three black leaders already are campaigning. A police spokesman said Sunday that "numerous" supporters of the various political movement have been arrested in clashes in the last four days.

The bidding:

3 ◇	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Dble!

Opening lead — nine of diamonds.

One of the most authoritative books ever written, "Morehead on Bidding," contains this classic deal which demonstrates that what bridge players really do during the bidding is prognosticate how the subsequent play will go.

If you look at only West's hand, you might wonder whether he had taken leave of his senses when he doubled for spades. However, West knew exactly what he was doing. Furthermore, he was exceedingly well rewarded for his imaginative double when he collected a four-trick penalty — and there was nothing South could do about it.

West had listened carefully to the bidding and was able to project how the play was likely to go. He realized from North's two diamond response to the one spade bid and South's immediate raise in diamonds that East had either one diamond or none.

So, adjusting his thoughts to this reasonable deduction, West doubled and lead the nine of diamonds. His fondest hopes were realized when East ruffed and returned the queen of hearts (in obedience to West's high diamond lead to show an entry in hearts).

South and West both ducked, but West won the next heart lead with the ace and this time returned his lowest diamond, the deuce, to request a club return at trick five. East ruffed an dutifully led back a club. South did as well as he could when he rose with the ace and returned a trump, but it did not help him at all.

West went up with the ace of trumps and led a third round of diamonds. East ruffed again, returned a club to West's king, and the outcome was that West had 1,100 points in the bank to show for his well-judged double.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Tuesday, February 13
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21 - April 19): Make concession to family — be diplomatic, especially where purchase of luxury item is concerned. Taurus, Libra, Scorpio figure prominantly. Emphasis also on job situation, basic terms, nutrition, message from relative in transit.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20): Spotlight on speculation, change, creative resources, children. Member of opposite sex finds you attractive and makes no secret of it. A Pisces individual has something of value to impart. Be receptive. Define meanings, terms, expectations.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20). Stick to familiar ground. Spotlight priorities, organize material, invest in your own ideas, talents. Older individual will lend benefit of experience. Cancer, Capricorn persons figure prominently — so does the number 8.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22): Emphasis on asking and answering questions. You are able to finish task which had been long delayed. Aries, Libra figure in scenario. Strive for universal appeal. Eschew the narrow or rigid — reach beyond what might appear to be a limit.

LEO (July 23 - Aug. 22): New, independent approach brings what you seek. You can create, deliniate and imprint individual style. Aquarian is in picture — so is another Leo. You get chance to increase income potential. Nothing can stop you — except excess timidity on your part.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22): Obtain hint from Leo message. Take lead, trust your own counsel, intuitive intellect. You regain what was lost or misplaced. Sense of direction returns. instead of floundering, you exhibit purpose and determination.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22): Get report from one who has researched a subject, project or individual. Ask questions. Don't permit pride to block knowlgde. If you don't know, say so. There are many potential allies, friends — waiting for you to make gesture. Act accordingly.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21): Accent on getting what you need, as contrasted to mere desire or whim. Study Libra mssage. Check fine print, read between the lines. What appears an obstacle could be a stepping-stone. Know it, be optimistic — take first step . . . and then another.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21): Emphasis on prestige, duty, honor, reputation, written word, ability to piece together bits of information. Yes, complete story is available. You'll be aided by Gemini. You will have reason to celebrate.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19): Be sure of ground — diplomacy wins. Quiet approach brings most constructive results. Individual who has "money scheme" should be heeded only with amused tolerance. Taurus, Libra, Scorpio figure prominently.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18): Delve beneath glitter — be aware of credit, lease requirements, basic financial standing of associates, would-be partners. Pisces, Virgo figure prominently. See places, persons in realistic light. Informed skepticism should be your policy.

PISCES (Feb. 19 - March 20): Go slow, be aware of responsibilities. One close to you displays insight. Be grateful — make use of material at hand. Spotlight on relating to those whose ideas may be new or oppose your own. Make responsible concessions.

IF FEBRUARY 13 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are dynamic, dramatic, stubborn, creative, impulsive and attractive. You were separated from one or both parents early — in psychological sense or in actuality. Aquarius, Leo, Scorpio persons play key roles in your life. March and December could be your most important months of 1979, a year featuring travel, gain through written word, intensified rlationship. If single, marriage cycle is strong. If married, there could be an addition to family. Married or single, you get rid of restraints, shackles — you gain opportunity for greater freedom of thought, action. Potential is brighter than it has been in years.

FUN WITH FIGURES

"When you were twice as old as I am now you were three times as old as I was then," said Tommy. "How about that?"

John smiled. "You're smart, but what about this? When you're half as old as I am now, I'll be three times as old as you were two years ago."

Iran's Finances Spark Shudders

By WILIAM BRANIGAN
Washington Post

TEHRAN — A close adviser of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini has proposed a series of drastic economic changes for Iran's proposed new Islamic republic that include cancellation of the country's foreign debt and a curtailment of its oil production by 60 per cent.

The economic pronouncements of Abdolahassan Bani-Sadr, who returned here from exile with Khomeini and who reportedly has been working for several years on economic plans for the ayatollah's republic, are sending shudders through the Iranian and Western business communities here.

Iran's default on an estimated $8 billion foreign debt could produce unforseen adverse consequences in Western financial markets. The proposed curtailment in oil production would cut sharply into Iranian oil exports, which accounted for about 10 percent of the West's oil consumption last year.

While a reduction in oil exports would presumably be covered by increased output in other oil-producing countries, the possibility of a major disruption in financial markets has produced increasing concern in banking circles.

American bankers had about $2.7 billion in outstanding loans at the end of 1978, while U.S. government credits extended to Iran are estimated at $1 billion. These figures do not include arrangements for Iran's massive purchases of military equipment in the United States.

Bani-Sadr has been widely mentioned in the local press as a possible finance minister in Khomeini's provisional government, although some opposition sources privately doubt that.

In either case, members of Khomeini's entourage say Bani-Sadr is close to the 78-year-old ayatollah and is serving as a principal economic adviser. Moreover, none of his pronouncements have been repudiated by Khomeini or his aides.

The exact extent of Iran's debt in the United States could not be assessed because of complex arrangements involved in Iran's purchases of U.S. military equipment. The government of Prime Minnister Shahpour Bakhtiar already has canceled contracts for U.S. arms valued at $8-10 million.

Several Western European countries, and particularly West Germany, France and Britain, are known to have large financial exposure in Iran.

Businessmen and economists here say plans to repair the country's devastated economy come at a time when Iran is confronting another problem — a food crisis in the months ahead.

Bani-Sadr's economic program also calls for the nationalization of all banks and credit systems, heavy taxes on imported spare parts, the transfer of industrial management to workers' committees in each factory and an agrarian reform to create agricultural "collectives."

In recent lectures at Tehran University, Bani-Sadr has gone even further. Outlining solutions to Iran's economic problems, he said Iran's first goal should be "to stop being a crude oil exporting country and try to establish our own independent economic institutions." In the meantime Iran would expect higher prices for its oil, he said.

He also called for "severing" Iranian banks from the world banking system and "abolishing" interest.

The son of a Moslem clergyman and reputedly the holder of economics and sociology degrees, Bani-Satr has said the Islamic republic's economic system would be "neither capitalist nor Marxist, nor a combination of the two."

He favors "decreasing oil production because part of it is not really for people's consumption but just for building up reserves. Forty percent of (previous) production would be enough for present needs.

Bloodless Coup Nabs Iran Embassy

By FRED BARBASH
Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The shah's portrait, which in the last month has been up, down and then up again at the Iranian embassy here, was down once more Sunday as rejoicing supporters of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini seized control of the building in another bloodless mini-coup.

Led by 12-pro-Khomeini Iranian diplomats, the group tore down and destroyed dozens of pictures of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, replacing them with equally imposing images of the ayatollah.

They hack-sawed their way into the office of longtime Iranian Ambassador Ardeshir Zahedi, and there staged a press conference where they proclaimed themselves the representatives of the new Iranian government and installed one of their own — diplomat Jafar Fagih — as the interim replacement for Zahedi.

Outside the embassy and in its hallways, Iranian music blared over a short-wave radio. A crowd of about 200 Iranian diplomats, students, businessmen, and children hugged and kissed one another as banners proclaiming "victory to the revolution" were hoisted above them.

This takeover was designed to be more permanent than the ones that preceded it. Shahriar Rouhani, a 29-year-old Yale graduate who represents the ayatollah, announced that a permanent ambassador soon would be appointed and that his government hoped for friendly diplomatic relations with the United States following "immediate recognition" of Khomeini's authority.

The first force of three or four pro-ayatollah Iranians who arrived at the embassy entered by knocking on the door. They were admitted by the charge d'affaires, according to witnesses, who greeted them with an embrace.

Once inside the building, the Iranians used a hacksaw blade to cut the lock on the office of Zahedi, who was said to be out-of-the country. One of the first places they headed for were the file cabinets, which turned out to be empty.

Rouhani charged that among the files removed from the Embassy were documents pertaining to "payoffs to American dignitaries," including members of Congress. He said he would not disclose details of the "payoffs," except to note that "they were indirect" and "not just caviar and champaigne."

Zahedi had a "caviar list, a champagne list and a silk-rug list," agreed a ranking embassy source, but "God knows some other things were given away."

KHOMEINI SWEPT HOME

and killed as he tried to talk with a group of insurgents who surrounded the guard's barracks.

Gen. Bokrat Jafarian, the military governor of Khuzestan province, was reported killed when his helicopter was shot down near Ahwaz. Lt.-Gen. Mohammed Amin Biglari, deputy commander of the Immortals Division of the Imperial Guard, was found shot to death early today in his Tehran home, the spokesman said.

In Washington, President Carter said he has been in touch with the new rulers of Iran and "we stand ready to work with them."

"Our objective has been and is a stable and independent Iran which maintains good relations with America," Carter told a news conference.

Sweatsuits and Barbells Big in Fashion Biz

By GEORGIA DULLEA

Calvin Klein, a fashion designer who might not be expected to pick up anything heavier than a pin, bounded into his sleek new gymnasium the other day and began pumping iron. It was a relief when he finally put down the barbell.

Then he gyrated on a few of the shiny mechanical monsters that figure in the 90-minute workout he performs each morning in his design studio.

In all, there were seven mean-looking machines, one for biceps, one for triceps, even one for quadriceps and gluteus maximus. Before long, one of the Fashion Institute of Technology's most illustrious graduates was sweating through a sloppy red T-shirt that read "Maryland Basketball."

Wouldn't Klein rather do something less strenuous, like talk? Obligingly, he talked for some time and with some intensity about body building, not fashion. "Keeping the body in shape is more important than fashion," he said. And off he went to bake in his sauna.

Others on Seventh Avenue agree. Fashion has its moment, they say. Not so bodies. The same old numbers turn up next season. And no matter how you drape the goods, flab is flab. The only way around this is to eat sensibly and to exercise. Accordingly, the candy dishes in the showrooms are filled with sunflower seeds and gym bags dangle from the coatracks.

Besides being healthy, this is smart public relations. After years of keeping their shapes under wraps, some women are now doing time on the exercise mats to conform to today's slimmer styles. Seventh Avenue might at least set a good example.

Giorgio Sant'Angelo, is doing better than that. This designer has been a gymnast for most of his 40 years, having trained as a child in Argentina. When he moved his business uptown, to a loft on 57th Street, the space cried out for a gym with rings, parallel bars, a trapeze, the works.

Sant'Angelo did not fancy flying through the air solo, though, so he has hired a teacher to give classes to his staff and a few favorite customers. Classes won't begin until early next year, he said, "but everybody wants to come already."

Unlike some of his colleagues, Giorgio Sant'Angelo disdains mechanical contraptions. "I'm antimachine," he declared. "You look at these men who do body building. After 50, they look like ladies. They need bras. Don't overbuild. Don't overdo."

Bill Atkinson's fitness program has nothing to do with bars or rings or machines. In his showroom, everybody reaches for leotards and yoga mats at closing time. Lowered lights promote inner serenity and block out the clothes racks, as a teacher leads them through the various asanas.

A former national track champion, Atkinson feels no compulsion to run around Central Park like, say, Ralph Lauren, a five-mile-a-day man. Yoga exercising and deep breathing tone his muscles and revitalize his creative juices, Atkinson said: "Yoga is both calming and exhilarating, the ideal condition to be in when creating."

"The gym helps psych your head," Weinberg said. "Being in an atmosphere where the other bodies are in terrific shape — or not-so-terrific shape — gives me a sense of where I am and where I am to be."

To get there, he lefts weights, while not throwing caution to the winds. "I have to be careful," Weinberg explained, "because I'm not really tall — I'm 5-feet-8. So, I don't want to bulk up to the point where I look like I'm competing for something other than a dress collection."

Bill Atkinson, in his studio, says that yoga calms him and enhances his creativity. Other fashion giants use barbells and some mean-looking machines for their daily workouts.

But he did want to slim down enough to wear the kind of casual clothes he prefers. "I was your average flabby guy who counted on custom-made suits from London, that stuff," Weinberg said. "Now if I go out dancing I don't have to wear a tweed jacket and a crepe de chine shirt. I can wear a T-shirt and a pair of jeans and feel damn good about the way I look."

Designing women also want to look good in clothes, of course. Which is one reason Kay Unger of St. Gillian Sportswear is taking private exercise lessons in her apartment every morning. As this 33-year-old designer, a sample size 8, explaining things:

"My waist is too fat for the new clothes. The bodies of women my age and younger are different than older women who grew up in tight belts and girdles. It's just like the orientals who bound their feet. Their feet stayed small."

Another Seventh Avenue women, a lingerie designer named Adri, had doubts about this. True, she said, the advent of "body revealing clothes" may finally force some women to exercise "but under those big clothes were a lot of women who were getting it together all along."

Adri gets it together by tumbling and kicking on the ballet barre. "Exercise is a wonderful way to relax," she said. "Pauline Trigere has been known to stand on her head for years. This was way before it became chic."

So has Cathy Hardwick, the young Korean designer. "With my Eastern heritage," she recalled, "I was doing yoga long before all this became fashionable. We know how to open our minds and just rest, blank. You have to make it part of your life. It's very hard after everything falls apart to pull it together."

Still, Seventh Avenue is trying, toning its muscles, taking its vitamins, getting its beauty sleep.

"It's a whole new life for me," said Calvin Klein. Fresh from the sauna, he was heading up to the Y for a swim. But there would be no rich uptown lunch.

Although Klein works off an average of two pounds a day on his machines, he has become a spartan about his diet. "I eat more food, but not junk food," he said, "nothing fried, no candy."

And no cigarettes. Once a demon smoker, Calvin Klein has not had a cigarette in three months. Exercise helped to break the habit, he said, but most of the credit goes to his daughter, Marci. Like any smart 11-year-old, Marci knows cigarettes are bad for parents.

"So she just pestered and pestered me to stop," he said with a small smile. "After a while, I had to stop."

House Plants Hate Flood

By TOM STEVENSON
The Washington Post

Failure to water properly is the cause of many if not most failures with plants in the home. Keeping the soil too wet is the usual problem. Placing the plants in too dark a location also is responsible for the loss of many of them. Too much fertilizer too often also results in their deterioration.

If the soil is kept too wet, there is not going to be enough air for the roots, and the plant will gradually dejenerate. When the soil surface feels dry, water with room-temperature water until it comes out through drainage holes at the bottom. Wait 15 or 20 minutes for excess water to drain and empty the saucer. Do not allow the pot to stand in deep water longer than an hour.

If there are no drainage holes, it is hard to know how much water to apply. In general a pot that holds 1 quart of soil will probably require one-half pint of water to moisten all the soil but not cause accumulation of water at the bottom.

Small planters or dish gardens rarely have drainage, but because the soil is usually rather shallow, it dries relatively quickly. The plant can stand a few minutes after turned on its side so the excess will drain out. If there is no excess, apply a little more. This way you can find out how much to apply each time.

If the soil is watered too often such as every other day, it is considered overwatering, but if only a small quanity of water is applied, the soil mass may be wet on top but dusty dry down where the roots are. There is more harm done by keeping the soil too wet than letting it get too dry.

Most foliage plants should grow naturally in reduced light; some reqire more light than others. Plants with blooms and those with blooms and fruits such as miniature oranges require good light in order to produce enough food.

No hard and fast rules can be given, because there is no simple, easy way to determine the light intensity.

These plants will usually survive in low light areas such as 8 feet or more from a window, no direct light and in dull hallways: Chinese evergreen (Aglaonema commutatum), Cast-iron (Aspidistra elatior), Jade (Crassula argentia), English ivy (Hedera helix) and Snake (Sansevieria).

These plants require good light, within 4 feet of large, south, east or west facing windows: Zebra (Aphalandra squarrosa), Norfolk Island Pine (Araucaria excelsa), Croton (Codiaeum variegatum) Ti Plant (Cordyline terminalis) and African violet (Saintpaulia ionantha).

Cashews Toxic

The cashew nut is related to poison ivy and poison sumac and, in its unroasted state, contains a toxic oil.

A Reading List for Senior Years

Leslie Holbrook

Seniors have a wide range of interests and I try to cover as many as possible in these weekly pieces. Reader reaction to columns reveals a hunger for a forum where oldsters can sound off; your newspaper joins me in providing such an opportunity so keep the comments coming and thank your local editor.

My piece about the joys of reading, as opposed to an endless flow of TV tripe, brought considerable mail.

I had suggested that you might include in your reading program some of the fair-to-good books dealing with the senior years. A lot of you would like the names of publications in this category.

Among the growing number of writers specializing in words for mature folk is John Duffie, of Victoria. I am indebted to John for his help in choosing appropriate books and articles.

The following selections should provide enough information to track down material in your public library or at a booksellers (titles in alphabetical order, author's name following, publisher's name in brackets; asterisk after the title indicates availability in lower-priced paperback):

Beginnings — A Book for Widows, Betty Jane Wylie (McClelland & Stewart); Book of Eve, C. Beresford-Howe (Avon); *Coming of Age, Simone de Beauvoir (Putnam); The Complete Retirement Planning Book, Peter A. Dickinson (Dutton); *Cost of Age, Andrew Allentuck (Fitzhenry & Whiteside); *Final Plateau, Daniel Jay Baum (Burns-McEachern); Getting the Most out of Your Fifties, Morton Puner (Crown).

*A Good Age, Alex Comfort (Crown); *Growing Older, Margaret Huyck (Prentice Hall); High Old Time, Lavina Russ (Saturday Review); How to Retire Successfully, Sherley Ashton (General); *Love and Sex After Sixty, Butler and Lewis (Harper/Perennial); Lutsy Winter, Max Braithwaite (McClelland & Stewart); *Maggie Kuhn on Aging, Maggie Kuhn (Westminster); *Nobody Ever Died of Old Age, Sharon Curtin (Atlantic Monthly).

*Old Is Not a Four-Letter Word, Beaven Abernathy (Abingdon); Quartet in Autumn, Barbara Pym (MacMillan, London); *Stone Angel, Margaret Laurence (McClelland & Stewart); Successful Aging, Olga Knopf (Viking); To the Good Long Life, Morton Puner (Universe); Threshold, Alan Olmstead (Harper); Ulyssean Adult, J.A.B. MacLeish (McGraw Hill); Why Survive, Robert N. Butler (Harper); Your Health and Your Home in Retirement (Grosset & Dunlap).

If you have read other books in this field and can recommend them please let me know. Publishers are invited to advise me of additional bibliography.

If you would like to get into something more academic (but interesting and informative) you might search out a new book titled The Social Challenge of Ageing, edited by David Hobman, published in England by Croom Helm, London.

David records such startling statistics as a world population of over 585 million people over 60 by the year 2000, a growth rate of almost 100 per cent in 30 years. His book estimates that one third of all people who have reached 65 in the past 2,000 years are alive today.

There are many more learned publications should you wish to study further. International Federation on Ageing publishes a list of several hundred.

Hearing Tests Set for Victoria

(Victoria) — Electronic hearing tests will be given at Beltone Hearing Aid Service, 613 Yates Street, during a free Service Centre open to all hearing aid wearers. The tests will be given on Monday and Tuesday, Feb. 12 and 13, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., by Ronald Germain, Beltone Hearing Aid Specialist

Anyone who has trouble hearing is welcome to have this special test using the latest electronic equipment. For those who now wear an aid, the test will show if it is still right for their loss. Others will learn which aid may be right for them.

Most people with a hearing loss can be helped with a hearing aid. Everyone who has trouble hearing, therefore should have a test.

The tests will be given from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. during this special Service Centre on Monday and Tuesday, Feb. 12 and 13. Please call ahead for an appointment. Anyone unable to attend is invited to phone 382-3323 for a free in-home appointment.

There's Darker Side To Running

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Runners should be aware of the darker side of running, the "negative addiction" that comes with too much emphasis on the two to five hours of "exercise high" many runners experience, William Morgan, a University of Wisconsin researcher says.

Runners who are hooked seem obsessed with additional workouts, more distance and better times, all to the self-destructive exclusion of family, friends and career, Morgan said in a recent study.

"Rejection of loved ones and friends and minimal vocational involvement leaves the exercise addict in much the same place as the alcoholic or heroin addict," he said.

The true test of whether a runner is negatively addicted, Morgan said, is when he or she must lay off due to injury. Some doctors, he said, have had to put runners in casts to keep them from permanently injuring themselves.

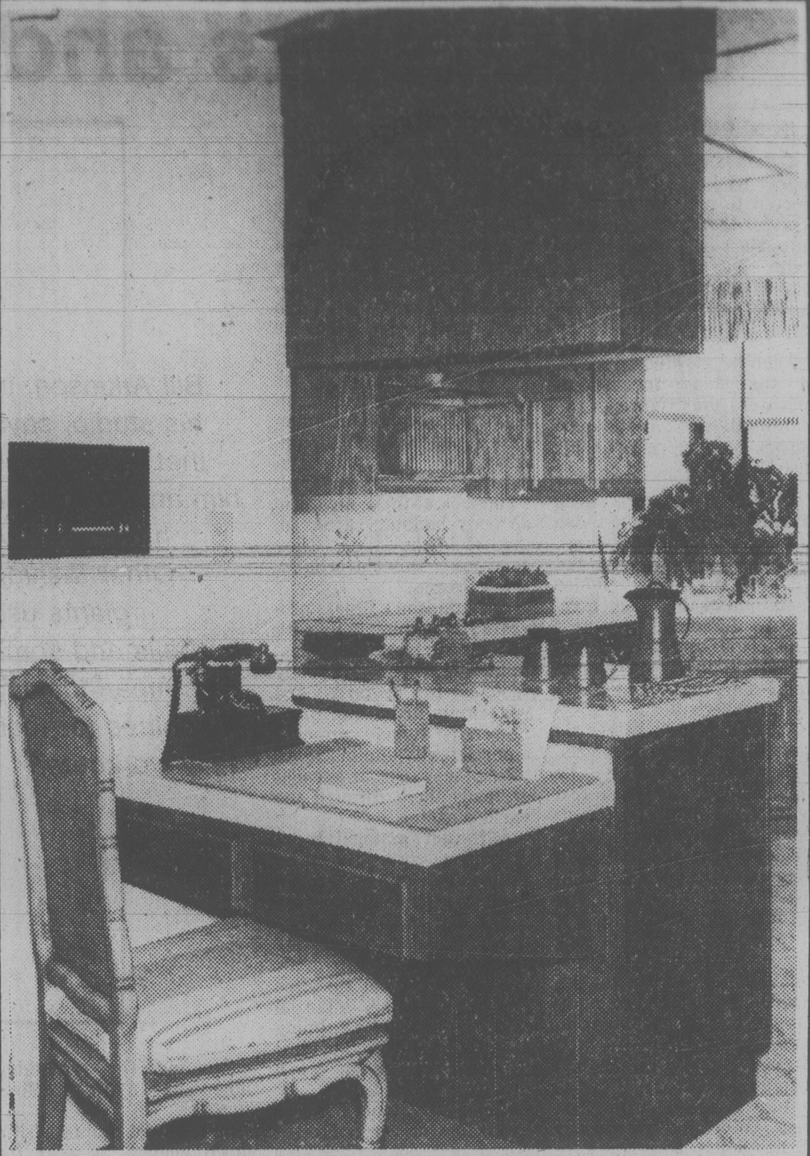
Morgan, 43, who describes himself a "hobby jogger" in warm weather but a cross-country skier and driveway snow shoveller in winter, said runners who do 115 to 150 kilometres a week are more likely to become negatively addicted.

However, he said there is no way of telling what percentage of runners at any level are negatively addicted, and those who run relatively little may be also be susceptible.

The two sure signs of an adverse addiction, he said: being unable to cope with everyday life without a daily run and actual withdrawal when forced to quit, such as for injury.

The trick, Morgan said, is to keep running in perspective in relation to its place with family, friends and career.

"The runner should control the running experience—not the converse," he said. "Simply asking the question 'What in the world would I do if suddenly it was no longer possible to run?' would be sufficient."



Counter and cupboards divide the kitchen, family room

Desk in Kitchen Saves Many Steps

By PAULINE GRAVES

Once a homemaker has enjoyed the convenience of a kitchen desk, she would not be without one, if she possibly can help it. With a desk, she can centralize her activities, from menu planning and recipe gathering to making business phone calls and keeping records.

A desk in any other part of the house can function as efficiently, but close relationship to the kitchen means saving steps and utilizing time to best advantage. One can keep an eye on the stove and write notes at the desk at the same time.

Space is no object when it comes to a desk, unless the home functions as an office as well. A flat surface and a couple of drawers fill the basic requirements, precisely what we show here.

In many homes, this space, the back of an extended kitchen counter, would have been ignored. Too small for a furniture piece or even for a snack bar, it would have been left blank.

However, the 35-inch long space is ample for a built-in desk, tucked into a corner of the family room and seeming to be part of the kitchen.

The 21-inch depth of the desk fits nicely between the counter and a window, allowing room for a chair. And because the desk hangs on the counter back, there are no legs to interfere with the chair.

Thickness of the desk goes from 7-inches in front to 12-inches at the back, and this extra rear thickness helps support the desk. Interiors were by Pat Yeiser.

HOW A BABY SQUIRREL BECAME A KITTEN

Ten months ago, Sapphire, a siamese cat, gave birth to a litter of seven kittens. Two days later, one of the kittens died and Sapphire was heartbroken, says her owner, Carol Cox.

The next day, a neighbor asked Miss Cox to care for a newborn squirrel. The squirrel, eyes still unopened, had been found covered with ticks and fleas.

The squirrel, dubbed Samantha, survived under the care of Miss Cox, a 21-year-old employee of the Idaho fish and game department, who turned her over to Sapphire when her job interfered with the foundling's feeding schedule.

Miss Cox says Sapphire was overjoyed at the idea of having her litter enlarged to seven again and after thoroughly cleaning her adopted suckling, tucked her under her chin and went to sleep.

It took about 12 hours before the squirrel could be coaxed into trying Sapphire's milk. But she finally did, and, "From that day forward, the squirrel was a kitten," said Miss Cox.

Samantha, who learned to play with the other kittens, is grown now and on her own, and Sapphire apparently could care less. The seven-year-old siamese has her hands full. Last week, she gave birth to another litter. This time, all survived.

When Gas Turns Gummy

By MICHAEL LAMM

DEAR MIKE: I understand that gasoline turns gummy if left in the carburetor for long periods. We have a 1975 Granada and a 1966 Dodge. We drive the Dodge each winter, letting the Granada sit in the garage for 5-6 weeks at a time. Will the gasoline turn gummy in that length of time? — GUMMER

DEAR GUMMER: I don't believe you'll have problems if your car stands only six weeks. When gasoline evaporates, it leaves a residue that looks and smells like varnish. In my experience, it takes many months, not weeks, for varnish to begin forming. Do keep your fuel tank topped up, though, so there's no air inside to promote evaporation or oxidation.

DEAR MIKE: I replaced the head on my 1967 Econoline 6. The old head had shot valves. This new head is second-hand but the valves, springs, rockers, etc., are fine. I put in new gaskets and torqued the head to 75 pounds. Trouble is, the engine won't start. It gets plenty of fire and gasoline. Can you tell me what's wrong? — WAITING

DEAR WAITING: Did you adjust the rockers?

DEAR MIKE: My 1974 Omega stood under some trees that oozed sap onto the paint. Is there any way to remove these splotches? — MARKED CAR

DEAR MARKED: If you can catch tree sap early enough, mild deterent and water usually get it off. This is one of the few times I recommend using a detergent on paint. Never use it for normal wash jobs. If the tree sap has hardened, you can sometimes remove it with kerosene or commercial tar remover.

DEAR MIKE: I own a 1963 Mercury Meteor, which I bought new. The car is now pushing 231,000 miles and, while I'm attached to it, I worry abot metal fatigue. The body isn't rusted, but what parts should be checked before attempting a long trip this spring? Are there any practical tests for metal fatigue? — CONCERNED

DEAR CON: Metal fatigue certainly can be a problem in older, high-mileage cars. Some garages perform tests using an UV-light-sensitive dye that shows up hairline cracks in items like spindles, steering linkage, suspension components, and brake parts. The items to be tested don't have to be removed, but you do need to steamclean them. The cost of such tests varies. I think, though, that an ultraviolet test might be a good idea in your case.

You're invited to send your automotive questions to Michael Lamm, Box 7607-B, Stockton, Calif. 95207. Not all questions can be answered personally. Those of broadest reader interest will appear in future columns.

If your windshield wipers disappear below the windshield when not in use, make sure their slots are cleared of snow and ice before you turn them on. If the wiper arms are frozen in place, turning them on cn damage the motor, blow a fuse or tear away some of the rubber blade.

Why shouldn't you pour a little grease down the kitchen sink even if you have a garbage disposer? Because grease sticks to the pipes, and food particles stick to the grease. Enough grease goes down the drain when you wash greasy pots and pans. So don't grind egg shells, celery or orange peel in the disposer — the fine particles of these foods are the greatest grease clingers.

If you need only temporary protection for water pipes to keep them from freezing, don't buy water pipe insulation. Wrap pipes with layers of old newspapers, lapping the ends and tying them to the pipes. If you need to keep out moisture (rain or snow), wrap the paper-wrapped pipes in plastic, such as drycleaner bags or slit trash bags.

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: Your answer to that woman whose husband let the pet cockatoo fly loose in the house was the pits! If the husband refused to clean up after the bird, you should have told her to do it. But to facetiously suggest that she leave the window open, buy a cat, or let you know if she wants a good recipe for stewed cockatoo on toast showed an insensitivity that was unlike you, Abby.

Don't you realize that some people have absolutely no sense of humor and might take you seriously?

Please revise your answer, or I'll tell Doris Day on you.

BIRD LOVER

DEAR BIRD LOVER: Consider it revised. I've eaten a lot of crow in my day, but I swear I've never tasted stewed cockatoo. I was only kidding, but I should not have been so flip about a subject as serious as life — even when it's for the birds.

A better suggestion would have been to simply return the bird to the pet shop.

DEAR ABBY: Please print this before the next touchdown.

Not so! Parents get only two complimentary tickets for each game. How can we handle this awkward situation gracefully?

PROUD PARENTS

DEAR PARENTS: When you're tackled for tickets don't hesitate to say that you have no freebies to give them, but you'll gladly get the tickets if they'll pay for them.

DEAR ABBY: Can you stand just one more letter about chastity belts? Legend has it that a young knight was preparing to go off to the crusades. He kissed his lovely young wife and locked her into her chastity belt, as was the custom in those days.

Then the knight called on his best friend and said, "Here is the key to my wife's chastity belt. Keep it. And if I am not back in seven days you will know I'm dead, so please unlock my wife so she can marry again."

With that, the knight galloped off to do battle. He was gone only two hours when he was overtaken by his friend who came charging after him in a cloud of dust, shouting: "You gave me the wrong key!"

HA HA

DEAR ABBY: In your reply to I'M WITH YOU, you wrote: "Perhaps I'm bending over backwards to urge parents to set good examples for their children to follow."

You would do well to bend over backwards to urge parents to heed the words of George Bernard Shaw.:

"If you must hold yourself up to your children as an object lesson, hold yourself up as a WARNING and not an an EXAMPLE."

Consumers Put Rap On Loan Disclosures

OTTAWA (CP) — The Consumers' Association of Canada has requested a meeting with Finance Minister Jean Chretien to discuss proposed banking regulations concerning disclosure on loans and deposits.

The association says the regulations are "regrettably deficient, falling far short of previous government promises to improve the market for consumer borrowing and lending."

They do not ensure that bank customers will be given "full and accurate information on interest charges and yields," the CAC recently told the Senate committee on banking.

The lending regulations would require a bank to give a borrower a detailed statement of the cost of borrowing, including charges such as those for administration, insurance or checking the credit rating of the borrower, before the loan contract was signed.

But the CAC said the regulations as drafted by the government would not allow consumers to compare rates as they still permit banks to hide certain charges — such as notarizing and surveying fees — involved in borrowing money.

Cowichan Business Stifled?

Business organizations will ask B.C. Chamber of Commerce help in cutting government red tape which they say is hindering development in the Cowichan Valley.

Members of the Cowichan Valley Business Persons Association said government regulations are chasing away many small enterprises that might have started in the district.

Ajeet Bawa, president of the Cowichan Valley Chamber of Commerce, said he will take a brief from the Cowichan Valley B.P.A. to the provincial chamber office in an effort to get wider support for the protest.

He made the statement after members of the C.V.B.P.A. said all levels of government are encouraging development while at the same time issuing regulations that create frustration and discouragement.

With unemployment so high, some easing in restrictions should be encouraged, they said.

Tories Press Lang Attack

OTTAWA (CP) — Undaunted by government accusations that they are scaring airline passengers, Progressive Conservatives plan to continue their attack on government air safety standards this week.

Conservative spokesmen said they intend to keep after Transport Minister Otto Lang about a leaked departmental report which says air safety in Canada is generally unco-ordinated and often haphazard.

After two days of harsh criticism in the Commons last week, Lang promised to bring in legislation later this week that will provide for creation of independent boards to investigate air crashes.

This will answer Conservative criticism that Lang's department is in a conflict of interest, because it formulates and enforces regulations and also has to investigate crashes.

Nova Scotia Conservative Michael Forrestall said, of Lang's assurances last Friday that air safety standards are good, that the minister "does not know what the hell is going on in this damned department."

Forrestall and his colleagues were undeterred by Lang's admonition that they are worrying Canadian travellers unnecessarily.

In other Commons business this week, Conservatives and New Democrats plan to make housing an issue, pressing the government for more help to municipalities.

A bill on the order paper would increase subsidy payments for low-income housing projects and allow more homeowners to rennovate their homes with federal government assistance.

Conservative House leader Walter Baker said Friday his party will urge the government to deal with the bill early this week because a number of municipal projects have been delayed for more than a year waiting for Parliament to pass the bill.

But the NDP opposes it because it does not do enough to supply housing for poor people, New Democratic House leader Stanley Knowles said.

The Conservatives also promised to give a rough ride to legislation now before the Commons to put limits on cost-of-living increases in pensions paid to former public servants.

That debate will be interrupted Tuesday when Conservatives have the whole day to debate a subject of their choosing. Baker refused to divulge the topic, but other sources said Opposition leader Joe Clark will lead off the debate and will force a vote on a non-confidence motion.

A prolonged debate on the pension bill would delay second reading — approval in principle — of two other bills which the government hopes to whip through this week.

One is legislation to increase the number of representatives on the Northwest Territories council, a bill which the Conservatives have agreed to pass through all stages in one day.

Stress of Lesbians Passed to Children

The increasing public debate on Lesbian mothers could prove harmful to their children, a meeting on homosexuality was told.

Bev Schreiber, an elementary school counsellor and not a homosexual, said children of Lesbians would only have problems if adults tell them they should have them.

Public discussion of their problems, which is essential if Lesbianism is to become accepted, is also a real danger to the youngsters, she said.

She was one of five professional workers addressing a meeting at the Unitarian Church, sponsored by the Feminist Lesbian Action Group. None of the panel members are homosexuals. About 40 Lesbians attended the meeting.

Mrs. Schreiber said she has counselled the daughter of a Lesbian who lives with another woman and so far the young girl appears to have no problems related to the fact that both adults in her home are female.

Other school counsellors report similar stories, she said.

"It is clear that children do not have a natural problem with this. If they have a problem it is because adults have given it to them."

Public discussion of potential problems could bring these children to wonder what kind of problems they have.

It is this type of public probing that is the real danger, she said.

At the same time, meetings of Lesbians are vital so they can feel the support of knowing their situation is not unique, she said.

Mrs. Schreiber said it was inevitable that there would be more public discussion of homosexuality in the next few years and this would be difficult for the children to deal with.

But homosexual parents could help by continuing to provide a loving, supportive home life.

She said the coming public debate might make Lesbianism widely acceptable as a lifestyle 10 years from now, although the intervening years would be difficult ones.

Ten years ago, she said, it was not acceptable for a woman with children to move in with a man without marrying him. Now this sort of living together is widely accepted in the community.

In a similar way, Lesbian couples might be generally accepted 10 years from now.

"Homosexuality has been around for thousands of years and it is obviously here to stay. The important thing is for people to be honest with it."

Under an ideal situation, she said, a Lesbian shouldn't have children unless she was fully adjusted to her role as a homosexual. Any stress in the home is passed along to the children.

Unfortunately, some women have children before they realize they are homosexual and then they might have difficulty adjusting to this newly-discovered reality.

It is no use saying the woman shouldn't have children; she already has them and the problems must be resolved.

ROBBERY A BOOMING BUSINESS

CAMPBELL RIVER — If you're going to steal firearms, steal big ones.

That seems to be the philosophy of thieves here who swiped a 500-pound cannon guarding the fortress of the Quartedeck Lounge at the Discovery Inn.

It marked the third time in 15 years the $1,200 field piece has been stolen, but there was a new twist to this one — the hotel's assistant manager watched as two thieves made off with it.

The thieves told assistant Don Campbell they were loading the cannon on a truck to cart it off for repairs.

"When I saw them picking up the 500-pound plus cannon, I stayed clear," Campbell said. "I just got their licence number."

Police were still looking for the vehicle Sunday.

CITY WATCHDOG REPORT 85
Congratulations go to the four ladies from Victoria West, who appeared at last Thursday's Public Hearing regarding rezoning lands at foot of Mary Street. During the hearing one lady in particular requested that the Aldermen should look at the deplorable conditions of Mary Street especially the muddy holes. Let's hope before next council meeting that all Aldermen, especially those that live in Oak Bay visit the southern part of Mary Street. Your City Watchdog attended the inquest last Monday regarding the Claremont Ave. traffic deaths, its unfortunate some of the speeding youthful drivers of Victoria area were not in attendance. Please continue phoning 383-6259 or write to Your City's Watchdog, C. Joe Richards, PO Box 154, Victoria, for information regarding City Matters. Postscript: Many thanks to Mr. McPike for the excellent service.

GORDON HEAD

A unique and exciting totally modern home belonging naturally to its open easy-care lot — 1.5 acres of gently sloping rock offering unobstructed views and sunshine with 355 ft. of waterfront. NO — not a typical old Victoria mansion needing maids and gardeners, nor yet a huge new luxury home on a mini lot. This home is up to the minute modern with every luxury yet can be cared for with the greatest of ease. Every window has glorious sea and island views. The living room has a huge hooded fireplace and a 22 ft. ceiling. The master suite is really SOMETHING. But there are so many special delights. It will appeal to a purchaser who appreciates quality, one-of-a-kind living, genuine PRIVACY indoors and out, with easy access to the city. Price $400,000.

GORDON HEAD

A unique and exciting totally modern home belonging naturally to its open easy-care lot — 1.5 acres of gently sloping rock offering unobstructed views and sunshine with 355 ft. of waterfront. NO — not a typical old Victoria mansion needing maids and gardeners, nor yet a huge new luxury home on a mini lot. This home is up to the minute modern with every luxury yet can be cared for with the greatest of ease. Every window has glorious sea and island views. The living room has a huge hooded fireplace and a 22 ft. ceiling. The master suite is really SOMETHING. But there are so many special delights. It will appeal to a purchaser who appreciates quality, one-of-a-kind living, genuine PRIVACY indoors and out, with easy access to the city. Price $400,000.

The Lord is my Shepherd
I shall not want
He maketh me to lie down in green pastures
He leadeth me beside the still waters
He restoreth my soul
He leadeth me in the path of righteousness for his name sake
Yea though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death
I will fear no evil
For thou art with me, thy rod and thy staff they comfort me
Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies
Thou anointest my head with oil
My cup runneth over
Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life and I will dwell in the House of the Lord forever.

Don't Take Wraps off Fuchsias

GARDENING
hilda beastall

Fuchsias in containers which have been wintered outdoors in a sheltered spot have not likely suffered from frost to the point of making the plants worthless.

It is still too early to take the plants from their storage spot. The fact of the top twigs being dried and showing no green shoots is not important. Don't uncover the plants yet.

The roots and the bottom few inches of woody branch growth were the parts to need winter protection. The top growth and all branch ends will be cut off during March so it does not matter if these appear lifeless. New green shoots will come from the undamaged lowest growth buds on each of the two or three main stems just above soil level. All the rest will be cut off at the March pruning time. Meanwhile, it forms some of the protective material from frosts which are still to come.

If the plants were new last year, flowering for the first time, you can let them bloom again on the same roots, repotting into fresh soil just as new growth is seen.

Fuchsias with more than two years of flowering behind them need renewing. The wood becomes hard, and soil nutrients are not passed freely up to the flowering tips to produce the abundant bloom. Renewal is done by letting new shoots grow to about three inches length and then taking them as green cuttings to root in damp sand and peatmoss under plastic.

A small pot of several cuttings around the edge can be put into a plastic bag and placed in a warm place indoors for seven to 10 days to root; when the tips look lively, indicating rooting, open the bag for a few more days to allow air in and moisture out, and then put into separate three-inch pots to grow on at cooler temperature. They must still be where frost cannot reach them.

When well-rooted in the small pots, pinch out the top centre growth to make side branches. This goes on until the plants are bushy and have reached the size of pot you want them to flower in. The moving into larger pots is done gradually — from a three-inch to a 3½-inch; then to a four-inch; then to a five.

The potting mix should be a humusy mixture of soil from the compost heap plus about 25 per cent volume of rubbed down coarse peatmoss. If using fine grind peatmoss, add some coarse sand to prevent close packing.

When the fuchsias are put outdoors (a coldframe is a good place with cover raised on blocks) it may be another week or two before flower buds can be seen.

Not until first flowers are open do we begin the regular feeding program so necessary to keep fuchsias in continuous growth and bloom until late fall. It is the new growth constantly being produced by pinching the tip shoots back half way that results in the abundant blooming that is seen on well grown fuchsias.

In our normal dry summers with plentiful sunshine, most varieties of fuchsias need dappled shade during the hottest part of the day. The hardy species which remain in the ground for years, needing only cutting down in late March and a mulch around the stems of either very old manure or of well rotted compost, do best in full sun. But those with the big blooms need planning for now as to where they will go when finally ready for their summer blooming.

TWO MORE BABIES DIE

NAPLES (AP) — Two babies died Sunday of the so-called "mystery disease" that has claimed the lives of at least 63 youngsters here since it was first detected a year ago.

Officials at Santobono Hospital said the latest victims were boys, aged six months and 11 months. Most of the children who have succumbed to the ailment have been infants.

Hospital officials said an 11-month-old girl is being treated in the intensive-care ward for the symptoms that mark the disease — a high fever and vomiting often followed by a coma.

Most of the victims are from the city's crowded slums.

Medical and health specialists from the North America and Europe are scheduled to arrive today to assist Italian physicians trying to identify the illness, which newspapers call the "obscure evil."

Some Italian physicians have said they believe the swift-striking illness is a form of viral pneumonia.

Naples officials reported the Italian government will provide about $120 million in emergency funds to enlarge the Naples sewer system and for other measures to try to clean up the city.

Officials estimated that in this city of 2.8 million, dubbed the Calcutta of Europe because of its unsanitary conditions, about 5,000 homes have neither running water nor toilet facilities.

Apeman Discovery Doubted by Expert

BOSTON (AP) — Richard Leakey, one of the world's leading anthropologists, says he has unearthed new fossils which challenge the claim by two Americans that they have identified a new species of early man.

In his first appearance on a U.S. speaking tour, the son of anthropologists Louis and Mary Leakey outlined his reasons for doubting whether the creatures, which have been dubbed "Afar ape men," were in fact ancestors of humans.

Anthropologists Don Johanson and Tim White said when they named the new species last month that the classification was likely to be controversial.

The Afar creature lived on the African savannahs about 3.5 million years ago. It walked upright with a human-like body but had an ape's face and brain.

Johanson and White believe the Afar creature, or Australopithecus afrensis, was common ancestor to three separate species of an early manlike creature. Two of these became extinct for unknown reasons, while the third evolved into mankind, they said.

Leakey maintains that all three species were present 3.5 million years ago, two of them belonging to the genus Australopithecus and the third to the genus homo which includes humans. He said their common ancestor will be found in the four million- to six million-year range but that that era of time is still practically devoid of fossils.

The argument is more than a dispute over the naming of some fossil bones.

Leakey's theory would mean the line that became human has been evolving separately from the manlike creatures for at least one million years longer than Johanson and White believe.

If so it may help explain why one species of upright creature became intelligent and flourished while the other two vanished.

He refused to describe the findings in detail pending a scientific report in the British journal Nature within the next two months.

But he said the new fossils show that one of the now-extinct man-like creatures — a large-jawed creature named Australopithecus robustus — existed long before 2.5 million years ago, the age of the oldest fossils reported to date.

The debate over the Afar's validity results from an explosion of fossils in the last 10 years from the eastern African Rift Valley, first explored by Louis and Mary Leakey.

Logging Threat To Fish Spawn

By MARK HUME
Times Staff

Wayne Harling of Nanaimo, vice-president of the Federation's V.I. chapter, said timber on a 600-acre site immediately below Little Qualicum Falls Park is being stripped to the river bank.

Steelhead will be spawning in the area this winter.

"Once the root system breaks down, then there's going to be a sloughing of the bank into the river. The eggs will be smothered with silt and will suffocate; there's no way they can survive if they get covered with silt."

A fish and wildlife branch spokesman said, however, that the contract logger cutting the site had been extremely co-operative in trying to avoid environmental problems.

Dave Lindsay of the habitat protection division said the contractor had asked the branch for input before the logging operation began, an obligation the company was not required to meet.

Lindsay said that when it comes to private land the branch has no control, and can only act if debris or sediment is deposited in the stream.

He said the logger had voluntarily agreed to leave some trees along the stream bank.

Lindsay added that if Harling's fears were realized and the bank did collapse into the stream then the branch could probably take some action under the Fisheries Act.

"But that's the problem," said Harling. "They can't do anything until after the fact."

Harling said "there really would be no problem if the logging were selective, but they're taking every stick .... they've left a few trees along the bank, but it's totally inadequate."

He said the area was first logged about 60 years ago.

The decline of the dollar, increased wood exports and the current high price of B.C. timber are all factors that have made logging on the site suddenly viable, said Harling.

He said the Little Qualicum situation is disturbing because it illustrates what is likely to happen to other watersheds on the Island's east coast in the next 20 years.

Most east coast watersheds are covered by the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway land grant, and consequently are in private, rather than Crown, ownership.

"The Qualicum is symptomatic of what's going to happen along all the streams on the eastern side if we don't ensure some protection. If we can't protect the stream banks any better than we did 60 years ago, when they were first logged, we're going to get back into the same fisheries decline we precipitated when those watersheds were initially logged.

"If the Little Qualicum is what we can expect for the next 20 years then we might as well forget all about the Salmonid Enhancement Program."

Coffee Crop Dip

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — Brazil's 1979-80 coffee crop will be 3.2 million bags fewer than previous estimates because of severe frosts in the coffee-growing regions, the government says. The official estimate for the 1979-80 crop is 21.3 million 132-pound bags. This year's crop was 20 million bags.

Handicapped Urge Building Law

New laws making public buildings in B.C. accessible to the handicapped are being urged by a Victoria group.

Municipal Affairs and Housing Minister Bill Vander Zalm has been asked by the Handicapped Action Committee to enact a supplement to the building code which sets standards for building accessibility for the handicapped to public buildings.

Committee manager Elly Bowerman says if the supplement is enacted it will prevent public buildings being built that are not accessible to all people.

Government departments involved have approved the supplement but it still requires ministerial signatures to become law.

Vander Zalm has indicated this may take some time.

The "architectural barriers amendment" to the building code came to his attention shortly after he took over his new portfolio, the minister said, adding he has given the amendment priority status.

"There is no doubt in my mind that this is the most progressive approach to building standards in Canada. No other province has moved this far in the area of accessibility legislation," he said.

Vander Zalm said some red tape is holding up the legislation in the form of the attorney-general's ministry and the ministry of deregulation.

Bowerman said Vander Zalm's reply indicates government interest but gives no clues as to when the legislation will be enacted.

Much remains to be done in this area in both public and private enterprise buildings, she said. One downtown store, she noted, had recently spent about $1 million on renovations but still has no washroom that is accessible to the handicapped.

Canadian Doctor Was Jack the Ripper: Prof

VANCOUVER (UPC) — A university professor says he has found the answer to a mystery that has puzzled criminologists for 90 years. He knows the identity of Jack the Ripper, he says — and he was Canadian.

"Everything fits," says Professor Tony Barrett, professor of classics at British Columbia University, and an amateur criminologist. "Of course, after all this time, we'll probably never know for sure, but the evidence puts a Canadian doctor at the top of the suspect list."

Barrett says Jack the Ripper, the notorious knife-murderer who killed and mutilated eight prostitutes in the sleazy Whitechapel area of Victorian London, was Dr. Neill Cream, who once practiced as a physician in London, Ontario.

Like Jack the Ripper, Cream murdered four prostitutes in London, England, over a period of two years, Barrett says. Unlike the Ripper, however, Cream was caught, tried, found guilty and hanged.

"But the records show that the Ripper killings suddenly stopped, for no apparent reason, when Dr. Cream was executed," Barrett says. "And the story of Jack the Ripper ended just as mysteriously, for he was never seen or heard of again."

Barrett says Dr. Cream married a local girl after graduating from Montreal's McGill University, but went to work in a London, England, hospital after she died mysteriously a few weeks after the wedding. In 1878, he returned to Canada and set up a general practice in London, Ontario.

But he moved hurriedly to Chicago the following year when a patient was found dead in his office with abrasions on her neck and a bottle of chloroform beside her. A year later, he was tried on a murder-by-abortion charge, but was acquitted.

The following year, Dr. Cream was convicted of murdering the Canadian husband of a lady friend, sentenced to life imprisonment in Joliet Prison, Illinois. But in 1887, his father died and Dr. Cream was suddenly a rich man, Barrett says.

"It was a common thing for prisoners to buy their freedom from a corrupt administration. And this is what I think Dr. Cream did. The next we hear of him is in London, England, four years later.

"Between the time Dr. Cream apparently disappeared from prison in 1888 and the time he was hanged for killing four prostitutes in 1892, Jack the Ripper killed and mutilated eight prostitutes in the same city," Barrett points out. "The Ripper murders began the same time Dr. Cream disappeared from the prison in America and ended abruptly the same year he was executed for murder."

In the years following the Ripper murders, many criminologists attempted to solve the mystery of the Ripper's identity. Suspects have included Prince Albert Victor, Duke of Clarence, eldest son of Edward VII; prominent physicians and a mythical idiot relative of a member of the Royal Family who lived hidden away in a secret room in Balmoral Castle, Scotland.

But the clincher in Barrett's evidence is a statement by the government official who hanged Dr. Cream, made to his son after the execution. "The hangman told his son that Dr. Cream started to say something seconds before he was hanged," Barrett says. "His last words, according to the hangman, were: 'I am Jack the....,.'"

Getting A Toe Hold

TORONTO — Doctors have amputated a toe of a Thunder Bay man and have attached it to where his right thumb used to be. Bill Elko, 49, who severed his thumb while working with a circular saw in his home last summer, is expected to be able to use his hand again by June on his job as a maintenance electrician. Dr. Ronald Zuker, who performed the surgery last week with two other doctors, said the second toe from Elko's right foot was removed and, with the aid of a microscope, was sewn to his hand.

LONDON — The Queen left today for Kuwait on a goodwill tour of the wealthy oil states of the Persian Gulf, the most delicate foreign mission she has underaken in 27 years as sovereign. Saudi Arabia, the world's biggest oil exporter, is on the royal itinerary. The Queen, accompaniedby Prince Philip, is flying in a supersonic Concorde airliner.

PARIS — Marlene Dietrich, 77, has been immobilized in her home here by a fractured leg bone, sources close to the entertainer reported Friday. The sources said the accident happened five weeks ago, but no further details were immediately available.

BRIGHTON — Alice Delysia, who danced at the Russian royal court and created a sensation on the New York stage by appearing in $800,000 worth of jewelry, died at her home here Saturday, friends reported. She was 90.

PALM SPRINGS — Frank Sinatra and actress Eva Gabor were among the 350 guests invited to witness the wedding of Susan Ford, 21-year-old daughter of former president Gerald Ford, to Secret Serviceagent Charles Vance, 35, Saturday. Miss Ford fell in love with Vance when he guarded the Ford family.

Pistol-firing rebels celebrate in Tehran

Times News Services

TEHRAN — Resistance to Iran's new revolutionary government by the armed forces of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi has ended, causing successful supporters to riot thoughout the country.

Thousands of armed youths roamed Tehran threatening symbols of the monarchy and its foreign allies. Three generals were reported slain.

Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, the Shiite Moslem leader of the anti-shah rebellion, appealed to his followers for order and the surrender of thousands of looted weapons.

Khomeini's 14-year fight to convert Iran from a monarchy to an Islamic republic succeeded Sunday after two days of bloody street fighting in the capital. The turning point came when the armed forces chief of staff ordered all troops back to their barracks and declared his support for the 78-year-old Khomeini.

With the army no longer behind him, Prime Minister Shahpour Bakhtiar was reported to have delivered his resignation to Mehdi Bazargan, Khomeini's nominee to head a provisional government. Bakhtiar dropped out of sight, though one highly-placed source said he is under guard for his own protection. There had been unconfirmed rumors that Bakhtiar had fled the country or committed suicide.

Some 11,000 prisoners, including Americans and Europeans, hacked and clawed their way out of Iran's largest prison during the chaos in Tehran — the largest recorded prison break in history.

"I feel excited. I'm sweating all over. I can't believe it," John Yunoski of Ottawa said as he staggered out of his cell after two years of imprisonment.

Some 11,000 other prisoners — convicted murderers, political prisoners, burglars and pimps — streamed out of the battered prison.

Many jumped to freedom through windows whose bars had been forcibly bent and wrenched aside.

Others rode trucks and cars abandoned by prison guards who scampered out of thae sprawling complex when armed supporters of the ayatollah closed in and threatened to storm the prison.

More than 200 persons were reported killed in Tehran, 150 in the northeastern city of Tabriz and 44 in the southern city of Shiraz.

Khomeini condemned "arson, destruction and cruelty" and said those indulging in such "savage acts" are "disobeying Allah's orders and are traitors to the Islamic movement."

The "provisional operational staff of the revolution" in a broadcast on Radio Tehran said: "All Iranian armed forces have laid down their arms and declared their total solidarity with the revolution. There is not the slightest resistance by the armed forces."

The announcement called on the revolution's supporters "to stop surrounding barracks and government centres and not to use their weapons, except against the enemy."

An army spokesman said Gen. Abdul-Ali Badrei, a former commander of the Imperial Guard, was shot

WASHINGTON (AP) — The next round of Israeli-Egyptian peace treaty talks will begin Feb. 21 at Camp David, Md. It may be the last U.S. attempt at driving the two sides into removing obstacles to completing a Middle East agreement.

Acceptances to invitations have been received from Egyptian Prime Minister Mustafa Khalil and Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan.

U.S. State Secretary Cyrus Vance will be host for the talks at the snow-capped Catoctin Mountain site where President Carter and leaders of the two Middle East states last September hammered out two framework agreements.

With the negotiations deadlocked over the Palestinian and other issues, Carter has suggested that unless a treaty is quickly completed, U.S. diplomatic efforts will shift to other world trouble spots. This might mean tossing the conflict into the lap of the United Nations or trying to set up a broader peace conference involving other Arab countries and perhaps the Soviet Union.

U.S. officials, announcing the starting date, could not predict how long this round of negotiations will last. Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin said Sunday there will be a recess so Dayan and Khalil can consult their governments, indicating the talks will last longer than the three or four days originally planned.

Egypt wants to link the treaty with Israel to concrete steps establishing Palestinian self-rule on the west bank of the Jordan River and in the Gaza Strip. Israel has resisted, while insisting that Egypt allow the treaty to take precedence over its military ties with other Arab states.

U.S. officials, cautious about the prospects for success, are hoping the turmoil in Iran will influence both Egypt and Israel to settle their differences and restore an element of stability to the region. One outstanding queston is whether Saudi Arabia will feel compelled by the Iraninan situation to lend its support to Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's peace drive.

POT SMUGGLERS GET 10 YEARS

Two former Newfoundland residents were each sentenced to 10 years in jail today in connection with the largest marijuana seizure in Canadian history.

Judge Reg Moir of Kelowna, sitting in Victoria provincial court this morning, sentenced 30-year-old Patrick Joseph Murphy of Limerick, Ireland, and 28-year-old Garrett Ronald O'Brien, also known as Phillip Stanley Ward and Edwin Floyd Terry, a Canadian who lived in Charlottesville, Va.

As the judge was leaving the courtroom Murphy asked, "Is that it?"

O'Brien, who asked to speak with his girlfriend sitting in court and was refused permission, cocked his fist as if to strike a deputy sheriff but did not throw a punch.

O'Brien, who also had 1975 Toronto charges waived in and pleaded guilty to possession of cocaine and hashish for the purpose of trafficking, was given an additional nine months consecutive on those charges.

Moir said the nine-month sentences would be concurrent with each other but consecutive to the 10-year term.

The seizure took place near Shelter Inlet, 32 kilometres northwest of Tofino, and involved police forces of two countries and two Canadain Armed Forces vessels.

Levi, Wallace Get Nod

Two sitting NDP members of the provincial legislature won nominations during the weekend to run in the next provincial election and the mayor of Port McNeill got the call for the Socreds in the new North Island riding.

Former provincial cabinet minister Norm Levi was nominated Sunday as the NDP candidate in the new provincial riding of Maillardville-Coquitlam.

Levi, who was human resources minister in the NDP government between 1972 and 1975, defeated Larry Whalley at a constituency meeting.

Levi now represents one of two seats in the Vancouver-Burrard riding which was wiped out by redistribution.

In Duncan, Barbara Wallace was nominated by acclamation to run for the second time for the NDP in the Cowichan-Malahat-The Islands riding.

Further up Island, Gerry Furney, mayor of Port McNeill, defeated two other contestants in his bid for the Social Credit nomination for the riding of North Island.

He defeated Dave Storrie and Norm McLaren, who was unsuccessful in his bid for the Comox seat in the 1975 provincial election when he ran for the Liberals.

Meanwhile, Socred MLA Ray Loewen told a regional party convention Saturday he is not seeking re-election in Burnaby-Edmonds riding.

Energy Shortage Despite the Rains

Recent rains in the Pacific Northwest have done little to ease the energy shortage in Washington State, power officials said today.

Fred Adair, acting chief of the Washington State Energy Office, said from Olympia that higher temperatures and increased precipitation over the past week have eased the situation only slightly.

"Our energy demand has been reduced substantially because of the warmer weather and the increased precipitation is helpful, but one week isn't going to bring about much of a change. The long-range situation still remains."

Adair said about three weeks of rain would be needed to make a significant change in Washington's energy problem.

B.C. Hydro information officer Dave Robertson said the situation has changed little here. Hydro is still uncertain it will have enough surplus energy to meet Washington's continuing needs

"If we have a lot of rain between now and the end of spring it would help, but the snow pack is the important thing."

Washington relies on B.C. for extra power but the province will halt exports if there is a shortage here.

He added that although it has been raining steadily in Victoria for the past week that's little help.

Even in the most favorable conditions there isn't enough power produced on Vancouver Island to satisfy local needs.

Hydro's export power, and the extra power needed by the Island, comes from the Peace and Mica reservoirs in the Interior.

54 Dead In New Rhodesia Air Crash

SALISBURY (UPI) — An Air Rhodesia Viscount turboprop airliner crashed Monday shortly after takeoff from the northern resort town of Kariba killing all 54 people aboard, an airline spokesman said.

Eyewitnesses reported that the plane veered to the right soon after it took off from Kariba en route to Salisbury and then crashed at the site of last September's downing of another Air Rhodesia Viscount by black nationalist guerrillas.

The Air Rhodesia spokesman said "it has been confirmed by combined operations that there are no survivors" among the 49 passengers and 5 crew members.

Asked if the plane was shot down the spokesman said: "We cannot comment at this time."

On Sept 3, 1978 another Air Rhodesia Viscount was shot down with 56 people aboard during a flight from Kariba to Salisbury. At the time Rhodesian guerrilla leader Joshua Nkomo declared that his Patriotic Front forces had been responsible for shooting down the plane. Thirty-eight persons were killed in that crash.

ROE ROW is one way of describing this lineup of applicants waiting outside the Canada Employment Centre at 2653 Douglas today, seeking employment at the Oakland Industries plant for the herring roe season about to get under way. About 150 had applied by mid-morning and a CEC spokesman said there was less of a crush than expected because the company itself had taken close to 1,000 applications. Although only about 800 jobs will be available, Oakland reckons to sign on more than double that number because there's a high turnover of workers. The CEC office will also accept applications Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

They Still Pray At the Golden Shrine

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

Joss sticks are still lit and burned on the golden shrine of the Victoria Chinese Freemason Society on Johnson Street.

And prayers are still said to five Chinese saints who have watched over the ancient land of Cathay for thousands of years.

Now and again, an elderly man will place some fruits on the altar, an offering to the creator of all things.

The shrine with its intricate carvings is of some significance to many Chinese people. It's a monument to members of one of China's great secret societies which flourished in Victoria more than 50 years ago.

The work of this once-powerful organization came to light when documents were presented to members of the Chinese community at a dinner Sunday at the Peking restaurant.

The papers dealing with the mortgage of the now-demolished Chee Kung Tong building, formerly at 615-621 Fisgard, near the police station, were presented to the community by Deregulation Minister Sam Bawlf.

Dr. David C.Y. Lai, associate professor in the geography department of the University of Victoria, recalled that the building was mortgaged to B.C. Land and Investment Agency for $12,000.

It was mortgaged to raise money for revolutionists who were finally successful in over-throwing the Manchu Goverment in 1912, he said. Dr. Sun Yat-Sen was their leader.

"The documents contain the names of Chinese citizens who mortgaged the building," he said. "They were members of the Chee Kung Tong, better known to Victorians as the Chinese Freemason Society."

Lai said the English name of the society was just a cover-up for one of China's great secret societies. It had nothing to do with European Freemason Society.

The money raised in Victoria was sent to China to purchase arms and on April 27, 1911, revolutionists struck at the headquarters of the viceroy of Kwantung. The uprising failed and hundreds of people were killed in the fighting or later executed.

But a few months later the revolution overthrew the Manchu government.

Lai said the documents which lay for years in the provincial Land Registry office also revealed some interesting things about the Chee Kung Tong. It was formed after the Manchus defeated the Ming Emperor and conquered China in 1664.

"It was a blood brotherhood known in English as 'Triads' and dedicated to ousting the Manchurians from China," he said.

"They considered the Manchus foreigners. They refused to compromise their national principles and went underground."

He said the society was partially responsible for the T'ai P'ing rebellion which lasted from 1850 to 1864. When that failed many had to leave China. Some went to San Francisco and others to B.C. where they formed branches of the society, first at Quesnel and later in Victoria.

The society's code was strict, Lai said.

"Members from different districts identified themselves by using various words and signs. For example, holding a teapot a certain way was one of many signs that the holder was a member of the society."

"They had to be careful," he said. "In the 18th century thousands died in a bloody inquisition."

Lai said after China became a republic, the society reorganized itself into a political party now known as Min Chee Tang.

"It's no longer a secret society, he said. "But the shrine still remains, including its English name and some original members, now getting on in years."

Lai, along with two Uvic students, Raymond Candy and Kim Forster, who are researching Chinese history financed by a B.C. government grant, hope to uncover more about the society and its members who lived in Victoria during the 19th century.

BATTLE OF THE INTERSECTIONS

City Drivers Going Color Blind

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Victoria drivers are fairly decent towards pedestrians but murderous towards other drivers at busy intersections, says Harris Bredavs, local director for Young Drivers of Canada.

"More and more drivers are going through on amber lights. They are even starting to go through on red. It is becoming very dangerous," he said in an interview.

His organization, which carries out driver training on a non-profit basis, will conduct a survey this spring to find out how bad the light-running is.

"We will work in co-operation with Victoria police, who are also concerned about this trend."

The survey will be taken as secretly as possible in order to get an accurate picture of driving habits.

The association will follow the survey with an educational program on avoiding going through amber lights.

"People coming to Victoria from other cities report we are terrible drivers in some ways. Going through on a red light is a flagrant example. Also we tend to turn without regard to lanes.

"We turn from the wrong lane and turn into the wrong lane. Some visitors say they have never seen driving this bad any place else."

But Victoria drivers are not totally hopeless.

A survey by Young Drivers of Canada from Dec. 1 to Dec. 7, Safe Driving Week, showed Victoria motorists were among the most polite in the nation when it comes to yielding to pedestrians.

In Victoria only 25 per cent of the drivers failed to yield to pedstrians when they should have. Across Canada the failure rate was 48.5 per cent.

Highest failure rate was in West Island, Montreal, where not a single motorist stopped for a pedestrian during the week.

In B.C. there was a 86 per cent failure rate in Richmond and a 96 per cent failure rate in Port Coquitlam.

"Victoria drivers are far from perfect but they are better than on the Lower Mainland. In Richmond one elderly lady tried several times to cross but no one would stop for her.

"By contrast, also in Richmond, a policeman had no trouble getting cars to stop when he tried to cross.

"The elderly woman should have worn a police uniform or else not tried to cross streets in Richmond."

The local survey was carried out by 25 students from Young Drivers of Canada at the intersection of Blanshard and Fort and at Blanshard and Broughton.

"We tried to look as inconspicuous as possible, which is difficult when there are five people standing around holding clipboards."

A similar process will be used for the spring survey but the dates and locations will not be announced in advance.

Bredavs said a survey on seat-belt use showed 48 per cent of Victoria drivers had buckled up.

"That's not very high but, frankly, it was a lot better than we expected. More and more drivers are remembering to use their seat belts."

The most serious problems in Victoria are associated with intersections. Only half of Victorians come to a complete stop before making a right hand turn on a red light, he said.

Paper Chase For Gunman

A hold-up man who pulled a gun on the owner of Morley's Five-Point Pharmacy Saturday night got only a box of papers for his efforts.

Victoria police said today Clarence Morley was met by a man carrying a black handgun as he left his pharmacy at 1273 Fairfield shortly after closing time Saturday.

The man, described as in his late 20s to early 30s, 5 feet 10 inches to 6 feet in height and of a medium build, made off with a cardboard box.

"He must have been surprised when he opened it," said a police spokesman. "It was full of papers; there were no drugs, no money."

Police said the gun used in the holdup was described as having a 12-inch barrel.

"But I think the gun grew a bit," said the police officer. "You tend to do that when you're looking down the wrong end of the barrel."

What's a Transient? Asks Park Owner

The owner of a tourist trailer park on Seymour Avenue today denied a resident's allegation that long-term occupants of the trailer pads are turning the property into a mobile home park.

"That's not so at all," said Abtar Bains. "We don't have a mobile home on the park there."

Saanich council's bylaw enforcement committee tonight will consider the complaint concerning the Inn-City Camper Trailer Park, 3420 Seymour, from John Franklin, 380 Gorge.

A report to the committee from a municipal official says 26 of the 100 pads are being used and of these three of the occupants have been in residence for more than two years and two for more than one year.

But Bains said those occupying the pads are all 'transient people'' who for one reason or another have had to prolong their intended stay.

"People come and go; I don't check them every time," he said.

Bains, who has owned the trailer park for four years, described Franklin's complaint as "picky."

"We are officially trying to encourage tourists but if people like this have their way the hotels would have to tell them to keep moving," he said.

It would be ridiculous for tourist establishment operators to tell visitors they could stay only a certain number of weeks because otherwise, under some bylaw or regulation, they would no longer be considered transient.

In any case, Bains added, "what is a transient? I'm baffled."

He noted that the trailer park is only an interim use of the property pending redevelopment to a more intensive use which will take advantage of its important location on the Blanshard highway extension.

Complainant Franklin states in his letter to Saanich that he understood the trailer park was originally approved because it would benefit tourists.

"It appears to me from across the street that it has turned into a residential mobile home park," he adds.

"The regulations for mobile home parks, such as the ones in Langford, require a 25-foot setback from any adjoining property and many less units per acre than the mess across the road from me on Seymour Avenue."

Saanich development manager William Weir says in his report to the committee the property is zoned for "the accommodation of the transient public."

But he says it might be difficult to establish that any violation had occurred because the zoning bylaw does not define precisely what is meant by the term transient.

Car Takes Off On Policemen

A police spokesman said today a passenger in the vehicle slid behind the wheel while the officers were busy taking the first driver, an 18-year-old, into custody for speeding.

The incident happened at about 5:30 a.m. Saturday following a high-speed chase north on Quadra.

Both men will be charged.

It's a Matter of Double Mathematics

WE ARE TOLD THAT "he travels the fastest who travels alone," and that very well may be. But after many good years of marriage, I'm tempted to amend that cynical old saying.

He travels the happiest who travels as two!

To move through life as a twosome, in fact, has become such a natural mode of progression that I find it hard to vision any other.

A man travelling it alone need concern himself only with the immediate frontal problems it poses. Water in the trail to be skirted or splashed through. A down-log to be scrambled over or crept under. Low-hanging boughs to be shoved aside without regard for where their backswing may land them.

But when you are used to moving as two, you walk such a path with a divided mind. Concern for your partner is a reaction rather than a conscious thought.

Is that water too deep for her boot-tops? Would it be better to skirt that log rather than tackle it directly? The hand that pushes the bough aside releases it with discretion so that it won't lash the face behind.

The rule of two holds elsewhere.

An invitation addressed to one and excluding the other would be regarded as boorish and declined out of hand.

When you are estimating the cost of a trip, you are automatically plunged into double mathematics.

What's the fare for two? How much is double occupancy? Will it cost us thus-and-so, doubled, for our dinner?

(Our exception to the rule is a two-for-one triumph on the dogwood ferries where we occasionally find ourselves taking breakfast. Those breakfasts are dauntingly large. So Win orders sausage and toast, I order scrambled eggs an hashed browns, then we split our take. Result: for each of us a reasonably-sized breakfast at a pawky saving!)

We have found over the years together that the vertical pronoun, "I", has all but vanished from our joint vocabulary. It has been crowded out by the companionable "We", "Ours" and "Us".

For many years now, our home has also been my workplace. This has imposed an iron-clad discipline on us.

Each workday morning I remove to my office, while Win turns to her own affairs.

Through most of the day, we are out of touch, each busy with his or her own concerns.

But let this separation go on too long, and one or other of us is moved to end it. I will get up from behind my typewriter and wander out to the kitchen, ostensibly to get a cup of coffee. Or Win will step into my office, presumably to check for some needed paper tucked into our shared filing cabinet.

Neither of us is deceived. We know that the real purpose of these intrusions is to see how the other is getting along, and to enjoy the luxury of a small visit.

Once in a long while, we worry about this closeness. Perhaps it isn't as it should be. Maybe we should be more hardily independent. But it is our lifestyle, and we agree that it suits us very well indeed.

Naturally, there are times when circumstances force a parting. Neither of us likes those times. They seem long and more than a little dreary. On any solo trip, I find myself constantly squirreling away random items of interest to pass on to my dear one when we are together again.

Without really meaning to, I seem to have set down a Valentine of sorts. I should also warn that walking as two brings its worries and imposes its responsibilities. But life has no gift to match it!

Iran's Finances Spark Shudders

By WILIAM BRANIGAN
Washington Post

TEHRAN — A close adviser of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini has proposed a series of drastic economic changes for Iran's proposed new Islamic republic that include cancellation of the country's foreign debt and a curtailment of its oil production by 60 per cent.

The economic pronouncements of Abdolahassan Bani-Sadr, who returned here from exile with Khomeini and who reportedly has been working for several years on economic plans for the ayatollah's republic, are sending shudders through the Iranian and Western business communities here.

Iran's default on an estimated $8 billion foreign debt could produce unforseen adverse consequences in Western financial markets. The proposed curtailment in oil production would cut sharply into Iranian oil exports, which accounted for about 10 percent of the West's oil consumption last year.

While a reduction in oil exports would presumably be covered by increased output in other oil-producing countries, the possibility of a major disruption in financial markets has produced increasing concern in banking circles.

American bankers had about $2.7 billion in outstanding loans at the end of 1978, while U.S. government credits extended to Iran are estimated at $1 billion. These figures do not include arrangements for Iran's massive purchases of military equipment in the United States.

Bani-Sadr has been widely mentioned in the local press as a possible finance minister in Khomeini's provisional government, although some opposition sources privately doubt that.

In either case, members of Khomeini's entourage say Bani-Sadr is close to the 78-year-old ayatollah and is serving as a principal economic adviser. Moreover, none of his pronouncements have been repudiated by Khomeini or his aides.

The exact extent of Iran's debt in the United States could not be assessed because of complex arrangements involved in Iran's purchases of U.S. military equipment. The government of Prime Minnister Shahpour Bakhtiar already has canceled contracts for U.S. arms valued at $8-10 million.

Several Western European countries, and particularly West Germany, France and Britain, are known to have large financial exposure in Iran.

Businessmen and economists here say plans to repair the country's devastated economy come at a time when Iran is confronting another problem — a food crisis in the months ahead.

Bani-Sadr's economic program also calls for the nationalization of all banks and credit systems, heavy taxes on imported spare parts, the transfer of industrial management to workers' committees in each factory and an agrarian reform to create agricultural "collectives."

In recent lectures at Tehran University, Bani-Sadr has gone even further. Outlining solutions to Iran's economic problems, he said Iran's first goal should be "to stop being a crude oil exporting country and try to establish our own independent economic institutions." In the meantime Iran would expect higher prices for its oil, he said.

He also called for "severing" Iranian banks from the world banking system and "abolishing" interest.

The son of a Moslem clergyman and reputedly the holder of economics and sociology degrees, Bani-Satr has said the Islamic republic's economic system would be "neither capitalist nor Marxist, nor a combination of the two."

He favors "decreasing oil production because part of it is not really for people's consumption but just for building up reserves. Forty percent of (previous) production would be enough for present needs.

Bloodless Coup Nabs Iran Embassy

By FRED BARBASH
Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The shah's portrait, which in the last month has been up, down and then up again at the Iranian embassy here, was down once more Sunday as rejoicing supporters of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini seized control of the building in another bloodless mini-coup.

Led by 12-pro-Khomeini Iranian diplomats, the group tore down and destroyed dozens of pictures of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, replacing them with equally imposing images of the ayatollah.

They hack-sawed their way into the office of longtime Iranian Ambassador Ardeshir Zahedi, and there staged a press conference where they proclaimed themselves the representatives of the new Iranian government and installed one of their own — diplomat Jafar Fagih — as the interim replacement for Zahedi.

Outside the embassy and in its hallways, Iranian music blared over a shortwave radio. A crowd of about 200 Iranian diplomats, students, businessmen, and children hugged and kissed one another as banners proclaiming "victory to the revolution" were hoisted above them.

This takeover was designed to be more permanent than the ones that preceded it. Shahriar Rouhani, a 29-year-old Yale graduate who represents the ayatollah, announced that a permanent ambassador soon would be appointed and that his government hoped for friendly diplomatic relations with the United States following "immediate recognition" of Khomeini's authority.

The first force of three or four pro-ayatollah Iranians who arrived at the embassy entered by knocking on the door. They were admitted by the charge d'affaires, according to witnesses, who greeted them with an embrace.

Once inside the building, the Iranians used a hacksaw blade to cut the lock on the office of Zahedi, who was said to be out-of-the country. One of the first places they headed for were the file cabinets, which turned out to be empty.

Rouhani charged that among the files removed from the Embassy were documents pertaining to "payoffs to American dignitaries," including members of Congress. He said he would not disclose details of the "payoffs," except to note that "they were indirect" and "not just caviar and champaigne."

Zahedi had a "caviar list, a champagne list and a silk-rug list," agreed a ranking embassy source, but "God knows some other things were given away."

and killed as he tried to talk with a group of insurgents who surrounded the guard's barracks.

Gen. Bokrat Jafarian, the military governor of Khuzestan province, was reported killed when his helicopter was shot down near Ahwaz. Lt.-Gen. Mohammed Amin Biglari, deputy commander of the Immortals Division of the Imperial Guard, was found shot to death early today in his Tehran home, the spokesman said.

In Washington, President Carter said he has been in touch with the new rulers of Iran and "we stand ready to work with them."

"Our objective has been and is a stable and independent Iran which maintains good relations with America," Carter told a news conference.

WHL, City To Curb Violence

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

Western Hockey League headquarters and the City of Victoria, each handling "our own responsibilities," are expected to take action in order to prevent recurrences of the ugly incident at Memorial Arena on Saturday night that marred Victoria Cougars' 7-3 victory over New Westminster Bruins.

New Westminster players, attacking dangerously with their sticks, and a few fans, irresponsibly throwing cups of hot coffee and at least one bottle, were central figures in the violence at game's end.

Victoria players were not involved.

Fortunately, and somewhat remarkably, no one was seriously hurt.

The only casualty was a youthful fan who appeared to be an innocent bystander. Rick Sallis, sitting in south-end seats with his girl friend, was hit on the forehead by a puck thrown by New Westminster centre Scott MacLeod.

It was a fan in another south-end section that may have touched off the incident when he threw a cup of coffee that struck New Westminster goaltender Richard Martens.

The incensed Martens immediately went on the attack and started swinging his stick, hitting, mainly, the protective glass. Other Bruin players then joined in by swinging their sticks viciously and recklessly. While it appeared that the protective glass partitions did the job, some fans were caught with glancing blows.

Referee Bob Hall and Al Paradice, supervisor of officials who was in attendance, both filed reports. "I can't say what action, if any, will be taken," said Paradice.

He added the league takes a "dim view" of any stick-swinging by players and would not be surprised if some action was taken.

Victoria Alderman Robin Blencoe, the city's chairman of recreation who was in attendance but left moments before the game ended, said he plans to meet with Arena manager Jack Morgan today "to nip this kind of rowdiness in the bud."

"We can't control what happens on the ice," said Blencoe, "and we don't like to be accused of political interference. But anything that happens in our building is under our jurisdiction."

"We're going to crack down on anyone who creates trouble. We don't want to detract from the exciting Cougars' play, but we can't have a few fans spoiling it for the majority who come to the arena to see hockey.

"We will have to consider immediate ejection of any fan starting trouble. If the same people continue to make trouble, then we'll just have to ban them from the arena permanently.

"It worked last year when we had trouble with a few fans," added Blencoe.

At each game, fans were warned that anyone throwing any object on the ice would be subject to immediate ejection.

This year, littering is not a problem.

The game itself was reasonably quiet. Hall called only 11 minors and two majors — to Victoria's Randy Irving and Rick Amann of the Bruins for a third-period fight.

Down 2-0 at one stage, the Cougars struck for seven straight goals before Bruins' John Paul Kelly, one of the most violent of the stick-swingers at game's end, closed out scoring late in the final period.

Irving, Gary Lupul and rookie Brad Palmer spearheaded Victoria's offense, which counted more than five goals in one game for the first time in 1979. Six of the goals came within a 12-minute span in the second.

Lupul laid down a perfect pass to Bob Smith for Victoria's first goal, then added the second himself. Mike Shields, Palmer, Greg Adams and Irving, in rapid-fire order, put Cougars in command, 6-2, before the 15-minute mark of the middle period.

Irving got his second of the night and fourth in three games in the third period.

Smith, Carlisle Island Reps In B.C. Mixed

Times News Services

Dave Smith of Juan de Fuca and Ivan Carlisle of Port Alberni will represent the Island in the B.C. Mixed Curling championship at the Racquet Club of Victoria, beginning Friday night.

Smith captured the "B" side of the eight-rink Island final at Campbell River, Sunday, stealing the winning point in a 5-4 extra-end victory over Al Frame of the Racquet Club.

Carlisle, runner up to the Pacific Coast Curling Association men's championship last week at Duncan, won "A" side with a 10-3 victory over Smith.

Earlier Sunday Frame eliminated Pat Ryan of Campbell River 9-1. Carlisle handed Frame his first defeat, 8-7, also in an extra-end game.

Frame defeated Ray Jones of Port Hardy 9-7 in the "B" semi-final and Ryan eliminated Rob Cummings of Victoria 8-6. Jones earlier eliminated Fred Duncan of Port Alberni 8-7 and Cummings knocked out Pat McGuire of Esquimalt 7-5.

Coomber Wins Junior Title

In Vancouver, Stacey Coomber and his Powell River foursome won the British Columbia Junior men's curling championship and advanced to the Canadian final in Victoria, March 19-24.

Simpson Meets Pierce in B.C. Final

In Cranbrook, Dave Simpson of Vernon had three three-point ends as he captured the BCCA title with an 11-6 victory over Barry McPhee of Kamloops.

Simpson meets PCCA champion Glen Pierce of Vancouver in the best-of-three provincial final starting at Cranbrook today. Other members of the Simpson rink are third John Taporowski, second Doug Wier and lead Dale Rintoul.

Winner of the Pierce-Simpson series will represent B.C.in the Brier at Ottawa, March 4-10.

Devlin Eliminates Canadian Champ

In Calgary, Paul Devlin of Edmonton knocked out defending Canadian champion Ed Lukowich of Medicine Hat 7-4 in the final of the Alberta curling championship. The result was a reversal of Lukowich's decision over Devlin in last year's provincial final. Earlier Sunday, Lukowich forced the championship into a final and deciding game when he defeated Devlin 7-6.

Brandon Crowded With Games' Gang

Times News Services

Ontario hopes to regain the title from Quebec when the fourth Canada Winter Games open in Brandon today with some 3,000 athletes from the 10 provinces and the Yukon and Northwest Territories competing in 17 sports.

Ontario virtually owned the first two editions of the Winter Games — at Quebec City in 1967 and Saskatoon in 1971 — but then lost by a slim margin in the final points standings at Lethbridge in 1975. Quebec won by 219 points to British Columbia's 216 and Ontario's 215.

Competition begins today in badminton, boxing and hockey.

The CBC national network plans a two-hour telecast of today's opening, starting at 5 p.m. PST.

The population of this city of about 36,000 is expected to nearly double during the next two weeks with the influx of athletes, officials and Games visitors. As well, there are already many observers arriving to prepare for viewing of the Feb. 26 eclipse of the sun, which is further taxing the community's hotel facilities.

Twenty-five participants in the Northern British Columbia Winter Games have been suspended because of their conduct during the event Feb. 2-4 in Smithers. Games chairman Brian Northrup said Sunday the reasons for the suspensions covered violations ranging from breaking curfew to criminal offences.

Police are investigating charges by a Smithers hotel that a Williams Lake group damaged rooms and left without paying for accommodation.

Northrup said the suspensions range from a year to all future Games.

The Games society originally tried to hush up the suspensions but decided to make their actions public. The society declined, however, to name the suspended individuals.

Jim Marshall, former manager of Chicago Cubs, has been named manager of Oakland A's for the 1979 major league baseball season. Oakland owner Charles O. Finley, who has been trying to sell his American League club, said that with spring training scheduled to start in less than two weeks, he could not wait any longer to chooqe a manager.

Marshall, who managed the A's Class AAA farm team at Vancouver in 1978, replaces Jack McKeon, who was fired by Finley at the end of last season.

John Walker said after winning the mile run in an indoor track meet at Montreal on Sunday that he is returning to New Zealand to undertake serious training for the 1980 Olympic Games in Moseow. Walker won the mile in three minutes, 56.8 seconds against a top-flight international field, including the fabled Filbert Bayi of Tanzania and a Kenya's Henry Rono, Wilson Waigwa and Jam Munyala.

Walker and Bayi were to meet at the 1976 Olympics, but that duel failed to materialize when Tanzania joined a boycott of the Games by many African countries. Bayi finished sixth and last, a good half-lap behind Walker.

Renaldo Nehemia of the University of Maryland won the men's 60-metre hurdles in 7.62 seconds. It was Nehemia's 16th straight victory this year. He recorded No. 15 in Ottawa Saturday.

Ingemar Stenmark of Sweden was fastest in both runs Sunday at Are, Sweden, and took a clear skiing victory in a World Cup special slalom. It was his second triumph in 24 hours. He won a giant slalom Saturday.

The 22-year-old Swede won Sunday's race in a combined time of one minute 35.77 seconds. Phil Mahre of the U.S. was second (1:36.67) and Italian veteran Gustavo Thoeni was third (1:36.78). Steve Mahre, Phil's twin brother, came fourth in 1:37.12.

Kings Lose Final

HULL, Que. — The Racquet Club Kings of Victoria ran into penalty problems in the third period, dropped a 7-5 decision to Gatineau, Que., and had to settle for the silver medal Sunday in the Hull Invitational midget hockey tournament.

Tied 3-3 going into the final period, Gatineau capitalized on five successive penalties to the Kings.

Victoria reached the final of the 32-team tournament with a pair of victories Saturday, beating Ottawa South 4-1 in the quarter-finals and Mississauga, Ont., 3-1 in the semi-finals.

Kings' forward John Newberry was named the most sportsmanlike player in the tournament.

Victorians Take Events At Seattle

Bonnie Hutton won the open women's two-mile event with a time of 11 minutes, 20.8 seconds and Craig Taylor won the open men's long jump with a leap of 23 feet, 11 inches.

Tony Theriault who, like the other Victorians, is competing under the guidance of Ron Bowker at UVic, finished fifth in the men's mile with a 4:18.9 clocking.

Spriggs Sets Pace

Martin Spriggs, riding a Yamaha, collected 33 points under the reverse-scoring system Sunday to win the expert category of the annual Reg Shanks observed trial at the Victoria Motorcycle Club property on Happy Valley Road.

Peter Wille, aboard a Montessa, was second with 62 and Roger Boothroyd, on a Yamaha, was third with 75.

The event was the first in a series of six trials leading to the club championship.

SENIORS: 1. Doug Moore, Montessa, 50; 2. Gordie Blow, Yamaha, 61; 3. Dave Horner, Bultaco, 65.

NOVICES: 1. Blake McFarlane, Yamaha, 21; 2. Steve Fracy, Yamaha, 37; 3. Paul Boothroyde, Yamaha, 39.

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Prices advanced fractionally in active mid-afternoon trading on the Toronto stock market today.

Trading resumed in shares of Consumers Distributing Co. Ltd., which announced after the close Friday the purchase of Cardinal Distributors Ltd. from Steinberg Inc. Consumers stock was down ⅛ to $10⅜.

Trading was halted shortly after the opening in shares of All-Can Holdings Ltd. pending an announcement. The stock last traded at $7⅛.

Among other industrials, Dome Petroleum advanced 1¾ to $108¼, Home Oil A 1½ to $46¼, Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas 1⅛ to $60½, Bow Valley Industries ⅞ to $24½, B.C. Sugar A ⅝ to $29⅛ and Molson Co. Ltd. B ⅜ to $22¾.

Sterling Trust declined 1 to $19¾, General Motors ¾ to $65, Walker-Gooderham A ¾ to $41¼, Canadian Pacific Investments ⅝ to $25½ and Royal Bank of Canada ¼ to $40.

Campbell Red Lake Mines rose 1 to $41½, Canada Tungsten Mining ⅜ to $22⅛ and Dome Mines ½ to $102. Denison Mines fell ½ to $82¼ and Teck Corp. A ½ to $12¼.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market drifted lower in an atmosphere of caution about the energy outlook following the revolution in Iran.

Analysts said the victory of followers of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini in Iran over the weekend did not come as a surprise to investors.

But they noted considerable uncertainty over when some flow of oil from Iran might be resumed, as well as doubts that it might ever again reach the amounts supplied to the West under the old Iranian regime.

Central Telephone and Utilities topped the active list, down ⅛ to $26⅛. A 327,500-share block traded at $26¼.

Independent oil issues with interests concentrated in North America were strong for the third straight day, on expectations that they mightprosper in any new oil squeeze.

The NYSE's composite index eased .04 to 54.83.

Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices posted broad advances in moderate afternoon trading on the Montreal Stock Exchange, with the composite index gaining 0.22 to 233.18.

Rights shares of the Bank of Nova Scotia continued to dominate trading for the second week, unchanged at 39 cents on a volume of 308,592 shares traded.

London

John F. Newman, Divisional General Manager for Weldwood of Canada Limited's Cariboo Division, has announced the promotion of Andrew Szalkai to the position of Divisional Forest Manager.

In his new position, Mr. Szalkai is coordinating all forestry matters for the Cariboo Division's three operations — Quesnel, Williams Lake and 100 Mile House. Prior to his promotion, Mr. Szalkai was General Manager of Quesnel Operations for a year and its Woods Manager for eight years.

Mr. Szalkai is a forestry graduate of U.B.C. and is a Registered Professional Forester (R.P.F.) in British Columbia.

CATTLE

CALGARY (CP) — There were two few sales to establish any quotations at the Calgary public stockyards today.

TREASURE FROM THE DEEP is manganese nodules, brought up from great depths by a special trawl on this research vessel. The nodules are not only rich in manganese, but also in the key strategic minerals copper, nickel and cobalt. While private industry looks for ways to reduce the massive cost of specially-equipped ships to drag for the nodules, world governments argue at law-of-the-sea conferences over claims to the sea bed.

Metals

$129.3M Spent Busing

OTTAWA (CP) — Bus travel between cities and in rural areas cost Canadians $129.3 million during the first 11 months of 1978, Statistics Canada reports.

The federal agency surveyed the 20 bus companies reporting earnings of $500,000 or more a year and found they had carried 31 million people a total 178.8 million kilometres (111.1 million miles).

The number of passengers was up almost 1 million from the same 11-month period one year earlier and revenues increased by more than $7 million.

The federal agency also released advance figures on the country's 55 urban transit systems for November.

Urban transit companies collected 110.2 million subway and bus fares for a total value of $40,630,000.
